Natural Clay From Scotts Mills Used by Teachers in Studies

MT. ANGEL, Jan. 9.—Mt. Angel has had one of the several CWA projects submitted approved, and work began Friday relaying some of the city water mains; 2800 feet of four-inch pre-cast McWain cast iron pipes and 500 feet of two-inch galvanized pipe will be laid.

Fifteen men are employed on the project. Originally it should have given work to 55, but the number was cut down more than half. Fred Hassing is in charge.

Teachers Daub Clay The Teachers' Study club, meeting Saturday evening at the home of Miss Grace Smith, began the study of clay modeling. Miss Geraldine Fry, one of the members, is doing the teaching. Natural clay, obtained near Scotts Mills was used and the vases and bowls made were later baked. Much interest is being shown in the fascinating work. Those participating were: Geraldine Fry, Pauline Sasfield, Helen Kober, Florence Walker, Theresa Dehler, Florence Dehler, Carola May, Mathilda Beyer and Grace Smith. A surprise party and dance was held at the Joseph Walker home, Sunday night, to compliment the State Museum and the day. A crowd of Mt. Angel's younger set attended.

A record crowd packed the Catholic Daughters of America meeting room Monday night to hear Rev. Vincent Koppert's lecture on Russia. The lecture embraced the causes precipitating the establishment of the Soviet government, the program followed by the Soviet and the possible effects of official recognition by the United States. Money and interest is being shown by these lectures.

treacherous movement, they were ordered to remain without arms at the peril of their lives, during the night. When morning came the surrender was completed.

John came in last. He set his gun against the rock, then suddenly grasped it—but before he could raise it to his shoulder 50 rifles were aimed at his heart. He again relinquished it, and suddenly, with a defiant manner, took his place among the prisoners. (This account was given of John's surrender by Captain Wallen, who was present; and it agrees with other and official accounts.)

At the final settlement, however, of the terms of surrender, it was agreed that neither John nor any of his men should suffer any punishment, nor be compelled to surrender any property captured by them during the war.

Arriving at the mouth of the Rogue river, it was found that a band of renegades from coast tribes were about attacking a camp of miners at Gold Beach—and the troops killed about 40 of them and captured the remainder. The month of June was spent in gathering up the Ghectoe and Pistol River Indians, ending at Port Orford July 2.

July 9, about 700, not including John's people, were placed on board a vessel in charge of Capt Smith, to be taken to Portland thence to the northern end of the Grand Rond reservation in Yamhill county; and 400 others, with whom went John's band, and the Pistol River and Chectoe bands, were sent to the southern end of this reservation, in Polk county—they being taken by way of the Coquille valley and Roseburg. Capt. Smith meeting them with his command as escort at the latter point. Even this was not the end of John's, as will appear a little further on.

The first acquired land for the Grand Rond reservation, bought from the original claimants at a cost of $35,000, was about 6000 acres, as shown by an article in The Statesman of April 29, 1856. The residents of the district, in Yamhill and Polk counties, were at first up in arms, almost, over the proposal. The matter was discussed in the 1855-6 legislature, meeting in the Holman building, still standing, across the street from where this article is being typographed. Old Fred Waymire, member of Polk county, said in a speech: "He (Indian superintendent Joel Palmer) actually proposes to bring 4000 savages, red from the war, and plant them in one of the counties of this valley, with a savage and barbarous foe already upon its borders (meaning the Tillamook Indians.) 'I will do it,' said he, 'and if you resist me, I will call upon General Wool for soldiers to shoot down the citizens.'" Waymire's speech was thus quoted in The Statesman of Jan. 15, 1856.

But Palmer was even then rounding up and bringing 300 Umpqua and 300 Calapooias to the reservation he was establishing, and as these bands had not been exact in the recent hostilities, the feeling of alarm was somewhat softened, and the 1100, "red from the war," from southwestern and southern Oregon, were moved onto the reservation without interference from white settlers.

The writer does not believe there were ever quite as many as 4000 Indians on that reservation; but perhaps, at one time, that number was approached. His (the writer's) mother, living then near the road in Polk county traveled by persons passing from the reservation to Salem, saw many of those Indians, and much of Second Lieut. Phil Sheridan, second army officer in charge of the Fort (Fort Sheridan) there. (Continued tomorrow.)

Memorial is Held WOODBURN, Jan. 9.—Woodburn grange held its regular meeting at the grange hall Saturday. Memorial services for the late Joseph Huggel were held with Mrs. C. J. Rice, Mrs. O. F. Larson, Mrs. B. L. Carothers and John Harrison taking part. A vocal solo by Peter Larson followed.

Dinner was served at noon and a program arranged by Mrs. C. J. Rice included group singing, readings by C. J. Rice, B. L. Carothers and Mrs. G. H. Benjamin and a vocal number by Virginia Fox.

A committee consisting of C. J. Rice, O. L. Veach and G. H. Benjamin, was appointed to endorse the state master in his attitude on the sales tax.

Opposes Sales Tax MACLEAY, Jan. 9.—At the meeting held Friday night the Macleay grange went on record as opposed to the sales tax enacted at the special session of the legislature.

Hazel Magee and Viola Tooker were given the third and fourth degree obligations and the name of Grace Richards was proposed for membership. Rev. H. C. Stover gave an address on the world fair and his eastern trip, and a trio composed of Irene Moured, Veras Griffin and Ray Drakeley accompanied by Rev. Stover, gave a group of vocal numbers.

FAIRFIELD, Jan. 9.—Committees were appointed and numerous plans made for the year's work of Fairfield Home Economics club. The new chairman, Mrs. D. B. Du Rette, had charge of the last meeting. The H. E. committee, headed by Mrs. Du Rette, includes Mrs. Ward Lundy, Mrs. M. J. Mahoney, Mrs. Duke Ballweber and Mrs. C. H. Hannegan. Mrs. C. E. Allenback is vice-president, and Mrs. Henry C. Stafford is secretary-treasurer.

A 1934 objective will be to help decrease the indebtedness of the grange.

A benefit 500 card party will be sponsored by Fairfield grange at the grange hall Tuesday night, January 16, with the public invited. Committees in charge: Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Stafford and Mr. and Mrs. Alyn Nusom.

The next regular grange meeting will be held Friday night, January 12, and the social night January 26, Thursday. February 1 will be the next meeting date of Fairfield H. E. C.

Quilt Show Held RICKREALL, Jan. 9.—The quilt show of the grange women was a decided success. There being 21 quilts exhibited. Votes were cast for the best quilt; Mrs. Perry Hamilton's received the most votes for the prettiest quilt; Mrs. Lillian Larkins, potted star, second; Mrs. E. A. Stenson's quilt took third place. Mrs. Grace Calbreath's colonial women won fourth place. The oldest exhibit, a beautiful heavy coverlet made in 1812, belonged to Mrs. Mabel Harland of Salem.

The Home Economics club made $7.15 from sale of refreshments. More than 100 persons attended the evening program given under the leadership of Mrs. W. W. Rowell as follows: Men's quartet, "Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party"; vocal selections by Miss Elizabeth Rowell, accompanied by Mrs. H. A. E. Pence, Mrs. Jess Ragsdale and Mrs. A. G. Adams; reading, Miss Mildred Baker; another one-act play with the same characters.

Molalla Opposes Tax MOLALLA, Jan. 9.—Two resolutions concerning the sales tax and the payment of school taxes were passed by Molalla grange at its Saturday meeting.

The first resolution strongly opposed the sales tax and pledged the grange to help defeat any candidate favoring the bill who may come up for re-election or any candidate for a state office who favors the tax. Talks opposing the sales tax were made by Forrest Dunton, principal of the grade school, and J. O. Staats, secretary of the Commercial club.

The second resolution urged grangers and all others who cannot pay their taxes in full to pay their school taxes at least and to insist that the receipts designate that payments so made are for school taxes.

The first meeting of the juvenile grange, held at the same time as the senior grange, was attended by all but three of the members.

CHEMAWA, Jan. 9.—Members of the grange are anticipating a large attendance at the benefit program and dance, which will be open to the public, that is to be held in the grange hall Thursday, January 11. Miss Ruth Moore of Salem Business and Pro-

Trapping Season Opens With Good Boost in Prices

WEST SALEM, Jan. 9.—The trapping season for muskrat opened January 1 and for mink and other fur bearing animals December 1, and I. Wilfred Thomas, veteran West Salem furrier is receiving many pelts daily now.

He states that in spite of the mild winter so far, the furs are of fine quality this season and the price about 25 per cent better all around than last year.

Although fur bearing animals are becoming fewer, the pelts brought in are as many as before because there are more trappers. Last week Thomas received a large shipment of silver fox hides and mink and muskrat skins are brought in daily.

MAUD WILLIAMSON IS CALLED BY DEATH

WHEATLAND, Jan. 9.—Miss Maud Williamson, 60, of Wheatland and a retired Yamhill school teacher, died at her home here Monday night after an illness of one year.

Mrs. Williamson was born June 12, 1873, in Kansas, and moved at age of three years with her parents to Wheatland. She was graduated from the Oregon agricultural college, since when she has taught school.

She leaves a brother, Albert Williamson of Rainier.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Hopewell church, with Rev. Guy Drift of the First Christian church of Salem officiating. Burial will be at Hopewell.

Contest is Opened By Sunday School Group at Liberty

LIBERTY, Jan. 9.—The school children were turned out full force during the afternoon 20-minute activity period for cleaning up the grounds. All papers and trash was cleaned up which improved greatly the appearance of the grounds.

The Liberty Sunday school Sunday started on its first day in a several months' contest drive to stimulate interest and increase its membership. Points are to be added at the end of every month, the class having highest number to be entertained by the losing classes each month. In addition, classes are to take turn about in putting on a special feature every Sunday.
