Blunk and Cahoon Arrested in Dillinger Case; Gross Negligence Claimed

It was then possible for Dillinger, who had locked all the guards in a cell, to stroll into the jail office and pick up the two Thompson machine guns.

The affidavit filed against the two guards charged them with leaving the keys of the jail in "such a position" that it was possible for Dillinger to obtain them.

SIoux FALLS, S. D., March 6.—(AP)—A half dozen cursing machine gun bandits who shot one policeman and slugged another in a spectacular $45,000 daylight bank holdup here today apparently had escaped into Minnesota tonight.

Posse men continued, however, to scour highways, and airplanes flew over adjacent territory in a widespread hunt for them, and law officers of neighboring states were asked to guard all highways they might use.

Officials of the Securities National Bank and Trust company, meanwhile retracted an earlier statement that one of the bandits appeared to resemble John Dillinger, notorious outlaw and killer. Latest reports of the whereabouts of the gang placed them somewhere between Worthington, Minn., and the twin cities.

the love of mother and son, combined with the knowledge that Earle was not happy with Rheta.

In the trial, defense attorneys moved to refute those theories by evidence that Dr. Wynekoop was potentially wealthy in real estate and money owed her; and that she loved Rheta like a daughter, provided her with the best things of life.

REPORT SCHEME TO KIDNAP EDESEL FORD

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—A reported threat to kidnap Edsel Ford, Detroit automotive magnate, two weeks ago, resulted in a hastily organized fishing trip to the lower Florida Keys with guards, armed with machine guns, as members of the party, a reliable source said tonight.

The reported threat was delivered in Detroit shortly before the automobile manufacturer came to Miami Beach on February 18, and some indication that a member or members of the kidnaping gang followed him here led to a request to Sheriff D. C. Coleman for protection, the informant said.

After five days in the Keys, the party returned to their fishing boat to Miami Beach and the guards, one from the Miami police department, another from Sheriff Coleman's office and another from a private agency dispersed.

The informant, a high ranking officer of one of the agencies supplying the guards, said he did not believe there were any guards on duty at present about the Ford cottage on the grounds of a hotel here, other than the usual squad of private detectives that guard the cottage colony.

ROSS INVITED TO CONDUCT CLASSES

Rev. Britton Ross, pastor of the First Baptist church, has been invited by laymen of Corvallis churches to conduct a seven or eight months' bible class there each Tuesday night, starting next week. Preliminary to the class, which will deal with the book of Revelations, a mass meeting will be held at Pilgrim hall in Corvallis Sunday afternoon, which meeting Rev. Ross will attend.

The local pastor has also been invited to address a mass meeting of Portland Baptist youths at a downtown Portland church Friday, March 16, and to address the Sunday school convention at Pratum, March 25.

The series of special messages which Rev. Ross has been bringing to his own congregation here have met with great success and a satisfactory number of conversions, he states.

COMMUNITY CLUBS' SUPPORT IS ASKED

The executive committee of Salem Garden club at last night's meeting at the chamber of commerce was directed to investigate the possibilities of cooperation with and from community clubs throughout the county and report back at the April meeting. It is planned, if interest is shown in the scheme, for the Salem club to admit three members from each community club to enlarge the scope of the local organization. L. J. Chapin, president of the Marion county federation of community clubs represented his organization last night.

Garden work for children, club activities throughout the state and the roadside beautification program were discussed by Mrs. H. J. Pearson, president of the Oregon Federation of Garden clubs and main speaker of the meeting.

WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH AT SEATTLE

SEATTLE, March 6.—(AP)—A fire at the Hitt fireproofs plant here today burned one woman to death and injured two others.

Mrs. Lillian McCrea, 35, a widow, and mother of five children, was trapped in the flames. Mrs. Josephine Smith, 43, was seriously burned on the face and legs. Mrs. Olive Veshlage was slightly burned.

Survivors said the fire started when a spark from a faulty electric connection dropped into a bench covered with powder. There was a blinding flash and the flames roared through the frame shed, one of 25 buildings comprising the plant.

M'NARY AID ON LOAN IS ASKED

McKay Not Anxious to Make Trip East; Decision of Waite Protested

City officials here have repeatedly queried PWA as to its exact terms for securing the loan but have never received a fully satisfactory answer.

If the PWA does rescind the agreement, it is considered likely that some of the council opponents of the condemnation proceedings now under way against the Oregon-Washington Water Service company and others will seek to have the city's suit withdrawn. At present a decision from Federal Judge Fee is anticipated soon as to whether or not the case should be tried in federal court, as asked by the water company. In circuit court orders are pending from Judge L. H. McMahan relative to demurrers filed by defendants named in the city's complaint.

W. U. ARGUERS WIN LINFIELD CONTEST

Seven Willamette university debaters returned from a contest at Linfield college at McMinnville in which they won the only decision debate of the program and claimed victory in the three no-decision arguments. Participating were Ross Knotts, Garfield Barnett, William Mosher, Richard Lucke, Joseph Scott, Frederick Spies and George McLeod.

The varsity debate squad's next competition will be in the Pacific coast P. Kappa Delta Invitational tourney at California Institute of Technology, Pasadena, March 22, in which Barnett, Knotts and Mosher will enter. March 26, 27 and 28 they will represent Willamette in the Pacific Forensic league contests at Stanford university, Palo Alto, Cal., along with Talbot Bennett, orator, and John Rudin, after dinner and extemporaneous speaker, who with Professor Herbert E. Rahe will join them there.

Mosher reported last night that plans were being formulated for next year's debate squad to make a circle tour taking in Chicago and New Orleans. There will be no more varsity debates in the northwest this year but a Willamette freshman team will meet College of Puget Sound and University of Washington March 15 at Tacoma and Seattle, Wash., respectively.

GRAND OPENING OF ARMORY IS SLATED

DALLAS, March 6.—Company L, Oregon national guard, is sponsoring a big grand opening of the Dallas armory on Saturday night, March 10, with a dance. The armory has recently been completed and the work on the main auditorium has been completed and the armory will be opened to the public for the first time for this dance.

Plans for the affair have not been completed but the guard committee expects to complete the arrangements soon. The dance is scheduled to start at 9:00 o'clock with a good orchestra furnishing the music. Free coffee and doughnuts will be served at the dance.

The armory received a new roof and a complete remodeling on the inside as part of the CWA work in the county. The club rooms have been refurnished and new floors laid. The work in the main auditorium included a new hardwood floor, rewiring the room and new light fixtures, paneling the walls, and refinishing the ceiling. According to officers of the guard company, the dance floor is now the best in Polk county with no exceptions.

Spauldings Are Parents of Girl

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Spaulding of Dallas are the parents of a seven and one-quarter pound girl, born at Salem General hospital at 9 o'clock last night. They have named their daughter Doris Helen. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Albert of Salem are grandparents of the child. Mrs. Spaulding, formerly Josephine Albert, and Mr. Spaulding are both graduates of Willamette university.

Union Pacific's Speed Train Due March 24, Word

The new 110-miles-an-hour Union Pacific train is scheduled to arrive in Salem on the Southern Pacific tracks at 9:35 a. m. Saturday, March 24, according to an advance schedule received here yesterday. The train will be on display to the public from noon until 10 p. m. Saturday night when the train leaves for Portland where it will be shown for two days.

The new train is made of aluminum and powered with high-speed engines in the first of the three coaches which comprise the equipment. It has a speed of 110 miles an hour on straight-aways. It will be put into use this summer by the Union Pacific and is expected to be the forerunner of a number of fast trains on other lines which will greatly reduce present transcontinental schedules. The design of the new train reduces air resistance and its light weight adds to its mobility.

TROOPERS LAUNCH DRIVE ON TRUCKS

The state police, in cooperation with the state utilities commission, Tuesday launched a drive to "mop up" bus and truck operators who have not yet paid their annual license fees.

"Every state trooper in the district has been instructed to aid in this campaign," Charles P. Pray, superintendent of state police, declared. He said a large number of arrests had been made previously, but that the efforts of his department had been hampered by justice and circuit courts which had refused to fine many of the violators.

Pray said that many truck and bus operators who had applied for a license had failed to obtain a bond and insurance protection as required under the 1933 act.

Officials said the revenues probably would fall far short of the $200,000 estimated at the time the bus and truck law was passed.

MONSTERS OF SEA HOLD CONVENTION

CHERBOURG, France, March 6.—(AP)—It was one season on "sea monsters" in this coastal section today and like a snow ball rolling down hill, the list of them grew alarmingly.

Two new marine "monsters," making three in all, and a lot of little "monsters" were found, making it quite a field day for monster fans, hundreds of whom were attracted to the sea shore.

Some sought to determine whether one of the strangers was the famed serpent of Loch Ness, Scotland, credited with making the world once more sea-serpent-conscious.

After the monster found at Querequille, 13 miles from here, last week got in the papers in such big type, sailors in nearby towns reported marine relics which at first had been regarded merely as smelly nuisances.

The second monster was reported at Greville while bodies of small fish much of the same form were also washed up on the coast and are believed to be members of a mysterious shark family, which is being studied by scientists.

CWA Survey Crew Gets Busy Here

Surveying on Marion county CWA projects was begun yesterday by Edward E. Wilson, local civilian engineer, and two chainmen under a special allotment for this work. Their first job will be on the Schaefer hill project east of Salem on which the hill is being cut down. Although county officials have around a dozen projects under allotment, they are uncertain as to how many will be completed because of the week-by-week reductions in crews. The survey team will work only CWA projects.

FORD AGREES WITH ROOSEVELT POLICY

Jobs to Create Market Big Need; Difficulty Seen
by Auto Magnate

(Copyright 1934, by The Associated Press.)

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Comfortable seated in his garage-workshop, Henry Ford today voiced agreement with President Roosevelt's recovery program and, commenting on the president's advice to industry, said "The only way to hire more men is to create more markets."

"The men with new jobs will furnish new markets," said Ford. "The difficulty, as far as industry is concerned, is finding a place to employ the men before the market exists to make their employment profitable."

"More men will manufacture more goods and industry must find a market for their products or the jobs will eat up the industry."

Then Ford launched into his favorite subject—farming and back to the soil. In an undertone of serious conviction, he said: "The great thing as I see it today is the back-to-the-land movement. There is the answer to making people self sustaining rather than dependent upon industry which at its best, is uncertain and seasonal. When ever people learn to become self sustaining on farms or in small rural communities, then industry will seek out these communities. Industry will follow people to the smaller towns and many of our problems will be solved."

"For when people become self sustaining, they will soon start to accumulate a surplus. This surplus, in turn, will create new markets. As far as the Ford Motor company is concerned, we made the mistake at first made by all industries, and centralized our production. But having seen the error in this method, we are now sending men out into the country and contracting for many of our finished and raw materials which go into the manufacture of automobiles from small decentralized industries scattered over the country."

Returning to the text of Mr. Roosevelt's speech, which he said he listened to over the radio and read in the newspapers, Mr. Ford said: "I notice that he left out transportation and injected baking into his survey of the situation. That is putting the cart before the horse. The three principal arts are agriculture, industry, and transportation. Of recent years, men have tried to make money on an art. Money has been overplayed as a factor in recovery. During the past few years, thousands of persons thought they could live off money—needed only money to make more money—and create wealth by the manipulation of finance. They can't do it. They must get back to actual and useful production."

"For this reason, it is important that no one hinders the back to land movement. Big cities are a mistake when they are so organized that half of the people are out of work with nothing to fall back on when their jobs disappear. People dependent upon cities are in a dangerous position, people who have learned to be self sustaining by working the land never fear business depressions. The bulk of the people should be in villages instead of jammed into cities. I don't believe man was ever intended to live the highly competitive and artificial existence forced on to them in a big city."

"Cities have their uses, however. Don't think I would advocate abolishing them. I have come to the point in my thinking where I grant every institution a purpose for existence. It would not exist without reason. Young men can gain experience and education in cities, if the young man carries this knowledge back to the country, he will be able to appreciate real living on a more genuine basis. In other words, people must learn to adapt a simple scale of living."

Senator Brown received an ovation long to be remembered when introduced by Chairman G. T. Wadsworth, the entire audience stood up, cheered and applauded for several minutes. Brown made a brief talk on state political subjects, and suggested remedies for many of the greater ills.

Senator Charles K. Spaulding of Salem, Roy R. Hewitt, formerly dean of law at Willamette university, E. B. Smith of the truckmen's association, Arthur Greer and Jack Johnson, master of the Fairfield grange, also spoke.

The girls' Glee club of the Gervais high school furnished the music.

Roosevelt Liked by Men of Press, Says Pinkley;

(Copyright 1934, by The Associated Press.)

Oral sketches of world-noted men were presented to the Salem Kiwanis club Tuesday noon by Virgil Pinkley, United Press manager here, who recounted his experiences as a reporter in meeting Lloyd George, Bernard Shaw, Mahatma Gandhi and President Roosevelt.

Pinkley praised the enforcement of law in England saying America must go far in order to develop a police system similar to England's where officers are well-trained for years, consider their work a life-time profession and are above political influence. The same devotion to duty prevails in British public office which is entered by the British youth as a career of service rather than of money making.

Great news events are flashed around the world by the press associations in three minutes from the time the event occurs, Pinkley said. He interested the club by his recounting of the news handling of a pre-mortuary conference and of "Bobby" Jones playing at the British open golf championship.

Pinkley presented Roosevelt as a man of infectious personality, warmly liked by the press. The president told the capital press representatives at the time the "new deal" started that many of his actions would be innovations, only a portion of which would succeed, the speaker stated. Roosevelt said he was assured that the time demanded change and experimentation.
