

WOODIN IS OUT, AS FINANCE HEAD

Roosevelt Refuses Woodin's Resignation; Grants Him Leave

Well became governor of New York. Then the now chief executive made him chairman of a committee appointed to guide him on the legislation.

After assuming office in Albany, Mr. Roosevelt chose Morgenthau as his conservation commissioner. Throughout the 1932 campaign, he was the principal Roosevelt agricultural advisor.

Late in the day, Morgenthau received newspapermen at his office in the Farm Credit Administration. Smiling and much at ease, he parried questions on monetary policy except to declare himself unwaveringly in support of the president's gold program.

He said he hoped to take to the treasury with him, Herbert Gaston, former night city editor of the old New York World, who has been with him since that newspaper ceased publication. When Morgenthau was conservation commissioner Gaston was deputy commissioner. In the Farm Credit Administration he served as Morgenthau's personal assistant.

Woodin, who came to the treasury at the effect of the administration, had charge of the department through the banking crisis. His friendship with Mr. Roosevelt, always deeply personal, was even further cemented during this period.

Woodin's view on inflation was well known. He once answered a question as to his view of the problem by quietly and smilingly drawing from a vest pocket a five billion mark note from the post war days in Germany.

SURGEON'S GENIUS MAY SAVE GIRL

PORTLAND, Nov. 15. (AP)—The grateful smiles of a Montana girl as she left the operating room of a hospital here, assured of complete recovery from an illness that had seemingly visited her for life, shaped a monument today to the genius of a Portland surgeon.

Two years ago while Dr. Robert C. Coffey, internationally known surgeon, was in Butte, Mont., he became interested in the case of Miss Vileta Stabler of that city, suffering from what she had thought to be an incurable malady. Dr. Coffey said he believed he could cure her by the performance of an operation which he originated, and he promised the girl that if she would come to Portland, he would perform the operation without charge.

While she was preparing to enter the hospital last week, Dr. Coffey was killed in an airplane accident near Portland. Today the operation was performed by Dr. Paul E. Spangler, who had studied under Dr. Coffey. The operation was pronounced "very successful." Miss Stabler, the doctor assured her, will recover.

NRA CHIEF FINDS COMPLIANCE BAD

try and supplementary compact. Officials said that in the revision many of organized labor's objections would be met and others would be left for action after public discussion.

Other NRA developments of the day: Virtual decision at NRA that the code for newspapers would contain a clause to protect the press against any infringement of its constitutional right to freedom of expression.

Further postponement of final decision as to how the government would deal with Henry Ford in the light of rulings by J. R. McCarr, the comptroller general, that wherever the Ford company is low bidder for government contracts it should be given the business despite Ford's failure to sign the automobile code.

Arkansas Rail Wreck Blamed On Itinerants

BOONEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 15. (AP)—Two itinerants tonight were the objects of search by special agents of the Rock Island railroad after the derailment of the crack Memphis-to-California passenger train near the station here early today.

The injured were Engineer W. E. McGoffin of Little Rock; Mrs. James Gwyn of Amarillo, Tex., and Bruin Goodwin, negro brakeman.

Officers were certain the derailment was intentional and it was learned two transients were seen near the tracks shortly before it occurred.

BABIES FEARED BEND

BEND, Ore., Nov. 15. (AP)—Fear of rabid dogs spread through the west side of Bend today with a warning by police that Bobby Kribs, small son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Kribs of Bend, was attacked by an apparently rabid animal.

Unemployed Will Present Program To Legislature

Officials of the Multnomah County Federation of Unemployed were here Wednesday arranging for a state-wide conference of unemployed in Salem on Monday, November 27.

Officials will be requested to call a joint meeting of the house and senate that afternoon when spokesmen for the unemployed will present their legislative program. Richard Lovelace, in charge of the conference, estimated that between 700 and 800 delegates would attend. He said the legislative program had not yet been completed.

A similar conference of unemployed was held in Salem during the last regular legislative session.

FARMHOUSE FIRE ENDANGERS THREE

RICKEY, Nov. 15.—The three small children of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Miller, who lived on the Claude White place in this district, narrowly escaped cremation when the house caught fire early this morning while the parents were outside. Before Mr. and Mrs. Miller could rescue the children, the baby was badly burned about the face.

The alarm was given by one of the children, who, awakened by the smoke, ran on to the porch and called its parents.

The one and one-half story house and contents were destroyed. No insurance was carried on the contents.

ELLIOTT COMING TO TALK WATER DEAL

When word came that Salem was seeking a direct FWA advance for purchase of the plant the water company withheld its proposition which was understood to be on a bond exchange basis.

With the coming of Elliott it is expected that definite figures may be arrived at should the loan from PWA not materialize.

C. C. Hockley, state engineer for PWA, visited Salem yesterday. His trip was primarily to check up on local projects such as the waterworks to see how near they were to putting men to work. He conferred with the mayor, city attorney and members of the utilities committee of the council. He could give no information as to what view Washington would take toward the new application.

Hockley also discussed the matter of a public dock with members of the chamber of commerce. He called on Senator McNary, Congressman Mott and conferred with William Elmsig respecting the building program which the state has outlined.

Walter E. Keyes, counsel for the water concern here, announced that he planned to appeal Judge L. G. Lowelling's adverse decision of Monday to the state supreme court. Lowelling sustained a demurrer by the city to the water concern's answer in the bond test case the city brought in court. Keyes said if he was not sustained in the higher court, litigation would probably be ended in the Oregon courts. He indicated he might then carry the bond test into federal court in Portland.
