President and Mrs. Carl G. Doney are expected in Salem this morning after a five weeks' eastern trip. They will arrive early in Portland by train and come immediately to Salem. President Doney's return comes as the second semester at Willamette university is about to begin.

Soon after his return, the mid-year meeting of the university trustees will be held. At that time the matter of dancing at the school here will come up for discussion.

Unofficial reports are that Dr. Doney conferred informally while in the east with Methodist leaders on the matter of the presidency of the university, the post which will be vacant when Dr. Doney's resignation, made more than a year ago, becomes effective in June of this year.

Oxygen Tent is Purchased for Local Hospital

The Salem Deaconess hospital has recently purchased a McKesson pneumatic oxygen tent. This is an instrument especially valuable in the treatment of cases of oxygen-want.

During the past it has frequently occurred that such an instrument had to be rented from Portland institutions at considerable inconvenience and expense, since there is none such in this city. By this purchase the Salem Deaconess hospital has taken another step in its standardization movement to give first class hospital service in this city.

weep no more my lady

Here's a triple-plated recipe for eliminating those breakfast brambles. Husbands—yes, even the maddest of the fellows—are astonishingly pliable to the rich and mellow soothing of a steaming cup of Hills Bros. Coffee. In fact, so are you. Try it and see. No human system yet designed can stand the terrible strain of getting out of a cozy bed without proper incentive. Ample Hills Bros. Coffee waiting on the breakfast table is incentive enough for anyone. So weep no more, dear lady. Ply that man across from you with freshly brewed Hills Bros. Coffee. He will leave the table as meek as a lamb and go to the office with the determination of twenty lions.
