

SPAULDING FILES IN RAILROAD RATE CASE

Trial Expected Soon; Appeal To State and Federal Courts Anticipated

The Charles K. Spaulding Logging company has filed its complaint in intervention here in its log hauling rate dispute with the Valley and Siletz railroad. The latter is plaintiff in the case, appealing from the decision of Charles M. Thomas, utility commissioner, which reduced the former $3.90 a thousand feet log rate to $3 between Olson and Winona and made an even lower rate on train lots.

The railroad company's complaint is filed as is the answer of the public utilities commissioner. It is expected that the case will soon be at trial before Judge L. G. Lewelling.

Whatever decision is reached, it seems certain now one party will appeal to the state supreme court with a chance that from there the case may go into federal courts.

The reduced rate is now in effect although an injunction might be sought against its use should the Spaulding company attempt to haul its logs on that schedule.

Officials of the Spaulding company have frequently stated that lower rates from their holdings in Polk county are imperative if the mill here is to be reopened.

NRA BOARD NOT TO PROBE FORD PLANT

DETROIT, Sept. 25.—(AP)—A local NRA compliance board was named late today for suburban Dearborn, where the Ford Motor company is located, but the board will have no authority to pass upon or discuss complaints lodged against the Ford company.

The membership of the board, chosen by the Dearborn NRA committee, does not include a representative either of the Ford company, which has not signed the NRA automotive code, or of its employees.

The local committee had expected its board to consider complaints involving the Ford company, but was informed officially today its power is limited to firms operating under the president's reemployment agreement. Since there is an agreed code for the automobile industry, the activities of the board in connection with the Ford company will be limited to reporting any complaints to Washington for consideration there.

They made a comfortable living; so the boy was soon sent to Mrs. Rev. John Flinn's private school at the Methodist church—the Flinn's heroic characters in Oregon pioneer Methodism. There the boy learned to read and spell, and to sing. The language of the family in conversation and devotional exercise had been in the Moravian tongue—and the boy knew no more than 50 English words up to that time.

United Brethren ministers held a great revival in pioneer Walla Walla, and E. R. Horner, carpenter, high class mechanic and a man of character, who had assisted the family over the way from Nevada to Walla Walla was ordained to preach; became a circuit rider, organized churches in the new settlements.

Some time later, Rev. John Flinn, who had officiated at the funeral services for the father and sister, was called to perform the marriage ceremony of Rev. Horner and the widowed mother.

1933 HOP MARKET REMAINING QUIET

200 Bale Fuggle Sale at 40 Cents Noted; Cluster To Bring 38 to 39

Sales of 1933 hops have been scarce so far, and will likely not show much activity until after the contract inspection and delivery has been made. About two-thirds of the crop is contracted and buyers have until October 31 to complete inspections.

Two hundred bales of hops, said variously to come from the Seavey yards at Eugene and a yard at Independence in which Seavey has some interest, were sold last week at 40 cents per pound. These were fuggles. A few small sales indicate the cluster market to run from 33 to 39 cents, though some 1933 bales have sold for as low as 35 cents, according to information here.

Loss to hop growers on account of mould during the picking season will not be heavy, some local growers estimate. Figures on the 1933 Oregon crop vary, pending an authentic check. The harvest is placed all the way from 85,000 to 100,000 bales, with a fair average estimate running around 90,000 bales. This is about a third more than the 1932 crop.

Movement of hops from warehouses has started on a small scale, though this end of the business will carry on intermittently during the year, as buyers order.

More tea was imported by the United States in 1932 than in any of five previous years.

MDIVANI REPLIES TO DIVORCE SUIT

Opera Star Wife Accused of Being Too Friendly With Insull

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 25.—(AP)—The legal retort of Prince Serge Mdivani of the "Marrying Mdivanis" to the separate maintenance suit of Mary McCormick, opera star, is that he wants an out right divorce, mainly on his charge that she has been unduly friendly with Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate and grand opera sponsor.

The answer of Prince Serge, one of three brothers from the Soviet province of Georgia who have married prominent American women, was filed in superior court here today.

Prince Serge also charged that Miss McCormick once struck him in a Hollywood night club, later became so boisterous as to attract attention of others in the place, and tore his clothing after they reached home.

Miss McCormick's suit is set for trial October 7. Lawyers said her husband's action probably will be considered at the same time.

In Chicago, the singer was quoted as saying today that Prince Serge's charges will be refuted when the case comes to court. She said the prince had depended on money she had made under advice of Insull and that the charges of physical violence might better have been made against himself.

Wants Insull

Assistant United States Attorney Forest Harness, who is in Athens, Greece, to make new demands of the Greek Government for the extradition of Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities czar, who is wanted in the United States on charges of violating bankruptcy laws.

he heard "statements and rumors" reflecting unfavorably on Miss McCormick's character, "because of an asserted previous relationship" between her and Insull, who is now 74 and a fugitive in Athens, Greece, fighting extradition on indictments returned in connection with collapse of his utilities empire.

FAIRFIELD GRANGE BAZAAR DRAWS 200

FAIRFIELD, Sept. 25.—Despite inclement weather around 200 persons enjoyed the barbecue and bazaar Sunday at the Fairfield grange. The committee in charge reported the affair was a financial success. Chomeva and Ladd Hill granges were among the visitors from outside points.

Dinner was served at noon to about 150 persons. Games and concessions were in operation throughout the day.

Fine specimens of vegetables and fruit grown by farmers of this vicinity were on display, including a sunflower grown on the E. C. Allenbeck farm with a stalk 14 feet high. An interesting collection of relics and curios from Mrs. DuRette's curio shop was also shown.

Zone Hearing is Held Up Pending Prime's Return

The city planning and zoning commission is awaiting the return of Dr. G. E. Prime, who is out of town, before setting a date for another hearing on the petition of certain property owners in the block bounded by Commercial, Kearney, Saginaw and Mission streets, to have the west half of the block changed to class one residential zone, David W. Pugh, president, said last night.

Pugh suggested that some satisfactory agreement between Dr. Prime, who seeks to build a group of Bungalow cabins in the east half of that block, and the protestants, might be reached.
