

STADELMAN IN STATE OFFICE

Personnel and Policies of Department to Remain as Left by Hoss

yesterday afternoon. I first told Governor Meier that I could not accept the honor but after a personal interview in Portland I re-learned from my position and agreed to take over the office. It is my intention to carry out as nearly as possible the policies inaugurated by Mr. Hoss.

Mr. Stadelman spent Thursday night in Portland and arrived at the capitol shortly before 11 a. m. Friday accompanied by his son, Wilbur. He first went to the executive department where he was received by Beatrice Walton, secretary to Governor Meier. After receiving his commission he was escorted to the state department where the oath was administered.

Praises Organization Built Up By Hoss
Although Mr. Stadelman is 63 years of age he has the facial features and alertness of a man 10 years younger. He is tall, of calm demeanor, and soft spoken. He is a widower. He has two sons, Wilbur and George, the latter a star football center at the University of Oregon a few years ago.

Under his present commission Mr. Stadelman will serve until his successor is chosen at the next general election.
A statement issued by Mr. Stadelman Friday night read:
"Mr. Hoss built up an exceptionally fine organization through years of study and careful administration. It will be my purpose to maintain the high standard of efficiency which the secretary of state's office achieved under his direction.

"I shall devote myself to learning all I can regarding the affairs of the office and the boards of which I am a member, and shall try to apply the principles of good business in the discharge of my duties.
"My sole objective will be to give the people of the state good service and to do my part in securing an efficient and economical conduct of the state's affairs."

State department officials said it would require a week to clear away the business which accumulated since Mr. Hoss' death.

CURB ON GAMBLING IN STOCKS SOUGHT

acquisition of securities," the President said in his message.
"There remains the fact, however, that outside the field of legitimate investment, naked speculation has been made far too alluring and far too easy for those who could and for those who could not afford to gamble.

"Such speculation has run the scale from the individual who has risked his pay envelope or his meagre savings on a margin transaction involving stocks with whose true value he was unfamiliar, to the pool, or individuals or corporations with large resources, often not their own, which sought by manipulation to raise or depress market quotations far out of line with reason, all of this resulting in loss to the average investor, who is of necessity personally uninformed."

The Fletcher bill, prepared largely by Ferdinand Pecora, banking committee counsel in the Wall Street inquiry, would require that all stock exchanges and all issues of securities be registered with the commission, with voluminous information as to financial condition, sales and earnings furnished in regular reports, some of them as frequent as once a month.

Senate Sergeant at Arms is Looking for McCracken to Serve Warrant

Before agreeing to turn the files over to the senate, MacCracken permitted some of the correspondence to be removed. All four were ordered to appear before the senate to explain the incident.

Givvin and Hanahue voiced no objection and replied readily to questions. They said they had returned to the committee the letters they took.

In the other investigating phase that occupied Washington today, a grand jury continued to mobilize information upon which officials expected it to pass formal charges against alleged contract lobbyists, and a house committee was told that aviation companies had averaged almost 20 per cent profit over the last seven years on army contracts.

Army contracts running high into the millions of dollars are involved in both these inquiries.

AID FOR STUDENTS NOT PRACTICABLE

Federal funds for aid of university and college students, as offered according to advance reports received here by President Carl D. Doney of Willamette university, could not be practically sought here, Dr. Doney said yesterday.

Restrictions placed upon such grants to students in independent institutions make it impossible for the university to accept tuition or fees from students receiving the aid and demand that students must be employed on public projects near the campus or on the campus in the regular janitorial service. The former requirement, Doney believes, would remove a source of income much needed by most independent institutions while the latter would take work away from students or other persons no less deserving than those receiving the aid.
Most of the campus janitorial work at Willamette is performed by students and student labor is used wherever possible in libraries and offices there.

Initiating the largest class ever installed in the Willamette aerie, the Fraternal Order of Eagles met last night at the Fraternal temple to put 99 men through the ritual. Among the initiates, Mayor Douglas McKay, Lars Bergsvik and A. Warren Jones delivered well received addresses. The accomplishments of the order formed the basis for a well-finished speech by D. D. An extension of two weeks' time before closing of the charter, originally scheduled for last night, has been granted by Hall. It was announced. T. L. Lockhart and T. T. Turner, state organizers who have been in Salem for some time, will remain for the next fortnight expecting to assist in making the Willamette aerie the strongest in the country.
