

Connie Mack Completes Wrecking of 1930 Champ Team

COCHRANE WILL BE TIGER BOSS

Grove, Walberg and Bishop Go to Red Sox; Cash Need is Reason

By PAUL MICKELSON
CHICAGO, Dec. 12. (AP)—Connie Mack, veteran leader of the Philadelphia Athletics who started baseball way back in 1914 by breaking up his famous "$100,000 infield," tonight went even further by selling pitchers Lefty Grove and "Rube" Walberg and infielder M. Bishop to the Boston Red Sox, Mickey Cochrane to the Detroit Tigers, and pitcher George Earnshaw to the Chicago White Sox.

The deals, involving an estimated cash outlay of $300,000, were rumored for the past month, but not announced until tonight at the annual meeting of the major leagues in Chicago.

Financial pressure, forced by Philadelphia bankers, was assigned as the reason for the sales, some of the most important in the history of baseball. The deals all but complete a break-up of the famous Athletic team that won the world's championship in 1929 and '30. Only Jimmie Fox, champion batsman and home run king of the majors, remains of the outstanding baseball troupe.

Mack, outwardly sad as he announced the deals, refused to reveal the cash terms, but announced that the Athletics had obtained Harold Warstler, short stop, and pitcher Bob Kline from the Red Sox and catcher Charlie Berry from the White Sox. Detroit gave up catcher Johnny Paeck, obtained last summer by the Tigers from Beaumont of the Texas league, but he, in turn, was sent to the White Sox who wanted a catcher to make up for the loss of Berry.

Cochrane, obtained for a reported cash sum of $100,000, will manage the Tigers in 1934 as a playing pilot. It was officially announced after his acquisition was revealed.

In the absence of a definite announcement, only reliable reports could be gained on the cash involved in the expected but important deals that undoubtedly will inject new life and hope in the heretofore top-heavy American league race.

They were that the Tigers gave $100,000 for Cochrane, who has been at the meetings here; that the Red Sox handed over $125,000 in a straight cash deal for Grove and Warstler and Kline along with $50,000 for Walberg and Bishop; and that the White Sox gave $25,000 in cash and catcher Berry for Earnshaw.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12. (AP)—Kenesaw Mountain Landis tonight was voted another seven year contract as baseball commissioner, by National and American league club owners. It is his third contract of that length.

BALL GAME IS RIOT

UNION, Dec. 12. — The Union school football team was beaten on its own grounds Thursday, 61 to 31, by the heavier Grassy Pond team. The linemen had to call timeout to repair the chain which wore out by hard usage trying to keep up with the team.

Great Linemen of 1933

LEADING LINEMEN OF 1933--

CRAWFORD of Duke
CEPPI of Princeton
LANE of Michigan
WISTERT of Michigan
BERNARD of Mich.
HUPKE of Alabama
DEL ISOLA of Fordham
OEN of Minnesota
BURZIO of Carnegie
KOPANS of Harvard

ETC.

THE BACKS GET THE SPOTLIGHT--
WHILE THE LINEMEN GET THE BUMPS.

I'M JUST AN UNSUNG HERO!

LINEMAN

BURNLEY

It is one of the truisms of gridiron lore that the backs get the limelight, while the unsung linemen get the bumps. When a halfback carries the pigskin for a long gain, the plaudits of the mob echo in his ears; but rarely are there any cheers for the hard-working fellows who opened up the holes in the opposing line for him to get through.

The past football season produced a wealth of notable linemen who performed their grueling tasks in truly brilliant fashion.

Probably the most outstanding line performer on the gridiron this year was Bill Corbus, Stanford's all-American guard.

Other linemen who turned in outstanding performances this season were Schwammel of Iowa, Burzio of Carnegie Tech, Krueger of Marquette, Del Isola of Fordham, Hupke of Alabama, Oen of Minnesota, Ceppi and Lane of Princeton, Barclay of North Carolina, Kopans of Harvard, Wistert of Michigan and Rosenberg of Southern California.

If the football fans would look ahead of the play and watch the men clearing the way for the ball-carrier, they would realize that the linemen are the real unsung heroes of the gridiron.

There are no contenders. Levinsky and such boys won't do. Sharkey is through; Jack doesn't believe Schmeling can come back though he is going to try. The fight game, in fact, has fallen on evil days, says the ex-champion. Barney Ross is the only real standout in any division. And of course, the muddled heavyweight situation is the cause for the general slump. Jack signs for the good old days when fighters fought and champions were champions until they were counted out. Decision victories and the raising of numerous "paper champions" by various boxing associations have changed all that.

Nevertheless Jack looks cheerful and fit. He still works out every day. He's having a good time tossing wrestlers around. Not so formidable looking as you might expect of an ex-champion, bearing few marks of his ring battles, he leaves you to visualize his great fighting heart, the determination and courage that drove him to keep working toward the top, to realize that he achieved, and still occupies in the general opinion of the dyed-in-the-wool fan, the topmost peak in the realm of "the manly art of self defense."

Reasons for his continued popularity are not difficult to find. Friendly, unassuming, he is always ready to do anyone a favor and he never forgets a friend. He spends a considerable part of Tuesday afternoon bringing cheer to the inmates of the Oregon penitentiary, a group of men to whom he naturally is the world's greatest hero, at the behest of an old friend, Warden Jim Lewis. In the few moments we were with him in the armory dressing room, he performed two or three favors to individuals who will cherish them. That's the sort of fellow Jack Dempsey is. A lot of people who have achieved much less, carry their honors much less admirably.

Great Day for Old Nassau

A feature of Princeton University's celebration of its greatest football season in recent years was this huge bonfire, blazing in the Nassau Hall quadrangle, where a parade and speeches extolled the Tiger gridsters for completing the season unbeaten and untied. A great part of the Tiger's satisfaction came through the defeat of Yale for the first time since 1923.

SCHOOLS FIGHT 'PRO' INVASION

Coast Conference Probe of Scholarships General, Faculty Men Say

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 12. (AP)—Passage of a resolution "strongly opposing" the playing of professional football games in a stadium where college football is played was the highlight of today's session that concluded the annual winter meeting of the Pacific Coast conference.

The move to bar pro football originated in Los Angeles where sponsors of the "play for play" type of game are seeking to lease the coliseum. Southern California and the University of California at Los Angeles play their games in that stadium.

Representatives of the ten conference members, U.S.C., U.C.L.A., Montana, California, Stanford, Oregon State, Washington State, Washington, Idaho and Oregon, voted unanimously in favor of the resolution.

The summer meeting of the conference will be held at Priest Lake in Idaho. No city was named but it is assumed the business session will be held in Cochin, situated on the lower end of the lake.

Election of officers will be held in June as will consideration of awarding a contract to broadcast next year's football games over the air. The conference received a flat sum of $60,000 for the 1933 broadcasting privileges.

With next year's conference football schedule adopted, several institutions announced games of non-conference bearing today. California scheduled a double header for its opening date, September 29, against University of Nevada and the California Aggies.

Washington tentatively scheduled Montana for November 17. If arranged, Washington will play seven conference games next season, more than any other team in the circuit.

Two non-conference tilts were announced by Earl Foster, graduate manager of Washington State, with Whitman opening the schedule September 22 and Gonzaga being played in Spokane, October 13. Foster said it was "highly probable" a game would be scheduled with St. Mary's college to be played in San Francisco, November 3.

It was voted to broaden the policy of bringing in outside officials to work football games and the position of football commissioner, held by Herb Dana, retained for another year. Dana has charge of appointment of all game officials.

Faculty athletic representatives also included their session. Hugh Willet of Southern California, president of the faculty group, said the body had concerned itself chiefly with clearing up the rules relative to the issuance of scholarships to athletes.

Despite many reports to the contrary, Willet said no single member of the conference had been singled out for criticism.

Falls City Five Wins First Two Tilts of Season

FALLS CITY, Dec. 12. — The local high school basketball squad met the Antioch team on the home floor Tuesday night in a game resulting in a score of 34 to 10 in favor of the high school team.

The high school squad's second victory of the season came Friday night when it clashed with Bethel on the local floor resulting in a score of 30 to 8 in their first conference game. Their next conference game will be at Grand Ronde Tuesday, December 12.

The appointment followed a violent shakeup of the coaching staff, which also resulted in the retirement as athletic director of Jess Harper.

Workout for Rose Bowl Classic

The stalwarts of Stanford University are taking no chances on that Columbia Lion making a meal of them in the forthcoming New Year's Day classic at the Rose Bowl, Pasadena. Here are two of Stanford's buxies—Maentz, halfback, and Topping, end—including in a hardening drill at Palo Alto, Cal.

Bad Boys Tempt Dempsey To Demonstrate Knockout Punch But He's Cautious

Always anxious to give the crowd its money's worth even at the expense of their own discomfort, bad boys "Bulldog" Jackson and Robin Deed endeavored valiantly to induce Jack Dempsey, the Manassa Mauler re-cast in the role of referee, to demonstrate his world famous knockout punch for the edification of a capacity crowd at the armory Tuesday night. Jack cuffed them around a bit and in fact finally, after the wrestling was all over, doubled up his fist and popped Reed sufficiently hard to satisfy that ambitious young man; but strict candor requires the notation that Dempsey didn't actually "open the throttle."

Dempsey did however enforce stricter adherence to the rules of wrestling than is customary, and the result was lively action and a minimum of hair pulling and gouging. When the ex-world champion set out to enforce law and order, he was highly convincing.

Reed and Rob Roy staged a whirlwind of ground and lofty tumbling, the Scotchman alighting among the spectators repeatedly, sometimes with Reed on top of him. Roy's Indian death grip earned him the second fall in six minutes but otherwise Reed proved too clever for him and the editor took the first fall in 15 minutes with a body press and the third in 15 1/2 in similar fashion.

Jack Brentano taught Don Sagal a few lessons while in the act of winning the opener. Brentano took the first fall in 16 minutes with a head scissors, Sugai the second in two minutes with a Boston crab. Brentano's third in 6 1/2 with a kick to the jaw and a body press.

Reed will meet Gas Kallio, world middleweight champion, here next week, according to the announcement made before the final bout.

Salem B Five Outlook Good Says Gilmore

Coach Vernon Gilmore hopes to have one of the best "B" basketball teams in the history of Salem high school this year. Four members of last year's team are back and a promising bunch of former Parrish casaba tossers are out.

This year the team will be made up only of juniors and sophomores who will be able to play next year. Heretofore seniors showing ability were allowed to play, but this idea has been abandoned because it didn't furnish enough material for the "A" team.

The squad this year is one of the largest Gilmore has had, several of the boys being six-footers. The squad includes Steinke, sub last year; Quesseth and Glaisyer, at Parrish last year; Quesseth, Thompson and Carter, forwards; Faust, Grabenhorst and Wirtz, centers; Luther, Waddell, Winslow and Grinnell, guards.

INDIANS WORK OUT AMID DRIVING RAIN

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal. Dec. 12. (AP)—In a driving rain Stanford's Indians ran through a long hard football practice today in preparation for their Rose Bowl battle New Year's day with the Lions of Columbia.

Coach C. E. Thornhill, returning from the Pacific Coast conference meeting at San Francisco to take personal charge of the drill, took advantage of the weather to plan for the possibility of a similar downpour at Pasadena.

The Indian backs spent a long time in punting and passing practice. Then the whole team was given an instruction in the art of handling a wet pigskin. Although Thornhill plans to take a squad of 38 or 40 men to Pasadena, only 28 players were in uniform today, the proximity of flag examinations holding the others at their studies.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12. (AP)—Billy Petrolle, veteran Duluth welterweight, stopped Stanislaus Loyasa of Chile, in the sixth round of a 10 round bout at the Ridgewood Grove B. C. tonight. Petrolle weighed 143 1/2, Loyasa 143 1/2.

H. S. GRAPPLERS WORKING HARD

Outlook for State Victory is Better Than Ever Says Coach Hogue

Prospects for a state championship wrestling team are bright this year, according to Shannon Hogue, wrestling coach at Salem high school. The team has been working out for the past month and is rapidly getting into condition. There probably will be no meets until after the holidays and by that time the "bonecrushers" should be all set.

Last year Benson high of Portland carried home the crown, the red and black getting a tie for second place. This year Salem has chiefly experienced men and stands a good chance of winning. Yada, England, Frey, Clarke, Terasaki and Alderin are the most promising candidates.

Teams that Salem usually meets previous to the state meet are Sandy, Corvallis, Hill Military academy, Franklin and Benson. Always before the Salem team has met Chemawa, but it is not known here whether Chemawa will have a wrestling team this year.

MT. ANGEL COLLEGE DEFEATS PORTLAND

MT. ANGEL, Dec. 12.—The Mt. Angel college basketball team made a fine showing in its initial contest at St. Mary's gym here Sunday afternoon by defeating the M. A. C. alumni of Portland 23 to 20. The game was close and good. Up to within the last few minutes of the game the alumni led, when the college team forged ahead and won by three points.

Lineups:
College: Alumnus Schneider, Senter, F. Ber. Mollenbeier, Haener, C. Tuma, Terhaar, G. Salvi, Bucknum, G. Greene.
Referee, A. Sanfield.

In a preliminary game with the Silverton basketball quintet the M. A. C. high school team also came out on top, 15 to 13. Father Dunn of Silverton coaches both teams of Mt. Angel college.

Independent Teams Meet College Five

OREGON STATE COLLEGE, Corvallis, Dec. 12.—Oregon State college hoop team, Pacific Coast conference champion last year, is preparing for a series of seven pre-conference games to be played during the Christmas vacation holidays. The Orange quintet opens its schedule here against two leading independent teams from Portland playing Multnomah club Friday at 7:30 o'clock and Union Oil Saturday at the same hour.

Replacing Ed Lewis, center for the Orange team last year and leading conference scorer, is the big foot facing Slats Gill, Oregon State coach. Wilbur Kidder, six foot, four inch sophomore from Pendleton, and Cliff Folen, six foot, six inch transfer from Monmouth Normal, are the most promising candidates. Both men are competing on about equal terms.

With six lettermen returning to take care of the other positions Coach Gill is well fired for forwards and guards. Captain Skeet O'Connell, George Hibbard and Merle Taylor are lettermen at the forward positions. Red MacDonald, Carl Lenchitsky and Fred Hill are veteran guards. Hill made his letter at center last season but alternated at guard.

Several stars from last year's roster team are making strong bids for the varsity. Lefty Palmberg and Bob Bergstrom, members of the 1932 state champion Astoria high school team, and Art Durland are promising forwards, and Woody Joslin and Ed Creider are guard prospects.

Cougars Pile Up Large Score to Defeat Panthers

The Cougars swamped the Panthers in a noon league contest at Parrish by the score of 13-4.

Lineups:
