PAGE FOUR STATESMAN, Salem, Oregon, Tuesday Morning, December 19, 1933

"No Favor Sways Us; No Fear Shall Aws" From First Statesman, March 28, 1851

THE STATESMAN PUBLISHING CO.

CHARLES A. SPRAGUE - - - - Editor-Manager SHELDON F. SACKETT - - - Managing Editor

Member of the Associated Press The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use for publica-tion of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this paper.

ADVERTISING Portland Representative Gordon B. Bell, Portland, Ore. Eastern Advertising Representatives Bryant, Griffith & Brunson, Inc., Chicago, New York, Detroit, Boston, Atlanta

Entered at the Postoffice at Salem, Oregon, as Second-Class Matter. Published every morning except Monday. Business office, 215 S. Commercial Street.

SUBSCRIPTION BATES:

Mail Subscription Rates, in Advance. Within Oregon: Dally and Bunday, 1 Mo. 50 cents; 3 Mo $1.25; 6 Mo. $2.25; 1 year $4.00. Elsewhere B0 cents per Mo., or $5.00 for 1 year in advance. By City Carrier: 45 cents a month; $5.00 a year in advance. Per Copy 2 cents. On trains and News Stands 5 cents.

Water Witching for '34

THE Rosicrucians, an esoteric cult which has managed to survive for a good many centuries, has been doing some water witching for 1934 and is publishing a brochure of its prognostications. The title is "1934 and War", and one might think it was either Hearstian jingo talk or Pastor Russell imminence of Armageddon. It foretells the greatest war ever conducted under the American flag, which will last seven years. Just at this point when the cold chills start using your vertebrae for ladder rungs you may cheer up, for this is the world's most unique war. Instead of a war of destruction it will be a war of construction, not CWA either, but a war "against corruption, crime, syndicalism and civic sluggishness. It will not be fought with machine guns or poison gas, but with the weapons of new ideals, tolerance, development of culture and freedom of individual expression." This will be a disappointment to the new dealers who though they started the revolution last March the fourth.

The brochure goes on to prophesy the results of the combat: "President Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the last president of the U.S. to function under the old constitutional order. The new form of government will be an intelligent dictatorship." That's another jolt for the brain trust who have presumed to supply intelligence along with the dictatorship of FDR. There is also to be an anti-crime movement, according to the Rosicrucian study of the stars, the forked hazel stick, or the sheep's entrails, and this will have chapters in every community whose duty it will be to instruct the younger people in the fundamentals of good citizenship. May day schools, church schools, boy scouts, etc. then suspend?

Here is a prophecy which runs counter to what a lot of people (and governments) are betting on: The liquor industry will face a serious problem because of decreased desire for liquor. This will be another shock to political crackpots, -a prediction that "in the future the real power will be placed in the hands of those who have shown and demonstrated the ability to control and govern their own affairs and make a success of their own lives". Under such a rule how many would be left in office? At least this is a healthy prediction. It doesn't encourage one to store his greenbacks in a tincan under the fourth board in the henhouse floor. And it doesn't frighten him into a sudden baptizing because the end of the world is around the next bend in the calendar. We are sorry though, not to have the 1934 prophecies from those who read Daniel, Malachi and Revelations in the dark of the moon. That would be sure to offset such a beneficent prognostication as the Rosicrucians make. People may just take their choice. Those who wear dark-colored glasses will brace themselves for the worst; others will go jauntily along. To most people the most pressing immediate concern is not the lining up of the planets in their orbits, but what the chances are on three square meals a day for 1934.

Pretty, young Patricia Warren unwillingly accepts the attention of Bill McGee, a racketeer, fearing his wrath should the refuse. One night, Bill is shot by a rival gangeter while with Patricia. Patricia rans home in terror. Her stepmother, fearing a scandal, puts her out. Patricia is forced to make her living by playing professional bridge. Im-pressed by the girl's beauty and skill, Julian Haverholt, the bridge expert, makes her his partner. She moves to his palatial home where he introduces her as his niece. Pat is indignant until Haverholt explains he was thinking of her reputation. Patricia is secretly in love with Clark Tracy, the polo player, but Clark is engaged to Marthe March, society girl. Pat first met Clark and his fiancee when she filled in at bridge (for fifty cents an hour) at wealthy Mrs. Sycott's home. Pat was living with her stepmother at the time. Meeting Pat again at Haverholt's, Clark does not recognize her. He breaks an appointment to teach Pat to drive her new car and goes on a trip with his flancee's family. Noting her disappointment, Haverholt questions Pat, but she denies that she loves Clark. Pat concentrates on bridge to forget. Then comes the bridge tournament sponsored by Reuben Blair, Haverholt's bitter enemy. Clark is present. He is distressed by Patricia's coolness towards him. The contest is on. Haverholt and Pat play with machine-like precision and perfection, and win.

SYNOPSIS

Next morning, they are deluged with

"On you," scoffed Clark. "What | der. What a thoroughly uncomfortcongratulatory telegrams and busi- do you mean 'on you'? You have able, unsatisfactory afternoon! To ness offers. Haverholt purposely no interest in the young woman." think that she had chosen to come holds out a wire from Clark to see if "What are you two quarrelling here deliberately.

Pat will ask for it. She does. He about, Phil?" demanded Marthe, The second race was run. Then advises her to put Clark out of her diverting her attention from Julian came the third, the Blanchard Hanthoughts, reminding her of what for the moment. dicap, the feature of the afternoon. Clark would think if he knew she "Patricia," replied Clark Despite herself Patricia felt a stir was not Haverholt's niece. They promptly. of interest. This was Clark's race. accept Clark's invitation to the Honey Boy was not a general fa-"So you are a heartbreaker, are races to see his horse, "Honey Boy," you, Patricia Haverholt?" asked vorite but the horse was confidently run. Patricia is panic stricken lest Marthe, cocking her head on one expected to win by Tracy's friends. Marthe March will remember their side, openly measuring the other. People called encouragement from previous meeting at Mrs. Sycott's "I might have guessed it of Julian's adjoining boxes and sent over notes

For a fleeting instant she had the curious feeling that Clark hated Julian.

cited. all horseman now.

manded Patricia.

"Which one is Honey Boy ?" de-

"Our colors are purple," said the horses thundered past, swift, incredibly beautiful in action.

Honey Boy was leading. Three times the horses circled the track.

an easy winner. The crowd went

"I guess," said Phil, weak from insane with joy.

and expose her. niece.

"A base canard," rumbled Julian, "I've never found a woman willing CHAPTER TWENTY NINB to be faithful to me."

The younger girl learned to "Liar," said Marthe softly. brace herself for those glances. She Her eyes and Julian's met. Pashould never have come here. She tricis happened to glimpse Clark's Clark absently, watching the huddle knew that now. Too late she learn- face just then. It was yery dark. at the starting post intently and ed the wretchedness of flying under The afternoon was full of under- anxiously through his glasses. false colors. She had not learned currents, strange and disturbing. "Will you excuse me, please?" He it, she admitted ashamedly to her- Patricia had an illusion that they hurried away to lose himself in the self, until the possibility of discov-ery seemed imminent. Like the others she lifted field glasses and prehensible. The rest was not. One jockey seesawed up and down self, until the possibility of discovfixed her eyes upon the track. She Marthe and Clark seemed oddly violently attempting to get his

The 1984 centenary celebration of coming of Jason Lee to Oregona

• • • (Continuing from Sunday:) "The monument is built with Salem can begin to do her part stones taken from the Tymotchtoward making the centenary celtee creek near by, and on the ebration great by contributing toplate is a title which no man in ward the cost of the covered Methodism can even claim to Wagon. share with this man of mongrel 5 5 5 blood, chosen by God as the visi-That will require not more than ble sign of our divine call to $750, and it will give Salem the serve all the races of mankind: covered wagon, after its arrival in this city next summer. It will Wyandott Indians, Father of Misbe a typical covered wagon of the sions of the Methodist Episcopal forties, fifties and sixties, but Church'." mounted on standard auto running gear.

The 17 year old Methodist mis-5.5.5 sionary society had, prior to the The writer is suggesting to Mr. commissioning of Jason Lee, been Jay S. Stowell, in charge of the receiving an average of about bureau of publicity of the Metho-$19,000 a year for its entire work dist mission board, that a replica of an actual covered wagon that and support. Lee's two tours crossed the plains in one of the (1834 and 1838-9) brought about $250,000 to its treasury. The Keil colony trains might appropriately be used. Such a replica is entire sum of the expenditures for available. Its original came to his mission were about $125,000, of which $42,000 represented the Aurora, Oregon.

Bits for Breakfast

By R. J. HENDRICKS

* * * It is planned that the covered wagon coming over the country brought on its sale about $26,next year shall carry literature and outfits showing pictures, and lecturers to spread the news by had the Oregon mission been conspeeches, assisted by Methodist tinued until the country was setchurch congregations in all the tled and developed. cities and towns visited. Lee was a great collector of some $750, a full million dollars' worth of advertising - and increasing millions' worth in the passing years. It will be an introduction to untold columns and pages that will inform the wide in history of Oregon; the highest

What shall be the program after the arrival of the proposed covered wagon on auto wheels, and the crowds summoned hither by it, and by many other means

That will depend upon many scrawled on the edges of programs. Editor Statesman things to be considered, but which Clark himself was flushed and ex-Dear Sir: should have quickened and con-It seems that California's govstant attention from now on. The ernor is coming in for a lot of 1931 session of the Oregon legislature granted the use of the state unjust criticism and it looks to fair grounds, at dates of 1934 me as if it is up to the people of between June 15 and Oct. 6 that the U.S.A. to back him up a litwill not interfere with the state the in the stand he took. fair of next year. This is to be Of course after ex-President Hoover came out with the statewithout charge. -

5 5 5 ment he did condemning the gov-That gives a wide sweep of opernor's action, it was only reasportunities. Great crowds can be onable to expect the president to accommodated, for a day and eve- do likewise. But that doesn't ning, or several days and evemake his actions wrong for there nings.

were those that condemned Christ 5 5 5 too. And as far as taking the bi-The key men of Methodism the ble to prove some one else wrong world over will be here. They the critics had better first see if tal preparation for the meal. Do not have for nearly a century realized they are living up to it them-

EMOTION IS an important factor senting the Board of Home Mis-sions and Church Extension, disin cases of nervous indigestion. Anger, hate, fear, or excitement of tinguished visitors from Ohio and any kind, may be the contributing other states, gathered to honor the memory of this numble man. cause to discomfort after eating.

By Royal S. Copeland, M.D.

CONTRACTOR AND A CONTRACTOR OF THE ADDRESS OF THE A

Unless a person is absolutely calm before and after eating, indigestion will probably result When one becomes excited, the muscles of the stomach "tighten up" to such an extent that digestion ceases for a time.

Just how long Dr. Copeland the condition will last depends on the intensity of the emotion. Due to this peculiarity some excitable persons tend to become constipated. Others under strain have a reversal of the functions of the digestive system and are subject to vomiting spells.

Nervous Indigestion

Very few are absolutely immune to nervous indigestion. There are some who show no signs of disturbance when things go wrong, but the majority, unfortunately, are upset even by trivial things. Bables are probably more affected by this aliment than are adults.

In babies fright is often the cause of acute indigestion. The sudden sight of a dog or a cat, or of a person who has frightened the child before. will sometimes throw the infant into a state of high tension. It will cry and yell and if it has just eaten does not retain the food. The cause of the outburst must be removed at once and the child quieted. Then after a sleep of an hour or so the youngster will have forgotten the incident and be ready to devour anything placed before it.

Even the young boy or girl who. "moons" around the house and refuses to eat, may not be in the proper state of mind to digest food. Being emotionally wrought up by an affair of "puppy love", or something of a similar nature, may cause nervous indigestion.

Mental Preparation

Do not treat such young persons harshly. This will only tend to make them worse. If left alone they will soon forget their troubles and raid the kitchen in search of food.

Older people should be most careful. They usually have more worries, work harder and sometimes play harder than youngsters. They forget that with increasing years the human body is less and less able to take care of even the more simple disorders.

There is no need to worry if you follow a few simple rules. Before eating you must give yourself menhurry. Put aside your angry feel-cost of sending the Lausanne party, and its property in Oregon 000; a pittance compared • with what would have been its value

"'John Stewart, Apostle to the 5 5 5

(Continued tomorrow.)

The Safety

Letters from

Statesman Readers

Salem, Ore.

Dec. 14-'33.

This will give Salem and Orefunds, as well as an able statesman and colonist, and a sincere gon, for the initial investment of and wonderful missionary. world concerning the high place # of all being Salem.

f publicity?

A Printing Keepsake THERE has been growing for some years in Oregon an appreciation of the art of fine printing. John Henry Nash, able San Francisco printer, gave it quite a push at the University of Oregon. Bob Hall at the university and Arthur Brock, formerly with the state printer here, have sought to keep the spirit alive. Now the Portland printers have gotten out what printers call a "keepsake". It is a book on "Early Printing in the Oregon Country". Alfred Powers, dean of the extension work of the higher educational system of the state, has written the text which tells interestingly the story of printing in Oregon from its beginnings with the old mission press at Lapwai, Idaho. That was in 1839, and just as the early printing on the east coast was devoted to religious purposes, most of the product of this Lapwai press was to propagate the gospel among the Indian tribes whom H. H. Spalding and Marcus Whitman were serving. This press came from Honolulu to Oregon; later it was brought to "Tuality Plains" and used for printing a rewspaper. Now the press is in the museum of the state historical society. In 1846 a newspaper, The Oregon Spectator, was launched at Oregon City, the first newspaper to be printed west of the Missouri river. That press is now at the University of Oregon. The Oregonian was launched in 1850, using a Ramage press which had been used on the Alta California, first newspaper north of the Columbia, the Columbian in Olympia, in 1852, Then it made the rounds, printing the first newspaper in Seattle, the first in Walla, Walla, and the first in Idaho. Now it reposes in the University of Washington museum.

Among title pages reproduced are one for a book of poems by Joaquin Miller when he was county judge at Canyon City; another "Tears and Victory and Other Poems" by Belle W. Cooke, printed by E. M. Waite in Salem in 1873.

This keepsake is indeed a choice work of printing. The ian always intrigues us with his typography is by Paul O. Geisey, recognized as one of the best compositors in Portland, and by Arthur Brock. The type selection is interesting,--Cloister lightface, a letter reminiscent an oyster and he might have addof the early type designs, which have had a fresh vogue in ed that while Lamb made roast recent years. Our only criticism is the use of a large Indian pig famous, it was Jerome who head for illustration on the center spread of the book; and that of course is just a matter of opinion. It seems unduly to sausage. But the first oyster eatdominate the pages.

The book is a joint production of the club of printing perhaps and it never therefore house craftsmen in Portland; and we prize highly copy no. 109 which has come to us. Work such as this stimulates all printers to accomplish finer quality in their own printing.

Tonight's Concert

THIS editor just can't refrain from recommending to our readers various musical events which come along from ens' Christmas yarn to the effect tricia Warren, coming into Eileen with Julian's help to make Clark arm, shouting wildly for Honey Sycott's on a cold winter night to jealous? Was Clark carrying on a Boy. The track was a blur of color. play bridge for fifty cents an hour "Honey Boy, Honey Boy, Honey counter campaign? It wasn't fun because she could make her living any more. Nothing was fun. Patri- Boy." in no other way. Would Marthe cia smiled fixedly, listening to They were all chanting it. Patri-March remember that night? What Clark's tales of Honey Boy's prow. cia picked out the purple silks as would Marthe do or say if she did ess, nodding occasionally. remember? What would the others "Am I boring you with this ?" he say if they discovered that Julian asked anxiously. Haverholt's niece was not his "Not a bit," she said brightly.

unconvincingly. "I love horse rac- Honey Boy was leading. He was "Are your glasses focused proping." erly?" asked Clark. "Why not watch it then?" sug-

"Not quite." rested Phil, bitterly. "Here, let me fix them?" Clark and Patricia looked hastily niece?

reaction, "I guess the drinks are His hand touched her hand, linand guiltily toward the track. on Clark tonight, after winning gered. He said in a low voice, "You The first race was under way. Clark that purse. I'd rather own Honey are very beautiful this afternoon." had fifty dollars on it. He lost it, Boy than the mint." Exquisite words. They fell like They began teasing him for follow-

The amount of the purse made healing balm on Patricia's spirit. ing subterranean tips. He laughed. Patricia gasp. Thrilled and proud Maybe the situation was not so ter- Obviously, to him, the loss was to incoherence, Clark rejoined them, praising his jockey, praising his rible after all. Perhaps soon she completely unimportant. might explain everything to Clark. "We'll make it up on Honey tables, praising his splendid, splen-Surely he would understand and Boy," predicted Haverholt, who had did horse. Honey Boy would be ansee her side of it. She had been other Man of War! That horse had also lost. foolish, reckless, imprudent. But "I hope so," said Clark shortly. a fighting heart! It was evident she had done nothing wrong. He Startled by Clark's tone, Patricia that the money end of it had for suspected that the two men were at him no significance. His pride was would understand that she had done nothing wrong. outs. For a fleeting instant she had the pride of the discoverer. From "Your hair," said Clark dreamthe curious feeling that Clark hated the first he had known that Honey

y, "you must love your hair." Julian. An insane idea, of course. Boy had the stuff. He had known "Are you trying to make time on She dismissed it immediately. it from the moment that he saw ily, "you must love your hair." me?" inquired Philip Gove, half- Clark, she thought, was still of- him as a colt. lightly, half jealously, as he edged fended by Julian's rudeness on the itor of the Oregonian. He took an unwarranted jibe at them, for instance, when Mr. Weller said to Sam, "You'd ha' made an uncommon fine oyster, Sammy, if you'd been born in that station of life."

And Sammy himself was some .--- may we say edacious philosopher.

It was he who coined the conclusion that "poverty and oysters always seem to go together." That

(To Be Continued) © 1932, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. night of the tournament. No won-wear spats.

world as follows:

their way:

need not say)

gested by the home economics ed- ters, he would have known they

Editorial Comment From Other Papers

his chair around.

hungry.

OYSTERS AND BELLES LETTERS

might have been so in the day of We are indebted to the literary Weller the elder, but it is not so editor of the Oregonian for a gusnow,-not with Olympias anyway, tatory dissertation on the luscious while only the very wealthy can Both fierce, both hungry, their oyster as it appears in literature. afford Yaquinas. While we need no phraseological Just why the oyster should have enconiums to convince us of the been the brunt of literary sorcermerits of the oyster as a delectaers we do not know. Even the ble and energizing article of diet. kindly Browning said: yet, the classicist of the Oregon-No brighter was his eye, moister lilting prose. He reminds us that Than a too long opened oyster. it was Swift who marveled at the The literary crime of this pasboldness of the man who first ate sage in the Pied Piper should bring forth a demand from the oyster mongers' union to have the passage expunged from the recwondered at the temerity of the ords.

individual who first tried German We hesitate to criticise even mildly the literary esoterist of the er,-ah well, he was omophagic Oregonian staff, but we make the humble suggestion that he might occurred to him that an oyster have quoted more to the point was anything more than an Epifrom the Rev. Lutwidge, especialcurean delicacy. So, Swift was ly in view of the propaganda now probably wrong and the man was flooding the press concerning one not bold at all,-he was merely Mistress Alice. We have in mind:

But four young oysters hurried up But we are intrigued by the All eager for the treat literary oracle who cites us Dick-Their coats were brushed, their faces washed,

They hadn't any feet.

been sartorially wise as to oysselves. dertaking of their infant missionary society of 1833-4. They have seen that its founders were then building wiser than they knewsome of their greatest leaders firmly believing that in those days it was a case of-

Standeth God within the shad OW Keeping watch above His own."

"Behind the dim unknown

Their missionary society wa only 17 years old; only fairly started; with comparatively poverty stricken resources. Yet the working out of their plans for sending one man and his four companions as missionaries to the Flathead Indians, in response to their Macedonian call for the white man's Book of Heaven grew into the most important and resultful project of the whole history of their organization, as related to the extension of American domination and influence, and ideals of government of, by and for the people-though it transpired that the Indian messengers were not Flatheads (or not more than one of the four). but Nez Perces, and that the main for the taxpayers as they would work of the Lee mission was among other tribes.

guarded. S S Their society had its beginnings in strange ways, connected with the needs of Indians, commencing at the Wyandott mission at Upper Sandusky, Ohio, in 1816-9, when the "Missionary Society the Methodist Episcopal Church" was organized; the one that developed into and is now the "Board of Home and the in which to carry out their plans. Board of Foreign Missions." Read this from the Encyclopedia of Missions:

5 5 S Once (says an author, where "The conversion of a colored man by the name of Stewart, and Two travelers found an oyster on his subsequent work among the Indians, profoundly stirred the

of Methodism.

Methodist Episcopal church, and dispute grew strong, was the first impulse for the formation of the Missionary Soci-While, scale in hand, Dame ety for the whole church. tice passed along.

Before her each with clamor Says Bishop James W. Bashford in his book, "The Oregon pleads the laws. Missions," page 33: would Explains the matter and win the cause

And so we find the oyster famed in poem and in story. Nearly every prominent English writer has had something to say about it. It was used by Boileau to ridicule

the "art" of justice. Pope thought the manner of it was good enough to translate and he left to the

Dame Justice, weighing long the John Stewart, called into being doubtful right, the society which today in every Takes, opens, swallows it before state in the Union, in Alaska, in their sight. Porto Rico, Hawali, the Philip-The cause of strife removed so pines, and in 34 nations is helprarely well, ing make good the divine declar-There take," says Justice, "take ation that God made of one blood ye each a shell; all the nations of the earth.

thrive at Westminister on We fools like you. 'Twas a fat oyster! Live in peace.

-adieu." And so, it would seem that Christopher North was right when the two great missionary societies he said, "There's really no end in nature to the eatin' of oysters."

It's 10 o'clock. Methinks a good hot stew would furnish more than iron, copper, manganese and vitamins A, B, C, and E. It would help nature "knit up the raveled sleeve of care." And so, let's his me to a had been trussed up and thrown in the bay without a chance to protect himself would they have acted the same as they are now? hardly think so.

If they should meet a rattlesnake in the woods their first thought would be to exterminate it and yet a rattlesnake is a gentleman compared with such fellows as these kidnapers, as a rattler usually gives some warning and they gave none. They should receive the same treatment as sheep-killing dogs. They should be exterminated as soon as caught. The taxpayers of California should appreciate their governor's actions in saving them a lot of needless expense in trying fiends like those as there was nothing to prove and the only harm done was to beat some lawyers out of a nice little nest egg. They were figuring on using insanity as a defense and might have received a sentence in the asylum, or a light sentence in the pen as has been done. Which would have made more expense have to be fed and clothed and As long as people like that are alive they are dangerous for they are the most fiendish and scheming of any criminals there are.

I think that the laws fixing penalties for kidnaping should be uniform throughout the U.S.A., so kidnapers couldn't pick the states with the less severe laws Our legislature here in Oregon passed a law that carries a sentence for from 10 years to life for kidnaping which only makes for long legal battles and lots of expense for the taxpayers as all kidnapers in Oregon will be given a chance to beat the maximum sentence.

nor did right and until his critics have a better plan let them hold their tongues and let's all praise Governor Rolph for his new deal "Under Divine Providence an in giving California people jusgnorant and degraded mulatto, tice.

EARL SHARP, 785 No. 20th St. Salem, Oregon.

LEAVE FOR HOLIDAYS

SILVERTON, Dec. 17-Among those leaving for other places for Eighty years after Wesley and 20 the holiday season are Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lytle who will spend the holidays at Vacaville, Cal., with their daughter, Mrs. J. Franklyn; Gertrude Chrusler and her mother who will spend the holidays in California; Mr. and Mrs. W. L.

ings, seek congenial company in If it had been their child that pleasant surroundings and you probably will never be bothered with nervous indigestion.

Answers to Health Queries

J. J. S. Q .- What do you advise for acid in the system?

A-First correct your diet and avoid poor elimination. Send selfaddressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

(Copyright, 1933, K. F. S., Inc.)

SILVERTON, Dec. 18. - Silverton turned backward some 50 years Sunday afternoon at 1:40 when the power line to the north went out and acndlelight was the order of the afternoon and evening. The city itself was a quiet place with no theatres or public meetings held. Churches postponed their pre - Christmas affairs scheduled for Sunday night. Lights returned between 2 and 3 clock in the morning and many homes were unexpectedly lit up where switches had been forgotten to be turned off,

In spite of the heavy storm, the lower Silverton - Salem highway was not flooded at all.

Sewing Club Will Meet Tuesday

HAZEL GREEN, Dec. 18. -Mrs. Louis Faist and Mrs. Maurice Dunnigan will be hostesses to the Nemo Sewing club Tuesday But I think California's gover- afternoon at Mrs. Faist's home. The date was changed from Wednesday to Tuesday because of conflicting dates. Mrs. A. T. Van Cleave and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Alvin Van Cleave, will entertain the Sunshine Sewing club Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. Van Cleave.

Christmas programs will be given by each club. The Nemo are to bring gifts for needy persons. The Sunshine .. ill exchange gifts.

The Women's Missionary society had an interesting meeting Thursday afternoon at the Looney home with Mrs. Looney and Mrs. Massie hostes . Mrs. Clifton Clemens was elected treasurer to fill the vacancy made by Mrs. Joseph Cook moving to Hayesville. ky, Ohlo, the hundredth annivers-ary of John Stewart's mission to the holidays in California. I meeting.

