

PORTLAND LODGERS EXEMPLIFY DEGREES

For Maccabees at Mill City; Accident Occurs Due To Heavy Fog

MILL CITY, Nov. 22. — Seventy-five members of tents No. 1 and No. 101, and the Rosarian five of the Maccabees of Portland drove to Mill City Saturday night and exemplified the work of the order for the members of Santiam tent and five, as well as a large number of invited friends. An 8 o'clock turkey dinner with all the "fixin's" was served to 160 visitors.

Two cars of the Portland visitors featured in an accident near Woodburn, delaying the Portlanders' arrival. The accident was caused by the dense fog but luckily no one was injured seriously. The lady commander of the Rosarians was the most seriously injured, one of her hands being hurt.

The championship drill teams of tent No. 1 and the ladies' Rosarian patrol team of five No. 101, put on several fine stunts and a class of seven was initiated into the order by the drill team and officers of tent No. 1 for the Santiam tent No. 1.

Addresses were made by state commander, D. V. Chapman, as well as several others of the Portland visitors. August Youngberg, commander of Santiam tent also made a short talk. Following the close of the meeting dancing was enjoyed for a couple of hours.

Varieties Success

The variety show presented by the students of the high school was greeted with a full house at Hammond hall Friday night. This is the first of a series of entertainments by the students.

The show took the name of "Scenes from the History of Mill City," with scenery being adopted from "The First Settlers," showing Indians and their homes; "Two Years Later" which depicted the growing community, "Six Months Later," with scenes portraying a wedding, new wares and a battery dance, "Prosperous and Progressive Mill City," "School Days in the Nineties," and "A Photograph Gallery."

CHRISTMAS SEAL IS TALK TOPIC TODAY

Today the first speakers explaining the Christmas seal campaign will talk at meetings of various clubs during the afternoon and evening. The sale opens December 1 and continues until Christmas.

These talks will be an effort on the part of the publicity and education chairmen to give an understanding to the public of the local, state and national programs financed by Christmas seals, and a general appreciation of the increasing need for health conservation and prevention of tuberculosis.

Rev. S. Darlow Johnson, president of the Marion County Public Health association, will speak before the Lions club this noon. Mrs. Belle Niles Brown will be a Zonta club speaker and Mrs. William Jones will appear at the meeting of Town and Gown club on the university campus. Rev. Johnson also will speak at the dinner meeting of the Fraternis club tonight.

of them in the United States. One of the major experiments was by Henry Ford, near Detroit.

However, warm water retting, as we have it, cuts down the time from two or three weeks to about four days. That is a big advantage; a great economy in cost of equipment and operation.

But there is no substitute, yet, for drying the reeds in the sun. This is no saying there may not be. Sunshine is required, so far, for retaining the resiliency, the spinability, of the fiber — what men in the industry call the "life." Dried artificially, the fiber is brash, unsuitable for manufacturing the finer fabrics.

This series might be indefinitely extended, with items that should and will be of increasing interest in this flax and linen center.

Belfast has an institute (an educational institution) devoted to the study of the flax and linen industries, with a large student body. Salem will one day have such a school.

As compared with other industries, workers with flax fiber receive a good average of wages. In the higher departments, they get large salaries.

The Barbours, for generations engaged in the industry, make up one of the wealthiest families in the world. They control our Miles linen mill in Salem, making thread and twine, and fish nets from the twine.

The highest reaches of the industry, fashioning laces and wall coverings, etc., run into values that are fabulous.

Again, why not double the population of Salem in five years or less?

North Howell Harvest Fair Friday Night

NORTH HOWELL, Nov. 22. — The annual corn club exhibit for the 4-H club boys and the harvest home fair which is annually sponsored by the North Howell grange, will be held jointly next Friday night at the North Howell grange hall.

The Salem chamber of commerce will provide the evening's program with the Haywire orchestra, and dinner will be served cafeteria style from 6 to 8 o'clock.

An antique display will be featured. Miss Ellen Vinton will have charge of the flower booth. Miss Caroline Bump, the fruit, and Miss Ida May Summers, the grain. Raymond Jefferson, as leader of the 4-H corn club, will arrange that special exhibit.

Dinner is under direction of the home economics committee, Daisy Bump, Mattie Vinton, Lulu Wiesner, Josephine Stevens and Jessie Coomer.

Proceeds from the entertainment will be applied on the piano recently purchased. Everyone is urged to attend and bring exhibits.

Realty Men Will Talk Legislature At Meet Tonight

Real estate men and women from all over the Willamette valley will gather at the chamber of commerce here tonight at 7:30 o'clock to discuss proposed legislation of interest to their business.

E. A. Miller, president of the Salem Realtors, will preside. Some consideration will also be given the Oregon association of Real Estate boards, a new organization. All real estate agents interested are being urged to attend.

U. B. WORKERS TO ATTEND INSTITUTE

An institute for all workers of the United Brethren church board of Christian education will be held this afternoon and tonight at the Englewood United Brethren church here. Among important speakers will be Bishop Ira D. Warner of Portland, Rev. F. C. Roscoe of Portland, superintendent of the Oregon conference who recently came from Montana, Rev. M. Wetty of Seattle, in charge of all young people's work, and Rev. C. L. A. and Shary of Everett, Wash., director of Christian education for the conference.

Bishop Warner will speak both afternoon and night, and Rev. R. V. Wilson, Englewood pastor, will give reports on the national adult convention at Dayton, Ohio, from which he returned yesterday.

General sessions will be held at 1:30 and 7:30 o'clock, and three workers' sessions will be held at mid-afternoon, these to be for the Women's Missionary society, the children's department and adults. The institute supper will be served by women of the Englewood church in the church basement at 6:30 o'clock.

Workers and ministers will attend from Tillamook, Hopewell, Hazel Green and Salem.

Dairy Co-op Will Meet Here Friday

A special meeting of the Dairy Cooperative association will be held at the chamber of commerce Friday night at 8 o'clock. Manager R. W. Clark announced yesterday. Colonel A. E. Clarke of Portland and W. W. Henry, manager of the Portland offices of the Dairy Co-op, will be the speakers.

CITY TO TEST NEW PEDESTRIAN LANES

The city will spend $256 for the laying of a test series of white discs of a metallic alloy on four downtown intersections to test out use of the devices to mark off pedestrian lanes in place of painted lines. Alderman V. E. Kuhn, street committee chairman for the city council, stated yesterday. The first of the plates were set in the pavements on two sides of the Commercial-State street intersection. Other intersections to be lined off in this manner for the present will be Court and Commercial, Court and Liberty, State and Liberty.

While the first cost is considerable, the devices will pay for themselves inside of three years in the paint and labor saved, Kuhn declared. In the past the city has had the pedestrian lanes painted twice and sometimes three times a year at a cost of $12.50 per job per intersection for two coats of paint.

Manufacturers of the discs have promised to install larger markers for parking spaces on one city block free of charge to demonstrate their usefulness, Kuhn added.

Series of Mild Whooping Cough Cases Reported

Evidences of a wave of whooping cough running through South Salem and the Hayesville district are being reported daily by Marion county health nurses, according to Dr. Vernon A. Douglas, county health officer. The cases appear to be of such mildness, however, that they are not recognized by parents in time to prevent such a spread of the disease. Dr. Douglas warned parents to keep their children home when the latter suffered from coughs which resisted ordinary treatment. The disease spreads rapidly because it is difficult to diagnose, he said, and makes headway because it is not isolated from other school children in particular.
