

A Grand Slam: Can You Make One in Tournament Play?

You'll never really have a test of your bridge skill until you try your finesses at a bridge tournament. Here play is on duplicate boards, against players as experienced in the game as you are. The results are accurate and highly interesting. Tuesday, November 14 is your chance.

Scores of Salem people are enjoying these weekly tournaments. Each one is complete itself. Hands that you play are either set before the match or dealt by the players. Liberal prizes each night. A grand prize at the end if you are near the top of the competition.

Mrs. William H. Quinn, conductor of the tournament for The Oregon Statesman, is an expert in her line. She is a graduate Culbertson associate and the classes she conducts each Tuesday are highly helpful. Beginners 2 p. m.; advanced students 3:30 p. m. All at the Marion hotel.

Prescriptions
The Papyrus Ebers is one of the oldest medical books and contains many prescriptions—dates back to the time of Moses—and was written in Hieratic characters, closely rolled in a scroll. This reveals the necessity and convenience of our modern prescriptions.
