TAX MONIES ROLL IN FROM SALES LEVIES

Washington Finds Farm Districts Get Back Much More Than They Pay State

Figures for the first five months of the operation of the new Washington sales tax, up to January 15th, just received from the Washington Commission, show total receipts under the new Washington sales tax levies of $4,486,752.30, after taking out administrative expense.

The interesting feature is that this total of approximately a million and a half dollars, one-sixth is from "out of state collections" being payments made by persons outside of Washington, many of them Oregon citizens who buy from Washington merchants, manufacturers, utilities, etc., but is used along with the payments by Washington citizens to help Washington schools.

A letter from the commission indicated that the Oregon commission pass a sales tax even larger than in the Portland territory in Washington, would be collected from Washington citizens to help out the schools of Oregon. These, on account of the larger Portland trade territory, it was pointed out, would undoubtedly mean even larger collections proportionate from Washington citizens under the Oregon sales tax.

King County Pays Large
 The figures released show that of this total of a million and a half dollars, King county, in which Seattle is located, pays a little over one-fourth, $576,549.79 while Spokane is quite far down the list with payments of $171,087.89 and Pierce in which Tacoma is located, pays $135,970.72. The other 36 counties being chiefly rural, pay much smaller amounts, running from $46,646.08 in Yakima to but $539.18 in Ferry county.

The smallest county, Ferry, a farming county, while contributing but $539.18 receives back 8 times as much, or $4,232.55. The next county, Skamania, also an agricultural county, pays but $814.38 and receives back 3 1/2 times as much, $3,865.13. Asotin, another small agricultural county, pays but $851.00 and receives back $9,971.88 or ten times as much, while Island county pays $953.83 and receives back $6,184.02, or 6 times as much. Likewise, all of the other counties receive back from 1 to 10 times as much as they pay into the sales tax with the exception of King county (Seattle) which pays in almost $200,000 more than it receives back and Spokane county $50,000 more than it gets back.

Unlike that of Oregon and California which are on retail sales only, the Washington sales tax taxes manufacturers and wholesaler at small rates, thus allowing the doubling up or pyramiding of the tax.

Exhibit Promised—Matt F. Corrigan, chairman of the state game commission, has made an agreement with Max Heihlar, director of agriculture, whereby the commission will place a fish and game exhibit at the state fair this fall.

Permits Drop—Value of building permits issued in Salem dropped to $340 last week after hitting $1010 the week before. Five permits were issued, all for alterations or repairs.

Sue on Contract—A suit asking for strict foreclosure of a contract given for land purchase was filed in circuit court Saturday by Bertha and A. O. Lindloff against Clarence Dunkin.

Fog and Liquor Various Causes Assigned Wreck
 Fog was blamed by Chester C. Crowe, 32 of route eight, for his automobile crashing into a telephone pole here early Saturday. City police, however, booked him on a charge of driving while intoxicated, according to their records. Municipal Judge Poulson released him with orders to appear in court at 2 p. m. Monday.

After a man has been wrestling with the inflation and deflation question it is certainly a relief to have something come up which is easy to see through. I reckon another campaign is about to begin. NEED OF CLOTHING NOTED BY MISSION

The need for second-hand clothing is becoming more pressing every day among Salem's needy folk, according to the superintendent of the Open Door mission. During the first 10 days of this month, 320 garments were given away by the mission after investigation to assure that they went to those who really needed them. Ninety — four per cent of these went to local residents.

The mission is asking for donations of old clothing and shoes, which will be picked up if the donor telephones 6959. The mission women's council, other church and club groups are altering and reconditioning the garments.

Furniture in any condition also is wanted by the mission workers. Repairing is done by the boys' citizenship club.

WARREN JONES OUT FOR RECORDER JOB

Fair License Policy, War on Drunken Driver Pledged by Elk Candidate

A Warren Jones, deputy county assessor, formally announced his candidacy yesterday for the office of city recorder. He said he would file early next week at city hall, Jones has considered making the race for a fortnight. The post is now held by Mark Poulson, who has not yet determined whether or not he will seek reelection. Dr. O. A. Olson, alderman, has already filed for the job.

Jones, in a statement of policy, said he would insist, if elected, that business men paying licenses would be protected from unfair and unregulated competition.

"Everyone knows that a drunk person has no business driving an automobile," Jones said. "They should know that the punishment, if apprehended, will be sure and severe and that they will be driven from our streets."

The recorder's post pays $2400 annually less 10 per cent, the recorder being purchasing agent for the city in addition to recorder and municipal judge.

Jones has been prominent in the Elk lodge here and through the state, serving this year as president of the state organization and exalted ruler here. He is a member of the Eagles lodge and of the Salem Chess club. His full statement follows:

"Friends have recently been besieging me to run for city recorder. I am deeply sensible of the honor and confidence implied by these urgings and after giving the matter serious consideration I have decided to become a candidate.

"The duties of the city recorder will be to run for city recorder and will devote all of my efforts to the end that they may be administered honestly, efficiently and economically.

"The city recorder is by law the purchasing agent of the city. This law was passed for the purpose of saving money for the city through efficient buying. I will devote my efforts to the end that the spending of taxpayers' money will bring the greatest value in return.

"The merchants of the city are required to pay certain license fees for the purpose of regulation of the city for protection against unfair competition. These merchants are entitled to the protection for which they are paying and pledge to them that all cases of this type brought before me as municipal judge will be handled with this end in view.

"Everyone knows that a drunk person has no business driving an automobile. It is equally a part of common knowledge that drunk people do drive automobiles and so far there has been found no way to keep them from doing so. But if they knew that their punishment, if apprehended, will be sure and severe they will be driven from our streets. As municipal judge I will cooperate with

Even you can scarcely see them, and from others they're concealed. But right where the bridge connects with each lens is a tiny golden coil spring—so sensitive, so strong it absorbs every shock. There's the secret of FIRMIFLEX, the exclusive rimless mounting that makes smart glasses smart.

FIRMIFLEX prevents breakage. Shocks and strains which formerly meant broken lenses have little effect on FIRMIFLEX. Always, the lens returns to its proper position. Always, the glasses rest easily, gently, on the nose. Rimless wear—distinctive, trim, becoming—is now possible and practical for everyone.

SCHOOL AT LABISH ENJOYS ACTIVITIES

LAKE LABISH, Feb. 10—Lake Labish school, District 102, has its picture taken this week. The group consisted of 25 pupils and their teacher, Mrs. Albert Girod.

A new pupil entered school this week, Dorothy Dishbrow, fourth grade.

A series of highlights in early Oregon history are being illuminated to the history class by dramatizing certain events.

The students of the school do credible work and are much interested in making Dr. White, Jason Lee and Dr. McLaughlin come to life.

A charming Arbor day exercise in which every child said a brief piece about trees was held here on Friday, February 9.

The children then planted two shining Laurel trees on the school ground. A misguided gray squirrel came out to see his shadow on the school grounds and was promptly caught and caged by Jack Steiger, Panther Brothers, Arthur Kiehl, Roy K. A. K. O. Thomas, Jimmie and Joseph Bennett. The squirrel sits up in his cage in the school and cracks nuts and watches his admiring audience working at arithmetic.
