Drop Land Grant Claims, Advised

Guy Cordon, attorney at Roseburg for Oregon counties receiving land grant money from the federal government, has advised members of the court here not to press claims for the unpaid 1932 balance. Such an attempt, Cordon thinks, might lead to repeal of the statute which provided moneys be refunded to the counties from government income from its land holdings therein. Last year Uncle Sam restricted the disbursements to the counties to the amount of money actually received from timber sales. This amount, as less than one-half the counties' claims against the federal government. Marion county received approximately $3500 on a $7100 claim.

IMPORTANT CASES IN SUPREME COURT

Interest on Bank Deposits Of Public Funds Issue Of General Import

Two important cases, one involving the payment of interest to cities and counties on deposits in banks, and the other involving contracts affecting more than 1400 dairymen in Multnomah and Washington counties, have been set for argument by the state supreme court for January 17.

The first of the two cases was brought by the Grants Pass and Josephine County bank against the city of Grants Pass. Attorneys said this case would affect all banks in Oregon which carry deposits of political subdivisions and would settle for all time alleged conflicts between state and federal laws concerning such deposits. The lower court held for the city of Grants Pass.

The other case was filed by the Dairy Cooperative of Portland against the Brandes creamery to recover the purchase price on grade B milk and cream in the amount of $4500, and to enjoin violation of a written contract in which the creamery was alleged to have agreed to purchase milk and cream from the plaintiff.

Another case set for hearing January 19, involves the right of the state to cancel certificates of indebtedness of irrigation districts in order to make refinancing possible, largely through federal loans. This suit was filed by the Warm Springs irrigation district of Multnomah county against Rufus C. Holman, state treasurer.

The court has set January 19 for hearing the disbursement proceedings involving Frank McMillin of Portland, who is charged with loaning funds of a client without proper security. The charges were filed by the Multnomah County Bar association.

Another disbursement proceeding involves J. G. Arnold of Portland. Cancellation of these certificates was ordered by the state reclamation commission. C. E. Stricklin, secretary of the commission, said the state would benefit materially in case these certificates were cancelled for the reason that the irrigation districts could then proceed with their refinancing program. Such a decision also would restore these lands to the tax rolls. An adverse decision would result in loss to both the state and the settlers, Stricklin declared.

TRIO CLEARED OF FORGERY CHARGES

Compromise Case, Checks Made Good; Mrs. Ermete Held for Multnomah

Cases of the trio arrested in Medford, on check charges filed here were disposed of in justice court yesterday, with a compromise reached for H. W. Riggle and Mrs. Robert P. Hunt and Mrs. C. H. Ermete found not guilty. All were charged with knowingly uttering and publishing forged checks.

Justice of the Peace Miller Hayden, who heard the cases, dismissed the forged phase of charges against Riggle and Mrs. Hunt, but held their knowingly gave checks without sufficient funds. Early yesterday morning a compromise between the district attorney's office and defense attorney W. W. McKinney, was made and the two cases dismissed on payment of a total of $59.66 on Riggle's count, $31.66 on Mrs. Hunt and $9.50 for Mrs. Ermete. The costs including making good checks passed here totaling $29 for the three, court costs and two-thirds of the costs of the post office's trip to Medford to return the trio here.

Though freed of the charge here, Mrs. Ermete was still in the county jail last night, as Multnomah county officials have a warrant for her on charge of passing a bad check at the Lippman & Wolf store in Portland.

In the trial before Judge Hayden yesterday, it was developed the three checks passed here were given to Riggle, Mrs. Hunt and Mrs. Ermete by real individuals in payment on correspondence courses sold by the trio, thus eliminating the forged charge. However defendants knew that the checks were not backed by sufficient funds, it was admitted. The Hunts, Ermetes and Riggles have been traveling over the country selling correspondence school courses, it developed. Riggles put up $500 cash bail shortly after his arrest.

STEVENS REQUESTS RECALL WITHDRAWAL

Request to withdraw the recall petitions against Governor Meier was received at the state department Tuesday from F. W. Stevens of Goldson, one of the principal sponsors of the movement. Stevens informed the secretary of state that in requesting withdrawal of the petitions he spoke for the Lane County Recall association.

"We do not feel that we are justified in adding to the tax burdens by special elections of special session of the legislature," Stevens wrote.

Attaches of the secretary of state's office said that far as they knew no petitions actually had been placed in circulation. Officials attributed the recall movement to small truck owners who were dissatisfied with the 1933 bus and truck act.
