MASS MEETING OF TRUCKMEN SLATED

Situation on Change in Law Will Be Discussed Here Wednesday Night

With legislative progress to date in changing the motor transportation act unsatisfactory to many members of the Oregon Truck Owners and Farmers' Protective association, a mass meeting of that organization has been called for Wednesday night, when developments to date will be outlined for the truck owners. The mass session will be held at 8 p. m. at the chamber of commerce, A. C. Anderson, president, a spokesman.

Anderson said last night his organization which originated the fight against the bus and truck bill has gained only two changes, elimination of bonds and deposits, through HB 86, which yesterday was referred back to the roads and highway committee after many amendments had been proposed. He declares HB 86 is unsatisfactory especially in that it places wood haulers in the special carrier class, thereby eliminating them from doing general transfer work.

This bill, 86, would also require the contract carrier to mail a copy of signed contract, stating rates, fares and charges, to the utility commissioner, who might or might not approve, Anderson says, adding:

"This is further impractical as thousands of trucks in the state would have to sign contracts before they could make a haul—against whom the cards have been stacked," Anderson avows. The truckmen hope to have from the legislature by Wednesday a definite bill, which may be brought before their united group for approval. "We hope to get the bus and truck bill amended so continued fights will not be necessary, and want a simple method of taxation for all trucks that will afford plenty of funds to the state highway commission," Anderson says.

The organization has so far remained silent on efforts of other trucking groups in the state to start an initiative move against the motor transportation act and proposed amendments.

Amendments made to HB 86 are beneficial to the larger dealers, but not to the small carrier against whom the cards have been stacked," Anderson avows. ## TRAGEDY VICTIM'S FUNERAL IS HELD

Funeral services for Dorothy Jean Gilchrist, age 8, who was fatally burned Saturday morning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Gilchrist of Wheatland, were held Monday afternoon at the Terwilliger funeral home here. Rev. Guy Drill of the First Christian church officiating.

Dorothy Jean was playing about the fireplace at the home Saturday about 8 o'clock when a runaway sack costume which she had worn at a Thanksgiving program caught fire. Her screams quickly drew attention of her mother, who was in another room, but by the time Mrs. Gilchrist arrived the child was ablaze from head to toe.

The little girl was rushed to the hospital here, but injuries were too severe and she died shortly after the noon hour. She was conscious nearly to the last. Besides the father and mother, who came here 10 months ago from Nebraska, Dorothy leaves a younger sister, May, and her grandmother, Mrs. Ike Vincent of Salem, and grandparents in Nebraska, where she was born nearly six and a half years ago.

IMPROVEMENT OF RIVER HOPED FOR

Mott Discusses Situations At Washington Which Interest Salem

Optimism that improvement of the Willamette river will eventually be accomplished was expressed by Congressman James W. Mott, in an address to the Salem chamber of commerce Monday noon. Mott devoted his remarks largely to local situations, chief of which he says will be the congressional battle over the status of the Stanfield O. and C. land grant bill.

The congressman, member of the public lands committee which will have considerable to say over the O. and C. bill, declared he had already done his best to line up support that will hold with him on the proposed amendment that payment of the land grant funds to counties be definitely considered an appropriation out of the federal treasury, rather than contingent upon condition of the O. and C. fund itself.

This question was in dispute the past year, and as a result Oregon counties were among the heavy sufferers.

Present the Willamette slack water improvement project, Mott explained decisions in this matter rest in the end almost entirely with the board of army engineers. While two strong attempts have been made for the project, and turned down, Mott says it will be merely a matter of time when new faces on the board of army engineers will sanction the project. Mott sketched the fight up to save the Chemawa Indian school for Salem, and declared he

Pianists to Aid In Presentation Of 'The Messiah'

Two pianists, both well known to Salem, will aid in presentation of the Messiah here Friday, December 15, announces the director, Prof. Loren Davidson. They will be Miss Lois Plummer, organist for the First Christian church, and Miss Marjorie O'Dell, a graduate of piano at Willamette university last spring.

Both Parents of Mrs. Huntington Called by Death

Death came within 18 hours for both of the parents of Mrs. C. A. Huntington, wife of the representative from Lane county and sister-in-law of Hollis Huntington of Salem. The mother, Mrs. Florence Neel Hills passed away Friday and the father, Jasper B. Hills, died at his home in Oakridge on Saturday. Mr. Hills had lived in Lane county all his life and was famed as a guide and hunter. The community of Jasper was named for him.

Mrs. Huntington was called from Salem last week on word of the illness of her mother. Funeral services for both were held Monday in the Methodist Episcopal church at Springfield, with interment in Mount Vernon cemetery. Both Representative and Mrs. Huntington attended the funeral. Eight of the nine children born to Mr. and Mrs. Hills survive.
