BULLETIN DEVOTED TO BERRY CRINKLE
The first publication of a bulletin dealing with the now widespread crinkle disease of strawberries has just been issued by the Oregon State college experiment station as written by Dr. S. M. Zeller, plant pathologist. Though noticed first in 1925 and not considered of major importance until more than five years later, this disease has caused the gradual degeneration of the Marshall variety of berry and is serious on others as well, the bulletin states.

The disease is a mosaic-like trouble appearing first as yellowish pin-point spots on the leaves, which soon become crinkled and streaked with yellowish tissue. Affected plants yield less than those produced by healthy plants. The disease is carried by the strawberry leaf louse and once established spreads to all runner plants from that diseased stalk. Methods of developing practically disease-free planting stock by serial propagation are described in the new bulletin which may be had free from the college or any county agent.

New Tomato is Developed for Oregon Gardens

The Pritchard tomato is a new variety developed by the United States department of agriculture which is worthy of a place in Oregon gardens, according to a new circular of information concerning it just issued by A. G. B. Bouquet, professor of vegetable crops at O. S. C.
This variety is a moderately heavy productive variety, ripening soon after Earliana, bearing scarlet fruit that is medium large, smooth, globular and solid. The plant is a vigorous grower but "self-topping." It was formerly called Scarlet Topper, but the name has been changed to that of its originator, F. J. Pritchard, who died recently.

NEW JERSEY LIQUOR REPEAL QUESTIONED

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 6. (AP)—Liquor flowed legally throughout New Jersey today as a result of the legislature's overriding of Governor A. Harry Moore's veto of the control act, but confusion continued as the constitutionality of certain features of the law was questioned.

It was on the grounds of constitutionality that the governor dissolved the measure.
D. Frederick Burnett, named control "car" in the bill, which was in itself asserted by the governor to be unconstitutional because it took from him his appointive prerogative, advised municipal governing boards not to exercise certain powers granted them.
Burnett licenses all manufacturers and wholesalers, and municipalities license retailers, under his regulations.
Despite Burnett's advice that they do not exercise the power granted them by the control act to provide by resolution for absolute prohibition or to prohibit sales
