CHINA OFFERS DRAMA OF NOTE, DECLARED

Noble Says Wars Symptoms Of Change, Growth From Political Angle

Though the incessant warfare in China may have little color to persons not acquainted with backgrounds, the present-day China offers the greatest drama in history, Clarence W. Noble, world traveler, declared at the largely attended chamber of commerce luncheon Monday noon. He gave some interesting bits to further the understanding of the situation.

The numerous wars breaking out in China in recent years are merely symptoms of change and growth, particularly from a governmental standpoint, in the oldest and most permanent of countries, Mr. Noble, a frequent visitor in China, said. He explained that China as a country and Chinese government have developed independently and that while the country is most permanent, the government has not been.

Now, a central government is trying to erect on the ruins of the old theocracy a modern government. Aided by agreements with foreign powers which have placed a 30 per cent tariff on imports, the central government has been able to gain funds for armed forces. Prior to the development of a government such as modern nations have, each province was a separate entity.

The big problem of the central government today is the control of the interior China, and for this reason the central authority is not attacking when outlying provinces are taken from it.

The old ancestor worship or guardian angel belief has kept jobs within the family realm. Because of this, and the recurring famine, the armies of various independent generals and even bandit ranks are continually filled, for such service offers food. It is not infrequent to see the soldiers in such armies, when defeated, join with the victorious leader and fight against his former comrades.

CORN-HOG PLAN GOES AGENT OR NO, SAID

Office to be in Courthouse; To Bring $40,000 Into County, Estimated

A corn-hog control campaign for Marion county is not contingent upon whether or not a temporary county agent is chosen by the county court to carry on this work here, in understanding of members of the county court, Commissioner J. E. Smith said yesterday.

The court is expected to give its decision today on whether or not a temporary agent, as proposed by the wheat control association officers last Friday, shall be hired to carry on all AAA control plans that might develop in the county. In either event, the corn-hog control headquarters will be set up in the same place as the wheat control plan, on the fourth floor of the county courthouse. It is believed a production control campaign for the dairy industry will be next in line. Marion county ranks second in Oregon in dairy production.

The maximum limit for joining the plan is 10 acres of corn or three litters of pigs a year, or both. A farmer qualifying under either provision can join for that one crop, though if he qualifies for both he must join for both. Reduction of at least 20 per cent in corn acreage and 25 per cent in hog reduction is required in return for rent payments on the corn land retired and cash benefits of $5 a head on the allotment of 75 per cent of past average annual hog production.

It is estimated the corn-hog control will bring about $40,000 into Marion county, which in 1930 produced 20,070 hogs and had 12,930 acres of corn.

TOLLS OPTIONAL IN 5 BRIDGE CONTRACTS

Contracts with the federal government on construction of the five Oregon coast bridges will leave the matter of tolls optional with the state, J. M. Devers, highway commission attorney, announced Monday on his return from the national capital.

The contracts, now being drawn, should arrive here before the latter part of the week, Devers said. The clause relating to repayment of the federal loans will leave the matter open either for tolls or for payment from current revenues.

Should the state commission decide against charging tolls, an amendment would be required to the special act of the legislature which authorized the loans on the basis of tolls. There would be sufficient time for the regular 1935 session to do this, as none of the bridges could be completed by that time, he stated.

Devers, referred to his work there as "a tiresome job." He said he did not know what the fate of the bridges would be until the last day. They were approved by the FWA and funds allocated for them a week ago last Saturday.
