Concert Event Of Friday

RIDAY evening in Waller hall, Miss Clara Eness, newly appointed head of the plane de-partment of Willamette university, played a program from the classics that thrilled the large audience that had gathered for her opening performance.

For her first number Miss Eness chose the long Chaconne in D minor from Bach's Fourth Son-ata. Here her artistry was displayed in the fullest sense of the word With perfect poise and style and with notable ease, she was more than equal to the difficulties that the number presented. Her sureness of touch and depth of feeling gave importance to even the least of the passages, and her planissimo playing was especially ef-fective. Each whispered note drop-ped, delicate and distinct from the fingers of the artist.

The first number of the second group, the shorter Rondo, Opus 26 by Beethoven, was a per-fectly rounded bit of playing, distinctive and brilliant. The second number of this group, the exqui-site Fantasie in F minor, by Chopin, was played with deep poetic feeling. The sheer beauty of the music was the thing, and this was achieved simply, and without affection. In fact, it was noted throughout the program that the artist was always in the background, choosing rather to be the perfect medium of expression. She rose to the climaxes of the broader passages in a truly magnificent manner.

In the third group, the Sing- Here October 10 ing Fountain, by the modern German composer, Nieman, proved to be a favorite with the audience. It might be said here that this number produced the effect of in Tokio and made his first ap-"pearls dropping on marble in the pearance on the stage with the moonlight," so delicate and satis- famous Japanese soprano, Tamafying was the result. Fine contrasts were made by Miss Eness to give this number a high place on the program.

The last number on the program, La Campanella, by Liszt, which his coming program will offered by far the greatest problems in technique. However, the "Ito's presentations," comments artist was more than equal to the New York Herald-Tribune, demands made upon her, and her "are marvels of spontaneity, of great variety in tone color, from spiritual and physical accord.
