

George Wilson Revealed as One of 'Mystery' Grapplers

EX-GRIPPER TO SHOW TONIGHT

First Guess on Opponent Wins Tickets; Karasick And Thyse are Ready

Wrestling fans here who have been confidently awaiting the night when some villainous grappler will pull out one of the ring posts by the roots and belabor his opponent with it may not have time to wait. For "Gentleman Al" Karasick, who appears on tonight's card at the armory against Ted Thyse, used a ring post to defeat Harry Demetral the other night in Bend. Al didn't pull the ring post from its normal position, however; he merely used it as a diving board from which to pounce into Demetral and knock him out for the lone fall.

Matchmaker Harry Plant feels that in signing Thyse, the former world light heavyweight champion, to meet Karasick, he has provided the Russian dancing master with the sort of opposition which will be popular with the fans; they have seen Karasick deal misery to numerous other grapplers and want to see if the "Lion" can also take it.

Up to Monday night none of the persons turning in guesses on the participants in the one-hour event, had rung the bell, and so to make it easier, Plant announced one of the principals: George Wilson, former University of Washington football star. Wilson has appeared here once or twice, and is a sensation wherever he grapples, because of his vicious flying tackle.

With that "hint" it is possible that a number of fans will be able to guess the right combination, and since it has been made so easy, Plant has stipulated that only the first fan getting his guess into the hands of Ralph Curtis, Statesman sports writer, will receive the four ringside seats. All guesses must be in The Statesman office by 6:30 tonight. The 30-minute bout will feature Bob Philpott and Tuffy Davis. Another announcement from the matchmaker is that Vern Harrington will be back in the ring here tonight as the arbiter. The boxing and wrestling commission announces that 3000 "Willamette work fund" tickets have been distributed, and that if fans will present these tickets along with their money at the box office ten cents of the admission will go to the student work fund.

Picked to Manhandle Karasick

Artist's impression of "Terrible Ted" Thyse, who has been selected as the most likely person to administer to "Gentleman Al" Karasick the trouncing many fans here believe the Russian merits. They will meet at the armory Tuesday night.

Bearcats Sore-Muscle but Intact; Prepare for Tough Game With Wolves Saturday

No disabling injuries but innumerable sore spots, constituted the toll of the Willamette Bearcats' stubborn battle against the Oregon State Beavers Saturday. Coach "Spec" Keene reported Monday after calling the roll at the initial workout of the week, Kaiser, Hoyt and Connors were unable to practice Monday and most of the others were moving rather creepily.

In view of this situation, Coach Keene doubts whether he will be able to work out any offense in addition to the meagre set of plays used against the Staters, in time for the next tough contest which comes Saturday night at 8 o'clock when the Wolves from Oregon Normal will snarl their way onto Sweetland field.

Working out the sore spots of his players, and steady drill on "keeping their eyes open" will constitute Keene's major task this week. Remembering the numerous tricks the Teachers attempted and sometimes accomplished last year, Keene plans to have his boys count the opposing players on every play, and watch sharply for players hidden behind the water bucket, the yardage sticks or under Larry Wolfe's jacket.

Meanwhile Coach Keene was cheered by news that his two "wandering boys," Olson and Weisser, were on their way home and might arrive within a day or so. Howard Maple, assistant coach

SENATORS TRY 'DEAD' PELLET

Decide National League's Ball can be Taken for Ride; Divide pot

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—(AP)—The Washington Senators today held a private batting caucus with the slightly-less-lively National league ball that will open the world series and returned an apparently jubilant verdict to the effect "it rides plenty when you hit it."

The American league champions chased outfielders to all corners of Griffith stadium. If there were any dissenting opinions as to what happened when the National league ball was "hit," they couldn't be heard at the batting screen rolled up behind home plate.

The Senators, after a clubhouse meeting to divide their championship winnings, went through the first day of a three-day training siege with as much enthusiasm as a college ball club getting ready to open a season.

Joe Cronin, young manager, told questioners the often acrimonious allotting of shares of the world series money had been accomplished in complete harmony. "They're a great bunch of fellows," said Cronin. "In making the division we considered everybody that had had anything to do with the club all season."

It was learned later that Cronin means that all those who had been connected with the Senators, including pitcher Bill McAfee who was recently sent to Rochester, and even down to Jimmy Mahoney, the batboy and mascot, had been given a share.

Cronin withheld any announcement of who will face the Giants in the opening game.

last year, has arrived in Salem and plans to spend the winter here; he is not officially connected with the athletic department but will assist with the football team if he can find work in Salem at hours which will permit daily visits to the gridiron. Fans who witnessed Saturday's game at Corvallis, won by the Staters 21 to 0 after the Bearcats had held them even or a little better for three periods, were loud in their praise of the spirit and "fight" exhibited by Willamette's team, and generally predicted that no matter what the score, the Wolves would have a battle on their hands Saturday night.

CURT COMMENTS

Wuxtry! Wuxtry! All about the gruesome meat market murder mystery! It seems that there is a corpse hanging in the Midget market with a card on it with the following identification: "Brazil Small, 175 pounds" At least it was there Monday. Maybe Brazil's friends have taken it in charge for investigation around the dinner table.

Howard Maple is back in town, reporting a successful season of backstopping for the Chattanooga ball club. What makes Maple moan is that he was with the Washington Senators last year, and farmed out this year, instead of vice versa. It makes the difference of about $6000 in world series money.

The Portland Ducks dropped their mathematical, but highly improbable chance to win the coast league pennant, to Jupp Fluvius. Playing only two games last week they were robbed of the other five chances to go ahead, for when a pair of teams fail to play postponed games in a regular series, those games are automatically wiped off the books. Well, it was only a mathematical chance anyway.

The absence of "sideline plays" was the principal difference in football that we noticed in witnessing our first game of the season last Sunday at Corvallis. When the ball is nearer the sideline than that 15-yard stripe they just take it out there, so the sideline play much less part in the game than heretofore. And naturally, it speeds up the game and spares the fans that travesty, the "sideline play" which never got anywhere and wasn't intended to.

INDUSTRY MANAGER UNDER NRA CHOSEN

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 25.—(AP)—W. P. Flint, formerly of Kansas City, today assumed the duties of manager of the Pacific Northwest Woodwork association and executive administrator for the industry's NRA code. The Portland office is headquarters for Oregon, Washington, Idaho and 21 counties in western Montana. The office is one of the five administrative agencies for the industry in the United States.

Flint arrived here last night from Kansas City, where he was auditor in charge of the cost department of the American Sash & Door company. He was brought here by the recently formed woodwork association to take complete charge of the organization and its ramifications, and his arrival, members of the association said, fills the final gap in the organization of planning mills and the woodwork industry.

E. E. Cowdin of Portland, a member of the national coordinating committee of eight members, is president of the Pacific northwest association, organization of which was effected at Tacoma, Wash., August 5. Flint said today that about 200 individual operating plants will be brought together in the association.

Injury to Terry, Tragedy In Family of Vergez Mar Giants' Joyous Occasion

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Injury to the star pitcher, Bill Terry, and the tragic death of the infant daughter of Johnny Vergez today somewhat saddened what should have been a joyous occasion for the New York Giants, a meeting to decide what division would be made of their share of the world series receipts. Terry appeared at the gathering, held in the clubhouse at the Polo grounds where the Giants will open the series with Washington a week from tomorrow, with a bruised thumb on his throwing hand, injured in yesterday's game with Boston. He made light of his injury, however, and said he would be in shape for the series.

Vergez, just recovering from appendicitis, seemed definitely lost to the team for the series as he speeded west to the bedside of his wife, critically ill in Oakland, Cal., following the birth of the baby by a caesarian operation. Even if Mrs. Vergez should live it was thought unlikely Johnny would be back for the series. Their first child, a boy, died over a year ago of infantile paralysis.

With 20 others of the 24 players eligible for the series, Vergez was voted a full share of his teammates, along with Jimmy Tierney, club secretary, the three coaches, Tom Clarke, Frank Snyder and Al Smith and the club trainer, Willie Schaeffer. Half shares were voted to John Salveson, pitcher, and Harold Danning, catcher, both of whom are eligible for the series but unlikely to play and quarter shares will be given to Charles Dreesen, third baseman, who recently joined the team and may play in Vergez' place, and Bill Shores, recently recalled pitcher. Dreesen was added to the series eligible list today by Kenesaw W. Landis, baseball commissioner, on Terry's plea and with consent of the Senators.

Pitching Lesson by Hubbell

Study these pictures you embryo big-league twirlers for none other than Carl Hubbell, star southpaw of the Giants and leading pitcher of the National League, shows you how he holds his curve and fast balls. And Hubbell expects to fan one or two of the Senators' sluggers with 'em during the coming World Series.

CLUB TOURNEY NEARING FINAL

Taylor and Cline to Play For President's cup; Mudders win out

Most of the Salem Golf club members still involved in the annual President's cup tournament braved a downpour of rain Sunday and settled the final in a flight below the first. In the championship flight Bob Taylor, despite an illness during the past week coupled with the handicap of the rain, shot an even par 36 on the first nine and went on to defeat Dr. A. D. Woodmansee to reach the finals. His opponent will be Walter Cline, who won over Glen Lengren by default.

In the first flight Bonesteel defeated Stacey and Ritter won from Hendrix, 3 and I. Bonesteel and Ritter will battle it out in the finals in the coming week.

WET STREETS CAUSE SERIES OF MISHAPS

Automobile accidents multiplied here over the weekend, marking the rule of wet pavements, but no serious collisions were reported to city police.

Following a collision at Hood and fourth streets yesterday, between cars route nine, and Adam Van Cleve, route nine, and Fairground and Highland, city police arrested Hildebrand on a charge of failing to give right of way. Frank Riggi, Brooks, notified city police yesterday that his automobile had struck a Southern Pacific freight engine at 12th and Mill streets. He said he failed to see any warning lights on the locomotive. Windows of a car driven by W. J. Magill, Silverton star route, were shattered when the car collided with one driven by George Smith, 2380 Fairgrounds road, at Church and Court streets, Smith reported.

TILDEN WINS OVER COCHET WITH EASE

PARIS, Sept. 25.—(AP)—William T. Tilden 2nd, patriarch of American tennis, today accomplished in brilliant fashion as a professional who he had failed to as an amateur Davis cup player from 1927 to 1930 defeat Henri Cochet to give the United States victory in a professional series with France.

Playing in a form reminiscent of the Tilden who ruled the tennis world from 1920 to 1927 and with added experience Big Bill required just 55 minutes and three sets to crush his nemesis of amateur days. The scores were 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

The Cochet of the match was hardly the great little Frenchman of 1930 and before while Tilden appeared to the enthusiastic gallery to be as good as ever. They gave the American an ovation at the end of the match.

In addition he receives his house, furnishings, water, light, heat, car and chauffeur.

Master Mind of the Grid

RAZZLE-DAZZLE STUFF

"POP" Warner.
THE OLD FOX OF THE GRID—NOW COACHING THE TEMPLE UNIVERSITY ELEVEN.
EDDIE ZUKAS—TEMPLE'S STAR PUNTER...
TEMPLE PLAYS SOUTH CAROLINA SEPT. 29...
1933 King Features Syndicate, Inc., Copyright.

SOMEbody once asked Pop Warner what is the greatest factor in the successful coaching of a football team, and Pop answered: "Material!" Well, he ought to know. He has been coaching some thirty-eight years. Warner has come to the East from Stanford to bring to Temple University at Philadelphia, and to the East in general, the brand of Warner football known as power football. And, as Pop himself has said, it takes material.

Apparently, Temple has material—great big fellows who have the brawn it takes to play the kind of football their coach has made famous. There's every chance that they will make their school as well-known and respected as the venerable University of Pennsylvania, their home town neighbor, and anyone who knows Philadelphia knows that the downtown Temple boys have just that idea in mind. Warner gets a good break at Temple, aside from the inheritance of a wealth of good material from his predecessor. He has his predecessor with him as an assistant. Heinie Miller is the man who guided the Owls before Warner took hold, and he remains as mentor of the ends. Heinie knows the men, and he will be of great help to Warner in getting off to a good start by using his good material in the best way. Thirty-seven veterans make up the squad that has been training under Pop at Oak Lane and getting ready for the season's opener this Saturday against South Carolina. Reports have it that the weaknesses of the team are in ends and center. The guards are everything Pop could want and the tackle material is fine. Pop is all enthusiasm about his new post at Temple. He likes the huskies he has to work with, and he is completely satisfied with his surroundings. He expects a "fair" season. In addition to Miller, Pop has an able staff of assistants, all former players and coaches with him at Stanford. Charles Winterburn is in charge of the backs; Fred Swan tutors the linemen and Ray Helen guides the Freshmen. This great developer of "great" teams is off to a new start. He turned the trick at Stanford, Cornell, Carleton, Georgia and Pitt during his career. How about Temple?
