

COUNTY SALARY ITEM RESTORED

Pay on 1932 Basis Agreed Upon as Final Budget Is Given Approval

get, which the restoration of salaries means, is but $4000 which is a slight amount when you take into consideration you are deciding upon a budget of about $700,000. The taxpayer who would be become insolvent because of this additional expense will be insolvent anyhow. This will make no difference.

"Fourth, the cost of operation of the Marion county government, in comparison with the costs of other counties, is extremely low. There are counties in the state where salaries, after a 20 per cent reduction, still are in excess of those paid in Marion county. Although the NRA, as yet, does not affect the county government, it will soon and with these clerks and deputies working the long hours necessary, you should increase their salaries far above the 10 per cent reduction.

"Fifth, the salaries of clerks and deputies in Marion county are far below the salaries paid in other industries for the same type of work. The executive of a store or bank, does not ask his employees, who handle a large amount of money, as these do, to work for any such salary. We cannot expect to keep people continually underpaid and expect efficient government.

"Sixth, Marion county, with its present fine financial standing, is not in position to bear down on workers. Last August a survey revealed the payroll increase for Marion county industries was $85,000 monthly. This upward trend is being reported in all lines of business and salaries of county workers certainly should be restored at least to the 1932 level.

The decision to eliminate the fund for old age pensions came late in the meeting when it was reported the original estimate of $195,000 probably would be far too low. Reports indicate there are 500 residents of Marion county, eligible for the old age pensions. Jackson county, with a far less number of eligible residents, is appropriating $150,000, it was reported by Judge Day.

"It is very probable that if we are forced to pay the old age pensions in Marion county, the account will exceed $200,000," Chairman Ray J. Glatt of Woodburn, said. "I am not in favor of placing any fund in the budget for it. We do it is an admission that Marion county is financially able to pay the bill."

The committee had been notified that it was possible to place a nominal sum in the budget for the account and if the present legislature does not defer the bill, the funds could be used in some other account.

Newell Williams, chief deputy sheriff, asked the committee to return the budget figure of $3000 for care of prisoners to $4000, because of increasing crime.

"Crime has increased to such an extent in the last six months, that we will be unable to feed all our prisoners next year on this allowance," Deputy Williams said. "These men have to be fed and if they are given good food, they are more amenable. We are attempting to keep the costs down by moving the prisoners through the courts as rapidly as possible."

The budget committee this year includes, in addition to Chairman Glatt, Secretary M. G. Gunderson of Silverton, and E. L. Weider of Salem, and three members of the county court, Judge J. C. Stegmond and Commissioners Roy S. Melson and J. E. Smith.

EACH BRANCH BANK TO REPORT IS PLAN

All branch banks whether state or national, operating in Oregon, would be required to make regular reports of the assets and liabilities of each branch as a unit, under the terms of a bill introduced late Tuesday in the senate by Senator John Goss of Coos county.

The Goss bill would also require the banks to show in their annual statements the total amount of deposits secured and held in the county where the bank is operating together with the loans outstanding in that area. The reports would be made at the same time as similar reports are now required for banks operating under state charters.

The bill provides a penalty of $25 a day on each branch for each day of delay in publishing in a legal newspaper the required statement and furnishing the same to the state bank superintendent.

Senator Goss said his bill was proposed under the authority retained by the state and accepted to allow branch banking only on terms acceptable to each commonwealth.

Growth in Union Memberships is Eyed by Council

A rapid growth in membership of local unions, due in large part to NRA provisions, was reported at last night's meeting of the Salem central labor council. It was estimated the aggregate membership in all the unions here has risen at least 600 within the last few months.

One result of this growth is that the rooms in Union hall are proving inadequate. The council considered means of enlarging its quarters in temporary fashion with a decision as to the final move left over until next year.

project, I have received supplemental information with respect to this proposed development from Major-General E. M. Markham, chief of the United States army engineers, which I believe you should have before you for consideration in conjunction with the power measures referred to your committee," the letter read.

"Confirming my special message to the effect that although the Bonneville project was authorized at an estimated cost of $31,000,000, only $20,000,000 has been allocated and this amount is not sufficient to develop any power whatsoever."

Figures contained in governor Meier's letter showed that Markham has segregated the estimated cost of the present development as follows:

Dam and miscellaneous items	$20,089,000
Navigation locks	1,880,000
Six units of power house foundation and two units of power plant	9,050,000
Total	$31,000,000

company and the California Water Service company, the latter paying the bulk of Elliott's annual income for personal service. The latter company pays him $15,958.68 each year; the rest of his $18,000 comes from the Oregon-Washington concern.

The president's salary is prorated among each operating unit on the basis of business done. The Salem plant bears $60.54 monthly as Elliott's salary costs or $726.48. The local manager is paid $3900 for his services in Salem.

The local concern, investigation here yesterday showed paid $4700 as holding company fees in 1931. No charge for this service is included in the local concern's budget for 1934.

"I need stockings I need underwear"

WHAT woman ever has enough of either? . . . And especially now?

Things have come to such a pass in the wardrobes of American Womanhood that a girl never knows (what with runs, and such) whether she's going to have a decent pair of stockings to put on.

And it isn't only a question of things being worn out, or not enough of them. If you want to achieve the new sheath silhouette, you've got to wear the kind of foundation garment that goes with it. And whether or not your stockings are in good condition, they're probably not the right color for this season's styles.

Something really ought to be done about it. And now is the time to do it. For hosiery and underwear prices will probably never again be so low as they are today.

You can easily see why. The past four years have been very hard ones in the hosiery and underwear industries. Prices have gone down and down until there wasn't a decent living in it for anyone concerned. Wages sank out of sight. Men were laid off. It got to the point where there was no real value left — either for the hosiery and underwear, or for the work of the people who made them.

That is what the NRA codes are designed to correct. This Government believes that the laborer is worthy of his hire . . . and that his hire should yield him enough to live on. It has set its hand to the task of reestablishing lost values . . . of making everything and everybody worth something once again.

That process is well under way. Already since February, payrolls in the hosiery and underwear industries have increased 37%. Materials have kept pace. Silk is up 55%. Hosiery and underwear have started to regain their true values.

Obviously, retail prices will have to go up. But now . . . for a little while, you can still get hosiery and underwear of late design which are priced amazingly low. That is, if you act quickly. For these supplies are strictly limited. Now is the time to buy.
