BRIGHT SPOTS SEEN IN CHERRY PICTURE

Economic Study of Cherry Industry Published by OSC Professors

If all the fruit grown in Oregon were represented proportionately in a huge pie, the wedge of this pie filled with cherries would not be large—in fact only about one-20th of the total. But if all the non-bearing fruit trees in Oregon were represented by a similar pie, with each fruit assigned its proportion, the piece of cherry pie would then be nearly a fourth of the whole.

This is the most serious situation confronting the Oregon cherry growers, as seen by Dr. Milton N. Nelson and George L. Sulerud of Oregon State college who recently completed an economic study of the Oregon cherry industry. Their findings have been published in a 96-page bulletin put out by the Oregon experiment station, entitled, "An Economic Study of the Cherry Industry with Special Reference to Oregon."

Some bright spots are seen in the cherry picture, though not bright enough to overcome the depressing influences of the last few years on this major industry. The Pacific coast states have a virtual monopoly on the commercial sweet cherry production of the country. Oregon supplies about a quarter of the total from the Pacific coast, and the investigators found that fresh shipments from this state outsold those from neighboring states on the New York markets.

Another bright spot that has served to pull some Oregon cherry districts out of the red during recent bad years is the development of the brined cherry trade to supply the eastern manufacturers of maraschino and glace cherries who formerly looked to Europe for this stock. Development of a practical commercial process by the Oregon experiment station for processing these cherries, coupled with a high tariff, has greatly stimulated the barreling of cherries in Oregon.

Wishbone Breaks And Car Uproots Many Fence Posts

PIONEER, Oct. 17—Saturday, while Clarence Dornhecker and sons of Albany were on their way here to visit, the wishbone of their car gave away as they started to drive up a hill and the steering was affected, causing the car to run off the road and turn over. They knocked out several fence posts which they replaced.

No one was hurt with exceptions of slight scratches and the car was undamaged except the wishbone. Mrs. Dornhecker and daughter who were visiting at the Curtiss home here returned home with them Sunday.

Grain Feels Federal Hand

MART CLOSE STRONG AT DAY'S TOP LIMIT

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.(AP)—Uncle Sam's powerful right arm reached out late today from Washington and in less than one hour jerked wheat prices skyward 7⅜ cents a bushel. As a result all other grains went skyrocketing, rye 9½ cents.

The sensational flight of grain values followed official announcement that the United States government was buying wheat on a large scale for emergency food relief purposes. Prior to this announcement, the grain markets were fluctuating violently, and had smashed the season's low price records for almost without exception every future delivery on the board of trade list of staples.

Rising prices for wheat and other grains as computed above were from the day's bottom figures, and were stopped only because the upsweep had reached the limit allowed for any overnight period, an average net gain of 5 cents a bushel for wheat, 4 cents for corn and 3 cents for oats. The finish for each grain was strong at the day's top.

Today's closing quotations:

Wheat — December 74⅞; May 78⅞; July 77.

Corn — December 41⅞; May 48¼; July 50.

FARRS MOVE TO ALBANY

TALBOT, Oct. 17 — Mr. and Mrs. Richard Farr have moved from their home near Sidney to a place near Albany. They expect to go in the chicken business there.

CENT INCREASE ON EGGS OCCURS HERE

Eggs looked upward again yesterday, with a cent boost effective on all grades. This makes the following local quotations: Extras 26 cents, standards 23 cents and mediums 22 cents.

Otherwise local markets were unchanged.

Reviewing the past week's activity in grains and feeds, the Market News Service says: The corn crop is now placed at 2,291,000,000 bushels, as against 2,876,000,000 bushels last year. Market stocks are at record highs for this season of the year, totaling 60,000,000 bushels as against 19,000,000 last year.

The lowest oat yield on record, with an average of only 18.9 bushels per acre and production this year of 699,000,000 bushels — about half the 1932 crop — is also reported.

Barley receipts at Portland to October 13 were 148 cars, compared to 71 cars for the same period last year.

FEDERAL BUTTER ACTION QUESTIONED

PORTLAND, Oct. 17. (AP)—Market on cube butter was unchanged during the week's initial session of the produce exchange. On the open market there was a similar situation.

Holders of butter in store were not a unit in their ideas as to government participation in the market. This was due to the fact that most of them were in a position where they will of necessity be forced to take quite a loss if they sell to the government on the basis of current values.

Market for eggs was holding about steady with some strength in spots of top notch goods. Storage stuff was alone easy with especially slow trade in undergrades which were being pushed by outsiders.

Conditions within the live hen market were about steady and practically unchanged as to price for the day. Springer stuff continued its recent weakness.

With recent sharp shading of livestock prices together with importations of dressed pork from the inland empire, country hog prices here were showing a slight reduction. Market for country killed calves continued firm and at late price advances while lambs were fully steady and tops moving 10-10½c pound generally. Ewes were weak, especially the junk.

Onion market was a quiet affair locally. So slow were offerings from Yakima that much of the recent trade in Oregon stock has been moved into that commodity inasmuch as local growers were holding firm for about as much as Yakima was selling to retailers here.

Celery demand from the southwest was gaining but sales were still mostly $1 f.o.b. cars, around 8c pound.
