SORGHUM MILL TO BE STARTED SOON

First in County to Operate Near Silverton; Forty Acre Crop Raised

A. W. Klopfenstein, route two, Silverton, will have the first steam sorghum mill in Marion county in operation a week from Monday, he said Friday while in Salem on business. He has recently completed construction of the mill.

About 40 acres of sorghum cane will be cut in the Silverton area this year, he estimates. Weather conditions of the past week or so have slowed ripening of the cane, but it will be ready to cut in another 10 days.

Klopfenstein's steam mill, located near the Brush Creek school, will have a daily capacity of from 75 to 150 gallons. Three 160-gallon vats have been installed and a 45-horsepower boiler. It will probably be in operation 30 days, with M. J. Klopfenstein, father of A. W., in charge of cooking. The elder Klopfenstein operated a steam mill in the east and has had 30 years' experience in the cooking of cane.

The sorghum cane industry, new in this county, shows considerable growth this year over last, Klopfenstein says. There are small hand operated "mills" at other growing centers, Mt. Angel, Stayton and near Trarler. Sorghum prices this year range from $1 to $1.50 per gallon, depending upon quality. Sales are made locally, in the main, each grower taking orders from individuals or selling through stores.

HOME LOAN BONDS RULING MADE HERE

Home owners' loan corporation bonds can not be accepted for balance due upon a contract for the purchase from the state land board of property acquired by foreclosure of a school fund mortgage. Attorney General Van Winkle Friday rendered this decision to the state land board.

He stated these bonds, under the law, cannot be accepted in exchange for securities held by the land board as investments of the state school funds.

In another opinion Van Winkle held that the state labor commissioner was not required to advance costs in court cases started by the commission, and the county clerk and sheriffs required to account for trial costs were not liable for such fees not collected. The request for the opinion was made by C. H. Gram, state labor commissioner.

WALDPORT BRIDGE BIDS CALLED SOON

The state highway commission was told by C. C. Hockley, engineer for the northwest NRA board, to have everything in readiness to call for bids on the Waldport bridge on a moment's notice. It was announced Friday by J. M. Devers, attorney for the state highway commission.

Devers, who has held recent conferences with Hockley, said plans for all five bridges on the Oregon Coast highway have been approved and only the final adoption by officials in Washington, D. C., remains before contracts can be let. The Waldport bridge will be the first, to be followed shortly, it was intimated by Hockley, by the Coos Bay, Reedsport, Florence and Newport spans, all to total in excess of $5,000,000, to be financed by loans and grants from the public works fund.

All five bridges were expected to be under contract by the first of the year, it was believed by highway department officials here.

HENDRICKS VOLUME IS RECEIVED HERE PRUNE PICKING IS ON AT SUBLIMITY

R. J. Hendricks has received some advance copies of his book "Bethel and Aurora" which is being brought out by the Press of the Pioneers, New York, and will be a full publication of that house. The book carries an appreciative foreword by Charles T. Carey, president of the state historical society.

The book is attractively printed on laid antique paper, India tint; and the typography is very pleasing, being composed in Caslon old style. The binding is in brown buckram with gold title background. Mr. Hendricks anticipates that copies will be received by local bookstores within a short time.

WALKER DISCUSSES BASIS FOR CREDIT

Teaching Sound Policy for Buying is Stressed by Leader of School

Urging that the credit man or woman of a store deal not in a simple "yes" or "no" from a dollars and cents standpoint, but that the credit man help the buyer to realize the wider uses and misuses to which credit may be put, Charles F. Walker, president of Northwestern School of Commerce, last night addressed the Salem Retail Credit association on "My Basis for Credit."

Walker holds that business difficulties of the past few years could have been omitted, in part, if youths of a few years ago, buyers of today, had been educated to spiritual and mental values which in themselves would have taught the full significance of credit.

"If you as a credit man or business man can help your customers to see above the immediate things of everyday, if you can open to them some vision, then you are doing a real work—a credit work in the fullest sense," Walker said. And helping others add to one's own "credit" or growth, he declared.

About 60 members and friends of the local credit association attended the dinner meeting, held at the Masonic temple. Musical entertainment included piano selections by V. F. McNamara and Scotch songs by Robert Hutecheon. Dancing and cards followed the program.
