REED DEFEATS BENNETT AGAIN

"Pests" Battle but Veteran Is Foxier; Lyness and Martin put on Show

George Bennett may, after all, be a "money" wrestler and just not so foxy as Robin Reed. At any rate Reed made it two straight victories over the Oklahoma boy Tuesday night at the armory, thus confounding the "second guessers" who were so sure Bennett could turn the trick given an opportunity to weigh what he liked and a referee who was in their estimation competent. On that score, it may be safely said that Reed did not benefit by any lack of officiating.

Like their last meeting, it was largely a duel between a couple of "pests," each grappler devoting more attention to dealing out minor punishment than to moving the other's shoulders toward the mat. Bennett dealt the most punishment, after assuring that the crowd was on his side by waiting until Reed started it. They "pestered" each other for 37 minutes before Reed got busy with a whip wristlock and whip Bennett to sufficient limpness that he could be leveled on the canvas. Bennett took the second fall in two minutes with a body scissors and held the third with a flying wristlock in six minutes, after Bennett apparently had him on the run.

For excitement, the "Bunny" Martin-Ray Lyness bout overshadowed the main event, with a climax in which both grapplers tangled back of the bleachers after Harrington had awarded the final fall to Martin on a foul. Lyness persisted in slugging after two warnings.

It was what would be called in football a "wide open" contest with many passes and end runs. After Lyness had taken the first fall with a body slam, the second round consisted of a foot-race, Martin dashing from safety on one side of the platform, outside the ropes, to a similar have on the other side; tactics reminiscent of "run sheep run." In the midst of his sprinting, Martin suddenly took Lyness with a body slam when Ray finally tackled him.

They got right up and went to slugging, so Harrington set them go on without a rest. The foul came after a minute and 30 seconds; Martin wasn't satisfied even though he won, and made a pass at Harrington, who chased him out of the ring with Lyness close behind. They all tangled while the crowd screamed to the spot, but so far as those on the outer edge could see, no damage was done.

Joe Gardiner and "Tuffy" Davis grappled to a draw in the opener, each getting a fall. The final round of this contest also was wild, with practically nothing barred.

ALUMNI TOO MUCH FOR GREEN OUTFIT

DALLAS, Oct. 3.—Dallas high school football team dropped its practice game with the alumni Friday by a 7 to 0 score after keeping the ball in their opponents' territory throughout the first half. Dallas will open its regular season Friday at Dayton.

The high school displayed some good ball carriers and the team work which indicated that with another week's practice they will be able to give Dayton a real battle. The high school team was at a disadvantage against the alumni line which outweighed them quite a bit but despite this McMillan and Petre managed to go through to the secondary several times for substantial gains.

Several of the new men are showing promise of developing into good linemen and there are several good backfield prospects.

Dallas' schedule as it appears now is as follows: October 6, Dayton; October 13, Philomath, here, tentative; October 20, Newport, here; October 27, Molalla, here; November 3, Gervais, here; November 11, Independence, here; November 17, open; November 24, Woodburn, here, tentative; November 30, Amity, here.

JACKSON DEFEATS FILIPINO BATTLER

PORTLAND, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Young Peter Jackson, Los Angeles negro, knocked out Johnny Datto, Manila Filipino, with the first punch, a left to the body, in the main event of the fight program here tonight. Jackson weighed 135, and Datto, 133.

Johnny Higgins, 135, Portland, and Ray Cody, 136, Butte, Mont., fought four rounds to a draw.

Star Frisco 124, Manila Filipino, won a four-round decision from Jackie Kliehm, 116, Salem.

Wilkey Neal, 128, Portland, and Ros Dumaguing, 128, Manila Filipino, went four rounds to a draw.

Jack Drows, 150, Marshfield, was awarded the decision over Ray Morgan, 154, Portland, in the four-round opener.

KOAC Shut Out From Own Grid

To the many inquiries as to why KOAC, the state-owned radio station at Corvallis, is not broadcasting football games this fall, Wallace Kaddery, manager, has replied that the Associated Oil company, which was sold the exclusive right to broadcast games of the coast conference schools, has refused to make an exception in the case of this pioneer non-commercial and educational station. KOAC offered to announce during any broadcast that it was made possible through the courtesy of the oil company in making the exception, but the officials insisted that the full commercial announcements would have to be used, Kaddery says. This would violate the non-commercial regulations under which KOAC is operated.

Defer Action on Utility District For Lake Creek

Further action in connection with the proposed Lake Creek peoples' utility district near Triangle Lake, has been deferred by the state hydro-electric commission pending receipt of the final report, C. E. Stricklin, secretary of the commission, announced Tuesday. The commissioners yesterday held a preliminary hearing on the project.

Of the 118 users in that district, virtually all of whom have their own equipment for electric power, 90 attended the hearing. There was no opposition to the proposal to create the district. The formal application for the district will be submitted immediately after the final report is filed.

HOMER BY OTT IS BIG THRILL

Soreball Artist Weakens Near end; Schumacher, Crowder Hurl Today

By ALAN GOULD
FOLGROUNDS, N. Y., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Unshaken either by the faltering defense of his team mates or the enemy's closing threats, the great Carl Owen Hubbell throttled the big guns of the Washington Senators today and pitched the New York Giants to victory 4 to 2, in the first game of the world series.

Just as National leaguers had hoped and their rivals had feared, the lean, lath-like left arm of the Oklahoma southpaw subdued the champions of the American league with an exhibition that was masterful despite the background of a shaky defense at critical moments. Hubbell held the hard-swinging Senators to five hits, struck out ten of them, including the first three batters to face him, and gave superb exhibition steadiness under pressure in the last two dramatic innings.

The Giants, with a lusty early onslaught led by "Little Mel" Ott, who collected four hits in as many times at bat, including a first inning home run, routed Wally Stewart, the Tennessee veteran, in the third inning. They rushed the Senators off their feet with a surge that belied their label of "hitless wonders" but their infield defense was erratic and they forced Hubbell to bear down with everything at his command at the finish, where Washington was stopped with the tying run on second base.

The near-capacity crowd of 46,672 cash customers, saw the great southpaw pitch himself out of difficulties in the eighth and ninth innings. Up to that stage of the game, working smoothly and effectively behind a 4 to 1 lead, Hubbell had the Senator clouters handcuffed with a mixture of a fast curve, a change of pace and his dazzling "screw ball." In six of the first seven innings only three Senators batted against the lanky left-hander. Suddenly, after fanning Bluege at the start of the eighth Hubbell momentarily lost control. He passed Joe Sewell and then walked Dave Harris, pinch-hitting for Jack Russell. The infield clustered around the southpaw, then went back to check the Senators on two exciting plays.

A dribbling grounder by Buddy Myer to "Blondy" Ryan, the Giant shortstop juggled the ball, as he grabbed for it near second base. Somehow he managed to show the ball to Hugo just in time to nip the grounder. Harris, Sewell reached third and Goslin, the old slugger and a world series hero nine years ago, was at bat.

Like most of his team mates, Goslin had been swinging in vain throughout the afternoon. The Goose "napped" one this time, however, and for a moment it looked like a home run and a tie score. The ball was "pulled" sharply and curved foul. Goslin then slammed a line drive that Terry lunged for and caught, to retake the sixth.

In the ninth Ryan misjudged Manush's hard grounder. Cronin singled sharply to right and Schulte singled on a hot grounder that Jackson juggled and lost. The bases were full, with none out.

Ryan came through with a fine stop and throw on Joe Kuhel's grounder, getting his man at first as Manush raced home. Hubbell struck out Bluege for the third time. He had one more to get rid of, Luke Sewell, and this time Jackson made no slip as he catcher's roller and threw to Terry for the final put-out of the game.

Jack Russell and Al Thomas, relief pitching right-handers, held the Giants scoreless in the last five innings, but Ott's big cleanup hit did enough damage early to produce the winning run. The Louisiana larruper's home run into the lower right field stands scored Moore ahead of him in the first, his hard smash to right in the third, after Critt and Terry had singled, drove Stewart out of the box and brought Critt home with what proved the winning run.

It will be a right-handers' duel tomorrow, with Young Hal Schumacher of the Giants opposing "General" Al Crowder of the Senators in the second game.

Oregon to Retain 37 CCC Camps for Winter, is Word

That 37 C.C.C. camps will be retained in Oregon this winter was the assurance given Congressman James W. Mott yesterday by State Forester Lynn Cronmiller in a conference at the state capitol under discussion of the subject under discussion was the retention of all Oregon's summer C.C.C. camps to California for the winter months. Oregon's summer quota of camps has been 67. Twenty-two of the 30 to be removed are in eastern Oregon while six of the western Oregon camps will probably be discontinued through the winter, Cronmiller said.

BUDDY MYER

MACON, Ga., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Death today ended the career of W. L. "Young" Stribling, Georgia heavyweight boxer. Physicians attributed his death to acute peritonitis. They marveled at the tenacity with which the 28-year-old Macon boy clung to life.

Stribling died as he had fought in the ring—surrounded by his parents, his brother and his wife, Clara.

His body will lie in state at the Macon municipal hospital tomorrow. Public funeral services will be held at the auditorium Thursday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. J. B. Sammon, pastor of the Vineville Baptist church. Interment will be in Riverside cemetery here.

His left foot was almost torn loose and his pelvis crushed as an automobile struck his motorcycle Sunday.

Physicians abandoned hope at 3 a. m. today and his family gathered around the bedside. Once he recognized his wife, "Hello, Baby," were his last words to her.

Death closed a career which saw Stribling fight almost every champion of the past decade from the middleweights to the heavyweights, but never quite scale the peak.

He broke into national prominence as a result of his famous "three decision" fight with Mike McTigue, then light heavyweight champion, at Columbus, Ga., in 1923. Later he fought Paul Berlenbach, Jack Sharkey, Tommy Loughran, Primo Carnera, Phil Scott and Ernie Schaaf. He lost his last bid for the heavyweight title when he suffered a technical knockout in the 15th round in his fight with Max Schmeling in Cleveland in 1931.

The chamber of commerce yesterday sent a telegram to Lena Belle Tartar, director of the Salem twice national champion Legion auxiliary trio, and the quartet, offering congratulations on the victory and expressing desire of having the pleasure of entertaining the group at a luncheon on return from Chicago.

SALEM GOLF TEAM TO INVADE EUGENE

Exhibitions of various sorts at basketball games and Y gatherings are planned for this winter. Possibilities for competition are said to be slim here on the Pacific coast where few gymnasiums have equipment and teacher for such work, although it is a popular sport in the east. Because of the skill required, the work of the gymnasium has been neglected by many persons who find great enjoyment in games, Adams says.

STATERS TO MEET GONZAGA SATURDAY

OREGON STATE COLLEGE CORVALLIS, Oct. 3.—Oregon State college football team will have its first real test of the season when the Orangemen clash with Gonzaga university on Monday at Gonzaga stadium field in Portland Saturday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. The Orange players will remember the tough time they had defeating the Gonzaga Bulldogs at Spokane last year by the score of 19 to 16. With less than two minutes of the game remaining the Orangemen were trailing by the score of 12 to 16. A long pass from Johnny Blanton, to Hal Fung brought the winning touchdown for the Orangemen.

Although the Orangemen won their first three games of this season from Southern Oregon Normal, Willamette university and University of Montana by comfortable margins, nevertheless Len Stiner, Oregon coach, is not satisfied with his power offense and pass defense.

Ex-Olympic Star Leads Class Here

Something new in the physical education line for Salem residents is promised with the opening at 8 p. m. tonight of the gymnastic class at the Y. M. C. A. Henry Crossman of Scio, old-time participant in the Olympics, will be in charge of this special class for young men.

Dwight Adams, physical director at the Y, promises that those enrolling will learn the proper use of the parallel and horizontal bars, the horse and buck and get some tumbling in addition. The art of the gymnast, for it is said to be an art when properly taught and practiced, is "one of the best activities for body building and all-around physical development," according to Adams, who is enthusiastic over the addition of this new sport to the Y's winter program.

A tentative list of class-members is in the making at the city Y. M. C. A. and staff members there are asking that all young men, high school age and over, interested in gymnastic pursuits, come to the first meeting at 8 o'clock tonight.

Exhibitions of various sorts at basketball games and Y gatherings are planned for this winter. Possibilities for competition are said to be slim here on the Pacific coast where few gymnasiums have equipment and teacher for such work, although it is a popular sport in the east. Because of the skill required, the work of the gymnasium has been neglected by many persons who find great enjoyment in games, Adams says.

However, he looks for a good turnout at the initial meeting of Crossman's class.

WARD HAS HURLING HONORS FOR COAST

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 3.—(AP)—In a close finish, Dick Ward, young Los Angeles lick handed pitcher, edged out his team-mate, Louis "Buck" Newsom, to win the 1933 Pacific Coast league hurling title final, semi-official averages showed today.

Ward, putting in his first full season in the loop, won 25 games, and lost 9 for a .735 average, while Newsom, who was turned over to the Angels by the Chicago Cubs and yesterday drafted by the St. Louis Browns, won 30 games and lost 11 for a .732 percentage.

Newsom lost the leadership when he failed to win his 16th consecutive game, the last one he pitched, from San Francisco. Had he won he would have tied the league record as well. As it was, he meted out more bad news than any other hurler, collecting 220 strikeouts.

Third place resulted in a tie between two Portland hurlers, Rudy Kallio, a veteran who was picked up from a department store this spring, and Art Jacobs. They had 17 wins each against 7 defeats for a .708 average.

Important Gridiron Battles

In addition to Coach Sandberg, Puget Sound has Olson, Carlson, Lindquist, Nelson, Brunstad, Davidson, Hess, and possibly some other Scandinavians. Against that, place the cosmopolitan array suggested by the names: Balukovic, Oravec, McKerrrow, Rhoads, Versteeg, Vagt, Williams and Cannady. Ten nationalities against approximately one, if you become rash and put all Scandinavians in one group. But of course, Willamette has its Olson, too, to make an all-cosmopolitan eleven.

CURT COMMENTS

When the Willamette Bearcats and the Puget Sound Loggers get together in the Tacoma stadium a week from Friday night, it may look like a new World War with the Scandinavians arrayed against all the nationalities, including one large section torn from their own territory, but in all, of course, really be a pleasant get-together of Methodists.

But from what we are able to learn, the Scandinavians will give the rest of the nation plenty of trouble, what with six regulars and seven additional lettermen or experienced transfers, and a wealth of new material.

The line that battled Willamette's last year is almost intact; Gagnon at center, Springer and Hickox guards, Slater at tackle, Lindquist and Carlson ends; that leaves only a tackle job to be filled and Jenek, a letterman reserve, to fill it. In the backfield the smart Mr. Sterling is doing the quarterbacking, again, with Brooks and Davidson, who paired off at fullback doing it again this year. The elusive Mr. Ennis is also there for one halfback and a big boy from Ellensburg normal, Ingham, may be the other. Olson is a hefty tackle from Seattle and Hess is a 200-pound halfback from Minnesota, to mention only a couple of the promising freshmen.

Puget Sound will, by the way, journey to this vicinity this coming weekend, playing Albany college at Albany Saturday. We don't suppose Spec Keene will send any scouts over there. Not any more, anyway, than his entire team and the full coaching staff.

Among the 74 freshmen footballists turning out at U. of O. we note the names of Howard Adams, Barney Barnes, Chuck Reed, John DeHoff and Frank Cross, all listed as from Salem, though not all of those names are familiar to followers of Salem high sports.
