Riches Says Reduction Work Delayed When Farmers Hold Up Facts

Marion county hog raisers can aid the corn-hog program and reduce its cost of operation by listing necessary information on the proper forms before requesting the county agent or the community committee for help, according to Joseph Berni, Mt. Angel, president of the county committee.

Callers at the county agent's office run from 20 to 40 per day. Much time is lost because necessary information called for on the forms has not been provided that the sign-up campaign is being slowed up materially, Berni finds.

The essential information which is often incomplete or lacking is the crop acreage and total acres of land in all farms operated by the producer in 1932 and 1933. Every item should be filled in with a number or a zero. Number of spring and fall litters for both 1932 and 1933 must be listed with number of hogs raised from these litters and what was done with them. Hogs sold from 1932 and 1933 litters must be accounted for in separate tables on the sheet for listing supporting evidence.

Legal Title Required
Legal description of the farm is required as it appears on the tax statements or deed. Every grower must make a map of his farm showing roads leading to the farm, and location of buildings. If more than one farm is operated there must be a map for each farm.

There are 350 contracts in the office of County Agent Riches now, and it is thought at least 200 more are still in the hands of the growers being made out. The task of checking contracts and accompanying papers for corrections in accordance with regulations has been started Riches reports. This job will be continued simultaneously with additional sign-up meetings. Repeat sign-up meetings will be held as follows:

- Monday, March 12, from 9 to 12, Hubbard, city hall.
- Monday, March 12, from 1 to 4, St. Paul, K. C. hall.
- Thursday, March 15, from 9 to 5, Silvertown, city hall.
- Monday, March 19, from 9 to 5, Mt. Angel, city hall.
- Tuesday, March 20, from 1 to 5, Jefferson, Masonic temple.

Profits Made Now in Jacksonville Mining

"The Play's the Thing" With Uncle Sam

With a plan before President Roosevelt calling for the establishment of a National Theater Organization on a loan of $1,000,000 from Federal funds, to subsidize the commercial theater, the first steps have been taken, it is believed, toward a national art theater under the sponsorship of Uncle Sam. Above are shown individuals who are likely to figure in the program. Mrs. Roosevelt is suggested as chairman of the advisory committee to guide the destinies of the organization, and the names of Mrs. Charles Sabin, Otto Kahn, Nicholas Murray Butler, and a host of drama patrons are linked with the plan. Arthur Hopkins and Eddie Dowling are likely to figure in the production end of the organization.

al boundary question, started civil government here, and saved this whole coast to the United States — extended the arc of our republic from the sands of the Pacific ocean. Without Lee, at the very time he came, and being the very man he was, the British flag would now fly over all the Pacific coast, at least from Alaska's southern line to Mexico's northern border — and likely over the whole of it, from Berhinger sea to land's end of the North American continent.

Indeed, there must be a Jason Lee stamp; with glory enough in the securing of it for every man anywhere under the Stars and Stripes, of whatever party, race or color. The writer moves to make it unanimous.

J. S. Stowell did not meet Congressman Mott, but he met Mr. Mott's secretary, and what the secretary told the chief about the plans of the Methodist missionary society evidently enthused the Salem man in the lower house, as shown by what he writes concerning the covered wagon caravan to leave Boston April 16 and arrive in Salem September 8.

"The Pastor's Journal," edited by Mr. Stowell, published bi-monthly by the Methodist mission board from its Philadelphia headquarters building, 1701 Arch street, in its current (March) number, devotes its major space of 24 pages to information concerning the 1934 centenary celebration. The magazine goes to every outstanding preacher and missionary worker of the Methodist church around the world. This is not the first such issue. The January, 1933, number had as much space given to the 1934 big event of Methodism.

I ain't so keen for a country where in the winter a man has to go into the house and snuggle up to the stove to get cooled off."

Thus far this has been an extremely trying winter in these parts for the "Y." Yes, it gets colder back yonder, but it's so dry you don't notice it," folks.

I have never known a kind word to do anyone harm, whether it was seriously intended or not. Folks from over in the hills say that owing to the shortage of snow the Willamette river and its connections will not be able to give their customary high water carnival this spring. And that perhaps is what has been causing the wild geese to act as they have been acting.

Give a goose, wild or otherwise, anything resembling an excuse and he'll worry. That is because he's a goose.

FOWL PRICES HOLD UP, DEMAND GOOD

Lent Not Depressing Meat Trade; Butter Steady; Potato Deal Dull

PORTLAND, March 10. — (AP) — Despite the cent cut in the price on Leghorn fowls on the produce exchange for the week — and season, there was no relaxation of demand or lowering of price generally in the trade here.

Demand for chickens of all sorts continued firm and prices were firm to higher. All sorts except Leghorns were higher on the produce exchange for the week end and the former were just as high on the open market.

Occasional small lots of broilers are arriving and bringing premiums even above quoted figures.

Trade in the butter market was holding up well and without further price change for the week end. Demand however was best for firsts and for standards with some extras selling at the same price as the latter.

While there was no open market change in the egg price for the week end, sales continued from 14 to 16 cents for extras with buying values as high as the latter. Eastern demand continued keen.

Lenten season has thus far had little or no effect upon the market for country killed meats. Veal, hogs, beef and lamb continue to sell freely with the recent price range.

Much disappointment was expressed regarding the lack of snap in potato buying. While occasional suggestion of activity was reported from the source, still most of this appeared forced while consuming markets were well stocked.

Tires Steadier Than Solid Ground

The largest privately-owned telescope in the United States has just become the largest portable telescope in the world. When S. M. Stoodly, astronomer, scientist and manufacturer of Whittier, Calif., had this huge Carl Zeiss telescope made for him in Germany three years ago, he installed it in the tower of his country home. Finding that the most favorable locations for making astronomical observations varied, he conceived the idea of mounting the telescope on an automobile so that it might be moved to the most favorable locations. Mr. Stoodly says that the streamline Jumbo tires on the car on which the telescope is mounted have eliminated all vibration and have made it possible to transport the telescope safely over rough roads at ordinary car speed. He says there is even less vibration in the telescope, when mounted on the Jumbo-equipped car, than when mounted on a solid concrete base imbedded in the earth. The General streamline Jumbo tire is distributed locally by Jim and Bill.
