TO PROCESS HOGS FOR GOVERNMENT

Valley Packing Company's Bid Accepted; Jobs for Men Here Provided

Steady employment for a number of men now on a part-time schedule was assured here Friday when the Valley Packing company received word that its bid for processing hogs for the Federal Surplus Relief corporation had been accepted, effective at once.

Under this contract the Valley Packing company is to buy for the government 6 hogs daily weighing 100 to 200 pounds and from these process an average of 24,000 pounds of pork each week.

The hogs will be processed into Wilshire sides from which cuts of hams, bacon and other pork cuts will be derived. These cuts will be reduced to pieces from three to six pounds in weight and these in turn will be wrapped and crated into 100-pound boxes ready for distribution wherever the relief department orders.

Processing is to be completely under the supervision of U. S. inspectors under the federal department of agriculture. Two of these are maintained continuously at the Valley Packing company's plant here, it being one of only two such plants in the state to be continuously inspected.

During the month the plant here has been busy with contracts awarded by the government. This beef has been distributed to needy people through relief committees in 20 counties in the western part of the state. The beef processed averages 18,000 pounds each week.

Colleges to Be Judged on Product Says Doney, Back From Conferences in East

The trend toward standardization of colleges and universities which has progressed steadily in the last 40 years appears to have been halted and hereafter institutions will be judged less by objective standards and more on the quality of the men and women they graduate. President Carl G. Doney of Willamette university declared here yesterday afternoon after his return from a five weeks' trip in the east. Dr. and Mrs. Doney arrived in Salem Friday morning.

"The North Central association in the middle states, a high school organization, has taken the lead in studying a new type of tests for the work of colleges," Dr. Doney averred. "Instead of centering attention on the number of books in a library, on the degrees held by professors and on the number of dollars in the endowment, greater stress will be placed on the quality of a school's product."

On his trip Dr. Doney visited in New York City, in Carlisle, Pa., in Columbus, Ohio, in Chicago and in St. Louis. In the latter city he successfully attended meetings of the University Senate, of the Council of Church Boards, of the Association of Methodist colleges and of the Association of American colleges. He said he was gratified by Willamette's comparative standing. "Any new checks on schools made by such associations will not affect Willamette," he declared. "We are out of the probationary period."

Dr. Doney said the Rockefeller institute, once a generous donor to Willamette, was now helping universities directly but was centering its benefactions—considerably curtailed—on specific researches. In the east he called on representatives of Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholarship, society, and was informed by them.

The Doney family visited their son, Paul, at Dickinson college, Carlisle, Pa., and saw their third grandchild, a boy, born last July, for the first time. Mr. and Mrs. Doney, the former in business in Chicago, have a daughter born last July, "a pretty child as you ever saw," the grandfather smilingly remarked yesterday.

Another radio course in rural electrification, such as drew actual enrollment of 324 a year ago is announced by KOAC, the state-owned station at Oregon State college. The course will start January 29 and will be given each Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10 to 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon.

Lesson outlines are sent to all who enroll. Last year these were requested by 103 farmers, 32 power representatives, 14 teachers and 235 agricultural students in high schools. The new course will be given by Clyde Walker and F. E. Price, agricultural engineer at the college, and will cover such subjects as electric feed grinding, water heating, chick brooding, soil warming, care of electric motors and wiring. Last year's successful course was the first of its kind ever offered by a radio station in the United States.

FLOOD CONTROL ON SANTIAM IS TOPIC

Marion and Linn Courts to Meet Here Monday to Discuss Problem

County courts of Marion and Linn counties will meet in joint session at the courthouse here Monday morning to discuss the problem of flood control of the Santiam. Representatives from both counties, on both sides of the river, will be present to discuss the problem, made critical by recent floods.

Primary topic of discussion probably will be an engineering survey to determine urgency of the need, feasibility and probable cost of any control project undertaken, and possible sources of money. The project would likely be undertaken by the CWA or PWA, observers say, and hinges on securing definite information from a survey.

The meeting Monday was called at the instigation of urgency of the need, feasibility and probable cost of any control project undertaken, and possible sources of money. The project would likely be undertaken by the CWA or PWA, observers say, and hinges on securing definite information from a survey.

It was affirmed that the federal government has already recognized the Santiam as a flood control problem, although members of the court here have not yet heard of it. When government engineers made a canalization survey on the Willamette some time ago, Commissioner Smith suggested they look over the Santiam situation, but they said that it was not such a project as would be recognized.

Fear of worse damage than that caused this year was expressed by residents along the river. Considerable harm has been wrought by the present high water, and it is feared that another year could bring a catastrophe of major proportions.

When to Take Penalty Told

By MRS. WILLIAM H. QUINN Culbertson Associate

Do you know when to take a penalty? Taking penalties to keep your opponents from making games and slams is justified. It is evident in duplicate bridge that you must play a defensive game.

Any time the situation arises when the penalty that you are going to take is not larger than the score the opponents would make by playing the hand, then it is time to take your penalty.

There are two vital things to consider when you are making this decision. First: Can you and your partner defeat the opponent's bid? Try not to take a needless sacrifice. Be sure that the opponents can make their contract before you make a sacrifice bid.

Second: And feel that this thought is greatly neglected, is it possible that the penalty that you have planned on taking may be much larger? Count your losers very carefully. Review the bidding mentally. Be sure of your trump suit. Remember the bad breaks that come from distribution. I have seen many duplicate players expect to take a penalty of 250 or 450 points but on account of unexpected distribution take a loss of 1000. Nothing is so upsetting to a partnership as a heavy penalty.

Gold Coin Worth Less Than Paper Money, Discover

A $5 gold piece is worth only $4.90 to the merchant today, so a member of the retail credit association reported at the luncheon meeting yesterday. The gold was paid by a woman here to a messenger who delivered goods from a local store.

The store couldn't induce the bank to take it; instead it had to be handled through the collections department. And when the present rigamarole attendant upon appearance of gold had been finished, the store had $4.90 credit for its $5. Says the merchant: "Moral: Dodge gold."
