GAME OPERATIVES WILL BE DROPPED

Men Selected for axe Will Be Listed Soon; Salary Question Raised

Names of the five operatives of the game law enforcement division of the state police who are to be released in an effort to reduce the expenditures of state game funds within the decreasing receipts, will be announced within the next fortnight, Charles P. Pray, superintendent of state police, declared Thursday.

Pray said the release of these men would not interfere materially with the game activities of his department.

Pray said that the cost of operating the game law enforcement division had been reduced considerably during the current year but rather than lower salaries further, it had been proposed to eliminate five operatives from the staff. Pray said he had no serious objection to this procedure, provided it would help in ironing out the financial difficulties of the game commission.

Examination of the records of the secretary of state Thursday revealed that while the 1933 legislature had recommended a reduction in the salaries of all state officials and employees, increases of approximately $10 a month have been authorized for two officials. Officials here declared that these salary increases were in direct violation of the intent of the legislative recommendation.

Pray said his conference with members of the game commission here Tuesday was a pleasant one and that effort was made to place the disbursements and receipts of the commission on an even keel.

"I am confident," Pray continued, "that the reduction of the game law enforcement operatives from 35 to 30 will not impair the efficiency of the state police department to any great extent. I have given my promise that I will cooperate with the game commission in meeting its present financial difficulties."

Death of Wendel Poodle Recalls "Dog's Life"

WENDEL MANSION WENDEL AND TOBY.
With the closing of the Wendel mansion on New York's Fifth Avenue recently, it was revealed that Toby, the "richest dog in the world," is dead. Toby, a French poodle, occupied a prominent place in the nation's spotlight when his mistress, Ella Wendel, died in 1931, leaving an estate of $100,000,000. It was said Miss Wendel lavished more affection on the dog than she did upon any living human. Toby had his own silken bed, his own velvet-covered dining table and a plot of ground to play in, for which his mistress refused an offer of over a million dollars "because it was Toby's exercise place." Painlessly destroyed, the little dog now sleeps in the grounds of the Wendel Summer home at Irvington, N. Y., in accordance with the last wishes of his mistress.

PREVENTABLE FIRE LOSS HERE HEAVY

cause were reported on 41.19 per cent of the fire losses during the nine months period. Mr. Taylor pointed out. Other loss percentages, classified as to cause, in proportion to the total loss were: Explosion or sparks from combustion, 15.97 per cent; conflagration or exposure to hazards, 12.78; incendiary, 7.83; electricity or defective wiring, 5.9; hot ashes, coals or open fires, 5.84; hot grease, oil, tar and asphalt, 3.85. Numerous smaller losses were classified as caused by overheated or defective flues or stoves, sparks or roof, matches and careless smokers, petroleum and its products, hot metals, and open lights.

A large number of these losses could have been prevented were there provision in the city fire department for a fire prevention program based on regular and thorough inspections aimed at discovery and elimination of fire hazards. Dr. Olson declared. A fire prevention bureau with at least one full-time officer to keep records and make investigations was suggested by Dr. Olson.

The number of fires on which Mr. Taylor's report was based was 196. Losses were classified as follows:

Dwellings, outbuildings and contents, $738,773; barns and equipment, $225; mercantile, office, bank buildings, professional offices, contents and stocks, $18,070.88; textile and cleaning establishments, $171,264; hotels and other rooming places, $578,700; public garages and filling stations, $1085; restaurants, $244,32; motor vehicles, $118.76.

Residence fires topped the list in number at 65, with business and office structures next at 17, and the others varying from one to five each.

PRINCE IS HEAD OF SIAM'S REVOLUTION

BANGKOK, Siam, Oct. 12—(AP)—Boravech, a member of the royal family and former defense minister of Siam, is marching on Bangkok at the head of an armed force.

He seized Donmuang airdrome, the headquarters of the royal aeronautical service, today.

His armed rebellion involves the provincial forces of the nation.

All telegraph and railway services were paralyzed by the uprising. Press censorship immediately was enforced and martial law proclaimed.

Fighting started in a suburban post of Bangkok at 2 p. m.

The government immediately issued communiques expressing its intention of subduing the revolt and restoring peace and order. Foreign legations were assured of the safety of their residents and property.

The king and queen, who are at Huahin, expressed their regret that a member of the royal family should head the move against the present government.

U.S. MOVES AGAINST HOARDERS OF GOLD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP)—The justice department has instructed all district attorneys to proceed without delay to prosecute all who hold gold illegally in amounts greater than $1000. Later it plans to prosecute those hoarding more than $100.

Attorneys General Cummings made the announcement today, adding that district attorneys had been supplied with the text of the indictment drawn in the Campbell case in New York as a model for similar instruments in their own jurisdictions.

The number of persons known to be holding gold illegally in excess of $1000 was placed by the attorney general at 44. He said, however, there were many others and that the department was ferreting them out as rapidly as possible. There is more than $500,000,000 in gold coin, certificates and bullion still in circulation in the country.

VERDICT LACKING IN DOUGLAS CASE

DALLAS, Oct. 12—Judge Arlio G. Walker dismissed the jury in the case of Lee Douglas, charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, at 11:30 a. m. today, after it had failed to reach a verdict. This made the second straight hung jury in the Douglas cases this term. The Douglas case went to the jury yesterday afternoon. The jury deliberated all night.

Dayton Bailey, indicted on a statutory charge, will be retried Monday following the hung jury in the first case. The jury in the Bailey case retired at noon.

Khaki Shirt Leader Goes Out Window

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12—(AP)—Their ranks crumpled with disension as they impatiently awaited orders for a "march on Washington," the Khaki Shirts of America were routed today by police raids on three of their headquarters.

Twenty-seven men were arrested, two bushels of weapons were seized, and the last of the starch went out of the "shirts" when their organizer and self-styled "commander-in-chief" Art J. Smith, disappeared.

Police said Smith went out a window as his "generals," "colonels," and lesser aides sought to find out why the scheduled advance on the capital did not begin.

"The whole thing was a circus," said Joseph A. LeStrange, acting superintendent of police, "Smith kept setting back the time for departure so he could keep his sale of uniforms humming."

About 1,000 men assembled late yesterday, but less than 300 were on hand today, still awaiting the long delayed trucks which were to carry them to Washington.

'Maniac' Victim Of Canned Heat

A "maniac" reported as wandering along the Southern Pacific tracks just north of Mission street early last night was found by city police to be only a transient man, driven wild by imbibing "canned heat." Shouting and fighting his captors, the man, who was too drunk to give his name, was lodged in city jail for the night.

SHIPMENT OF DRIED PRUNES IS STARTED

Orders Slow and for Small Lots; Foreign Attitude On NRA one Reason

ment is not heavier at the start of the season is a feeling in foreign countries that the NRA will go burst in America, thus allowing foreign countries to buy its prunes here at prices under those quoted at present.

Fresh prune prices the past season doubled easily for an average over the 1932 market, with $17.50 per ton prevailing at the close of the season. Six dollars was the prevailing 1932 mark.

Foreign orders so far are for 40s to 60s. All orders to Germany are shipped in large 220-pound bags, which is the only way prunes can go into that country this year to avoid the excessive duties imposed. For South America, Norway and domestic and Italian trade, the dried fruit is shipped in boxes.

Estimates on the dried prune crop for the season vary, but it is said now the production will not run over 35 or 40 million pounds. Tonnage of fruit coming to the processing plants is not as great as individual growers estimated their crops would run, even barring the shrinkage due to weather conditions as the harvest first came on.

The Roseburg News-Review says this week that one of the largest dried prune orders being filled there so far is a Polish order for 32 tons, being packed from the Roseburg Paulus Brothers plant by a double grading shift. The paper goes on to say that Paulus shipped around 60 cars of green fruit to the Salem plant this year. Green fruit shipments save growers in the Umpqua section thousands of dollars this year.

Operations at a prune packing site afford an interesting sight at this time of the year, probably particularly so because of the enormous quantities of prunes on hand. For instance, here is the process that was witnessed yesterday at the Willamette Valley association plant:

As each truckload of prunes is brought to town from the drier, one sack is used as a sampler to determine basis of pay for the delivery. Prunes are then carried in a hopper to the third story of the warehouse, where they go through an oven-like machine where the grading is accomplished.

From the grader the fruit is conveyed down to the second story where it is either started en route for packing or placed in huge bins awaiting orders. If it is to be packed immediately, the grade desired is poured into a hopper or belt which carries the fruit through a steamer or boiler where live hot steam washes it.

Emerging from this a belt carries it drying at the same time and permitting women to pick out the cracked fruit, to the floor below. Here packing in boxes, and labeling are the final steps. Falling through the hopper between

Grid Deaths Fewer This Year, Found

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—(AP)—Lack of supervision, ignorance of the rules and poor medical attention today were blamed by the presidents of the National Collegiate Athletic association and the football coaches for the deaths from the game, which already total 10 for the season.

Major John L. Griffiths, athletic commissioner of the western conference and president of the N. C. A. A. said an investigation by his organization had shown those three factors to be responsible for the majority of the deaths and that a campaign to "eliminate these faults" was being conducted.

A survey of the fatal injuries tend to show the efforts of the coaches and of the N. C. A. A. are bringing some results. Compared with the total of 10 deaths this year, in 1932 on October 12 a total of 12 had been reported and three of them college players as against only one college player this year.

On October 12 of 1932 three college players, five sandlot and four high school students had suffered fatal injuries. This year the list is divided as follows: one college freshman, six high school players, three sandlot players.

Not one of the injuries this year was suffered in a regular game. Two resulted from blood poisoning, one of the cases developed from a lacerated knee which, the report to the Association Press said, "was not considered serious until four days later."
