

Bearcat-Badger Cage Battle Here Scheduled Tonight

COURT RIVALRY IS NOW TORRID

Keene Hopes His Hoopsters Will Show Up Better Than Last Week

Rivalry between Willamette university and Pacific university running back to the last century on the gridiron, reaches an equally torrid pitch tonight in the realm of basketball, as the Bearcats and Badgers prepare to battle on the Willamette floor starting at 7:30 o'clock.

Gridiron fortunes of the two schools have pretty well balanced out over a period of approximately 40 years, but Willamette has held the upper hand in basketball consistently, the first break in its long string of victories occurring last Saturday night when Pacific nosed out a 26-to-25 victory on its own floor.

There is good and sufficient reason for Pacific's rise; two of its most court performers were chosen on the all-Northwest conference quintet last year and all five are veterans, four of them having played together for three years.

The Bearcats will have no simple task such as bottling up one ace performer; Douglas and Corrigan, the forwards, are dangerous but no more so than Fox, center, or Killits and McKeel, guards. They all scored about equally in the game at Forest Grove.

Coach "Spec" Keene of Willamette is hopeful that his team, which was badly off form both in shooting and in handling the ball Saturday night, will look better tonight but in any case it will have a battle on its hands now that the Badgers have tasted of victory and found it sweet.

Keene said last night he planned to start the same combination that opposed the Badgers in the first game; Lemmon and Burdett, forwards, Klootstra, center, and Hartley and Frantz, guards. In case any of them fail to click, replacements will be in order.

No preliminary game had been arranged up to last night.

Players Pick All-American for First Time

At the instance of Liberty magazine, football squads of 91 American colleges voted on an All-American team in the first such poll ever taken. The players pictured above won out in this vote by the men who should know. It is interesting and perhaps significant that two men not named on any other first team selection are listed here: Francis Lund of Minnesota, halfback, and J. D. Dempsey of Bucknell, tackle. The first team includes no northwestern players, but Franklin of Oregon State and Mikulak of Oregon were named on the second team and Smith of Washington on the third team. An all-Pacific coast team selected in the same manner includes Smith of Washington and Caninus of St. Mary's, ends; Rosenberg of Southern California and Corbus of Stanford, guards; Lutz of California and Reynolds of Stanford, tackles; Coates of U. C. L. A., center; Warburton of Southern California, quarter; Franklin of Oregon State and Nicheline of St. Mary's, halfbacks; Mikulak of Oregon, fullback.

Mickey McGuire, popular West Salem grappler, will tangle with Jack Curtiss in the main event, in what should prove to be one of the best events of the last several weeks. Curtiss showed to a good advantage in his recent bout with Art Perkins while McGuire has met all of the leaders in this district. Both mat stars wrestle in the orthodox manner.

The action of the evening is looked for in the battle between Logger Herbert and Stan Crawley. Hebert lost his last match here to Bulldog Jackson, but only after both grapplers had used every illegal hook known to the ring.

EUGENE, Jan. 30.—(Special)—Holding the state champions to one field goal and four points in the first half the Eugene high school basketball team handed Salem high its first defeat of the season here tonight, 28 to 21.

Eugene led 16 to 4 at half time after bottling up Wintermute, Salem's ace scorer. Roth tossed in the only field goal Salem acquired in the first half.

After the rest period Salem came back and outscored Eugene 17 to 12 but couldn't overcome that 12-point lead. Peters led Salem in scoring in this half as the purple defense continued to concentrate on stopping Wintermute. Danner and Baxter shared high point honors for Eugene with nine each.

CURT COMMENTS

It's finally settled that Andy Peterson will try out with the Ducks, and a lot of fans around here will be not only pleased but pulling for him to make good—not only so they may say "I told you so" but because Andy is a likeable fellow as well as, in local opinion, a prospectively great ball player. His chance with Portland is a good break in more ways than one. The Ducks probably will be a struggling ball club this year with a number of youngsters getting a chance; and then again, Walter McCredie is an artist at the business of developing youngsters.

The Salem high hoopsters have finally lost a game and among those who weep, you'll not find us by any manner of means. Nope, we haven't gone Eugene, or will we plead guilty to disloyalty.

Do you by any chance recall the basketball campaign of 1931? That was the year Salem high went through the regular season undefeated, romping over Astoria, for instance, 47 to 16 and Eugene 51 to 19. The boys went into the state tournament feeling that the fans here expected too much of them, and they had a tough time conquering the fitters—they had to fight hard to get past Myrtle Point in the first game, didn't do much better in nosing out Benson in the semi-finals, finally shook off their nervousness and played great ball in the championship game but lost to Pendleton. At that, they might have managed a victory—they made it an overtime game, you recall—had it not been for the unnatural pressure they were under all the way.

And so we're not especially sorry that this year's team has lost a ball game. It may help to rid the fans, and the players too, of any foolish "super-team" notions.

HALLAHAN KEY MAN IN CARDINAL HOPES

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 30.—(P)—"Wild Bill" Hallahan, the southpaw with the sweeping curves and terrific speed, is considered the "key" man in the St. Louis Cardinals' drive for the 1934 pennant.

"There has been much conversation about what the Cardinals can do if they find another hard hitting outfielder, or if the punch is strengthened," commented Branch Rickey, General Manager of the St. Louis baseball system.

"But I am not perturbed at all over the hitting question. We have Litters. The averages prove that conclusively. And we have the defense. In my opinion it is a question of pitching."

"I consider Hallahan the key man as we look forward to the 1934 campaign. If he will lead just his mental perspective on pitching and pitch as he did when he was helping the Cardinals to pennants in 1930 and 1931, our pennant prospects will be bright indeed."

Dangerous Curve is Eliminated by CWA Workmen, Kingston

KINGSTON, Jan. 30.—The bridge built as a CWA project at Bear branch is expected to be open to traffic early next week. The men now work only 15 hours a week. Another project was just east of the Starton bridge. A dangerous curve and a bad water hole are to be eliminated. About 15 men are at work on the job.

More work will be provided as soon as the North Santiam river drops enough to allow the county to repair the river bank back of the Morgan place, where water came through at Christmas time and again during the hard rains last week, flooding much of the road in this vicinity.

Boston's Baseball Midas

By BURNLEY

WHEN Colonel Jake Ruppert and "Tip" Huston purchased Babe Ruth, Fenwick, Hoyt and a host of other famous stars from the Boston Red Sox, more than a decade ago, the cry was raised that the Yawkeys were "buying the pennant."

As a matter of fact, the playing material which the Yawkey management bought from the late Harry Frazee did enable the Ruppert-Rifles to win quite a few American League pennants, and established what virtually amounted to a Yankee hegemony in the junior circuit for a number of years.

Now the name Boston Red Sox, who sold all their stars up the river many, many years ago, are under new ownership—and how things have changed! The Crimson Hoos are now the property of the millionaire sportsman, Tom Yawkey, and the first thing that Mister Yawkey did upon taking over the club was to loosen his purse strings, shelling out prodigious amounts of do-re-mi for all available playing talent.

It seems almost as if we are witnessing a revival of the old Yankee act of buying the pennant, only this time the Red Sox are buying, not selling. The guy who sold out in this case was Connie Mack, who turned over a parcel of his high-priced stars to Mister Yawkey for a couple of hundred grand, and a couple of hundred grand, and a couple of hundred grand, and the rest of the new Boston stars are expected to turn the Red Sox into a serious flag threat this year. Eddie Collins has said that he will be satisfied with a third place berth in 1934, but he predicts a pennant for the Flaming Hoos by 1935.

No longer will it be the "lowly Red Sox." Time does change things!
