

Salem High Quintet Goes to Eugene for Game Tonight

BREAK IN WIN STREAK LIKELY

Corvallis and Astoria Will Be Faced This Week by Huntington's Men

That no-defeat record of the Salem high school basketball team, now extended to eight games, is to face its severest test this week, beginning tonight when the red and black will encounter its ancient purple foe, Eugene high, at Eugene.

Fritz Kramer's quintet has not been unduly impressive to date, but it is a new semester and Danner, star center who had a great deal to do with making Eugene high a "giant killer" in the 1933 state tournament, has returned to school and is eligible, it is reported, under a "work permit" issued when he dropped out last fall.

Others of the 1933 Eugene high players still active are Wright, forward, and Mercer, flashy little guard. With a new running mate, Russell, outscoring Wright, Eugene high without Danner's services defeated University high 19-12 last night. But if Eugene high doesn't topple Salem high from its undefeated perch tonight, right behind it come Corvallis and Astoria, two of the outfits Salem has found most troublesome in the past. Corvallis comes here Thursday night and the red and black must play Astoria in the Fishermen's own stronghold Saturday night.

The guard situation which has been somewhat of a problem to Coach Holik Huntington since the withdrawal from competition of Melvin Engel, appeared to have been solved for the time being by the showing the boys made against Silverton; Bhrrell, who looked exceptionally good in that game, may not be available for the present but Hobbs, who has been playing "independent ball," is out now and gives promise of fitting into the combination and adding something to its offensive strength.

BOXING, WRESTLING CARD DRAWS WELL

SCIO, Jan. 29.—In the paramount feature of the Scio high school Order of "S" sport carnival at the local gymnasium Friday night, Norbert Krantz won a three-round decision in a boxing bout with Stanley Walter. Krantz stands about 6 feet 2 inches, is active and long in the reach, and gets in his punches in rapid succession. Walter is more stocky and a hard hitter but a little slow for the long boy from Jordan. Both were credited with good work.

A draw was declared by referee Gene Hoffman in the boxing contest between Don Davenport and Elvia Gallegly.

In the mixed bout Dick Quarry was given the decision against Marley Sims.

Leonard Lukenbach and Howard Trollinger put up an interesting wrestling match that Trollinger finally won by a decision, given by F. P. Keltner, Scio high school coach.

James Ashford bested his opponent, Joe Madarus, in a wrestling match while Ted Mumper and Eldon Todd made a draw of their contest.

In the battle royal five huskies contested in a fast mill of one round, in which three contenders "stayed to the finish," these being Leonard Lukenbach, Howard Trollinger and Marley Sims. Keith Burton and Salvi Padula boxed to a draw, as did the juniors in the ring, Louie Yeager and Richard Hollis, who put on the curtain raiser.

A large crowd attended and the fraternity sponsoring the card will have a helpful sum from the proceeds which are to be used in the purchase of baseball equipment for the approaching season.

Big Berthas of Basketball

By BURNLEY

TED PETOSKEY WHO IS A LEADING CANDIDATE FOR ALL-CONFERENCE HONORS WITH THE MICHIGAN QUINTET, WHILE KRAUSE, ANOTHER GRID HERO, IS STARRING FOR NOTRE DAME'S BASKETBALL TEAM!

WATCH THIS BULL'S-EYE

NOTRE DAME HAS BECOME AS FEARED ON THE BASKETBALL COURT AS THEY USED TO BE ON THE GRIDIRON!

BASKETBALL fans may not be as numerous as football devotees, but they are even more rabid, if that is possible. Being an indoor pastime, basketball will never draw the mammoth crowds that attend gridiron battles, it is an evident fact that among sport fans this colorful game is gaining more converts each day. Basketball is definitely on the upgrade as far as popularity with the sporting public is concerned.

There is, of course, a lot of controversy as to which section of the country has the best college basketball teams. In the East the City College of New York is usually a top ranking basketball power. The C. C. N. Y. quintet is coached by the great Nat Holman, outstanding star of the old Original Celtics, pro basketball outfit of a few years back. Holman is considered by many to be the greatest coach in the country, and he consistently turns out winning aggregations at a public college which is notoriously weak in the field of sport.

In the Middle West they take their basketball even more seriously than they do in the East. The western teams have a big edge in inter-sectional combats so far this season, so the fans from that sector can justifiably claim superiority over the effete East on the basketball courts.

Notre Dame is now as much of a power in basketball as it used to be on the gridiron under Rockne, and the great football tackle, "Moose" Krause, is the big ace of the Irish quintet.

Another former grid star, Ted Petoskey of Michigan, is an outstanding candidate for all-Confederation basketball honors in the Big Ten. And if you look over the various line-ups you will recognize many familiar football names on the leading college quintets.

Higher Board Denies Extra Pay to Prink

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 29.—(AP)—How would you like to have someone raise $1000 headed your way?

That's about what happened to Prince "Prink" Callison, Coach of the University of Oregon football team which tied for the Pacific Coast championship last fall.

Elevated from freshman coach, Callison placed a championship team on the field his second year. Under some sort of de-emphasis program, mainly salary, his yearly stipend is $4,135, so the student body wishes to hand him a cool thousand out of the season's profits.

The board of higher education tabled the proposition, but appended the statement a new contract was being drawn for him and one for Lon Stiner, coach of the Oregon State college "iron men."

Neither contract is expected to approach the $11,500 salary paid Clarence W. "Doc" Spears when he was university football coach and "choo-choo" physician.

Dayton, Sheridan Split Two Games

MAJOR LEAGUE TRADING FACED

All Clubs Except Champs of Both Leagues and A's Will Dicker

By EDWARD J. NEIL
NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP)—Approach of the inter-league meetings next week, offering major league owners a final chance for a bit of bolstering here and there before spring training starts has shot new life into the trade market.

The 1933 champions, the Giants in the National league and the Senators in the American league, seem certain to stand pat on what they have, along with the Athletics, already the life of the winter party, the Cubs, Cardinals and Pirates.

But aside from these six there isn't a club either league that won't listen to reason.

The Yankees led today with rumors of a trade with the Browns, strengthened by the fact that Louis B. Von Weise, St. Louis president, spent the past weekend here.

The Yankees still are after George Blasholder, Browns' right handed pitcher, who has spent almost an entire major league career being sought by the New York management. In the Yankee side of the barter, which has been threatened all winter, the names of a couple of shortstops, Lyn Lary and Frank Crosetti have been mentioned, along with pitchers Red Ruffing and Danny MacFadden. All are considered trading material in the Yankee quest for a reliable right hander and an able bodied, hitting outfielder to aid young Ben Chapman and the aging Babe Ruth and Earle Combs.

Jimmy Wilson, new manager of the Phillies, has indicated he'll listen to offers for his big first baseman, Don Hurst, and more than will be made for Cincinnati's Chick Hefner. The Red Sox have six able bodied left handed pitchers, headed by Robert Moses Grove and Rube Walberg, who are not on the market, but some of the others offer the means whereby Boston's need for more punch in the infield can be satisfied.

BEARCATS WILL SEEK REVENGE

Season Outlook Isn't Rosy But Boys Vow They'll Trample Badgers

In the seven past seasons during which Roy S. "Spec" Keene has directed the Willamette university hoopsters, only Whitman college has been able to score more than one victory over the Bearcats. Counting last Saturday night's defeat at Forest Grove, the first Pacific has managed in that period. Willamette has lost 11 conference games; one each to Linfield, Pacific and Puget Sound and eight to Whitman.

Pacific's victory, coming so early in the season, hints that the Bearcats may not fare so well this year; but the present all-pervading purpose in the Willamette camp is to wipe out that one when the Badgers come here Wednesday night. With exams a thing to concentrate on this job and it is within the realm of possibility they expect to accomplish it.

Return of Ray Griffith to the Willamette squad may add some punch to the scoring machine which bogged down completely at Forest Grove aside from the long range marksmanship of Eddie Frank.

Wednesday's game will start at 7:30 p. m.
