

"Gay Nineties" Revived at Theatres

"I'M NO ANGEL" IS ELSINORE FEATURE

Mae West, who "scorched" the nation with her first starring picture, "She Done Him Wrong," became a national idol, and then took Paris by storm and revolutionized feminine styles, comes back to town today with her new picture, "I'm No Angel," which opens for a four day run at the Elsinore theatre.

Mae West is even more colorful as Tina, the million dollar beauty, who tames savage lions and men with equal facility, than she was as the diamond bedecked Lady Lou.

Her supporting cast is well chosen. Cary Grant, who was her "tall, dark and handsome" in "She Done Him Wrong," plays a similar role in the new attraction.

UPTOWN NEW YORK SHOWING AT STATE

The pattern that served Vina Delmar so successfully in "Bad Girl" is again prominent in the writing of this gifted novelist's latest story to be transferred to the screen.

In "Uptown New York," now playing at the State theatre, Mrs. Delmar effectively proves her mastery of character and situation delineation. With a cast headed by Jack Oakie, Shirley Grey and Leon Waycoff, "Uptown New York" merits consideration as an important motion picture, entertaining to any audience, with a human interest quality that is unmistakable.

Oakie comes through with a performance that is both satisfying and surprising. Several of his scenes are gripping in their sincerity.

Grand 'O Show Football Films

Manager Schmidt of the Grand theatre announced yesterday that he would show pictures of the University of Oregon-Southern California football game at the theatre tonight. The pictures are coming north by plane and may reach here in time for the matinee performance.

Lee TRACY THE NUISANCE

Mae West doesn't look like an angel in this hat and she proves that she isn't in her latest picture playing at the Elsinore.

Wally Beery and Jackie Cooper have leading roles in "The Bowery" colorful drama of New York's toughest district in the "gay nineties," now at the Grand.

Scene from "Uptown New York" with Jack Oakie which is showing at the State. Oakie is said to reach dramatic heights in this story by Vina Delmar.

Two of the Northwest Mounted Police company which appears on the stage of the Hollywood theatre today in a unique performance. The screen attraction is Lee Tracy in "The Nuisance."

'THE BOWERY' NOW AT GRAND THEATRE

The wicked eighties and the gay nineties may have been just that, but time is a joker and in this year, 1933 A. D., the days of Chuck Connors, Steve Brodie, John L. Sullivan and Carrie Nation, with their honky tonks, their spectacular bridge jumps, their bare-knuckle fights and their saloon wrecking, are deliciously and frequently riotously funny.

So is "The Bowery," now showing at the Grand theatre, which reincarnates these famous characters.

Wallace Beery and George Raft play Connors and Brodie respectively, and Jackie Cooper, completing the star triumvirate, is Swipes, a newsie who lives with Church.

The feminine leads are handled by Fay Wray and Pert Kelton.

"The Nuisance" With Lee Tracy Hollywood Film

Lee Tracy's fast-talking comedy has a remarkable new medium in "The Nuisance," current feature at the Hollywood theatre, wherein he plays a debonaire shyster lawyer, an ambulance - chasing charlatan who harries a street car company with damage suits on cleverly faked evidence and injuries, dodges the traps of the Bar association, and incidentally gives his audience an amazing insight on one of the legal rackets of the day.

Madge Evans scores as the pretty detective, Frank Morgan gives an excellent characterization as the old quack doctor, and Charles Butterworth is hilarious as the specialist in "flopping" before autos to collect damages.

COOPER AND WRAY SHOW AT CAPITOL

Gary Cooper, Fay Wray and Frances Fuller, a newcomer to the screen from the stage, have the leading roles in "One Sunday Afternoon," now at the Capitol theatre.

The story revolves around Cooper, who, as Dr. Biff Grimes, marries one girl after losing the one he loves to another man. For years he is saddened by the memory of his lost love while his faithful wife bears patiently with him. However, when the lost sweetheart returns to town, he realizes by her vulgar, uncouth appearance that she has been but an illusion.

"One Sunday Afternoon" is recommended unconditionally for children as well as adults.

Radio-Stage Opportunity Contest Offered Here by Elsinore; Prizes Hung Up

Has Salem a match in popular favor to Bing Crosby and Eddie Peabody, famous entertainers who have acquired radio, stage and screen glory? Carl Porter, manager of the Elsinore theatre is determined to find out through the medium of the big McKesson Drug company's radio and stage opportunity contest sponsored by them to discover new talent.

The contest is open to anyone and everyone by simply filling out the entry blank to be published in this paper. It will be climaxed with a big elimination contest at the Elsinore theatre on December 6, 1933. Preliminary tests of radio and stage material will start at the Elsinore theatre on Wednesday and Thursday nights, November 22 and 23 at 9 p. m. Next preliminary will be held Wednesday, November 29 at 9 p. m.

Valuable rewards await the winners. Salem victors will be heard over KEX following the city finals here, at which time NBC officials will select the best of the three finalists. This one will compete in December with winners from over 40 Oregon and Washington cities on the stage of the Broadway theatre in Portland.
