

YOUTHFUL HEIRS IN AMERICA SHUN SPOT

Some Work, Others Travel; Few Active in 'Society'; One Won't Smile

NEW YORK, April 12. — (AP) — Most of the youthful heirs of America's wealthiest families have one trait in common — they are shunning as much as they can the spotlight which beats upon their famous names.

Some hold steady jobs; others devote much time to travel. Few have a major interest in "society."

For young men and women of such fortunes, most of them are singularly unassuming. — Doris Duke, Helen Lee Doherty, Princess Barbara Hutton Mdivani, the younger Rockefeller, John Jacob Astor, 3rd, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Paul Mellon, Richard Reynolds and Woolworth Donahue.

Donahue, grandson of the late F. W. Woolworth and cousin of Princess Barbara, sailed only today for Africa to hunt specimens for the American Museum of Natural History. With him were two other social registerites — Sidney Smith and Curtis Hutton, the latter also a cousin of the princess.

Young Vanderbilt returned last month from an African expedition. Hurrying down the gangplank with trophies of a long hunt, he said nothing.

"Alfred's a quiet boy," commented his mother.

Another distant traveler is young Astor, who sailed for the Orient after his engagement with Miss Eileen S. S. Gillespie was broken. When his ship stopped at Shanghai recently, a photographer for whom he was posing asked him to smile.

"I never smile," said the wiry, athletic youth.

SEVEN DILLINGER AIDES ARE SOUGHT

ST. PAUL, April 12. — (AP) — Criminology's latest page, marked with murder and stolen gold, was bared by the authorities today as John Dillinger and his dangerous mob of machine gunners and kidnapers continued to elude the law.

All save Evelyn Frechette, friend of Dillinger, and Eugene Green, have successfully dodged the government which sought them to answer for murder in Wisconsin, kidnaping in Minnesota, and robbery in South Dakota and Iowa, deeds stained by at least five deaths and $500,000 in ill-gotten gain.

The outlaw's woman friend, held in Chicago, was named in a warrant issued for her removal here. She and John Hamilton, chief lieutenant of Dillinger, were accused of harboring the Crown Point, Ind., jail breaker and robber, in a St. Paul apartment. Hamilton is at large.

Dillinger and the Frechette girl shot their way out with a machine gun March 31.

Green, shot down with a machine gun three days later, died yesterday.

Seven others, however, were hiding away: Harry Campbell, Alvin Karpis, Fred and "Doc" Barker, all of Tulsa, Okla.; Tommy Carroll, Homer Van Meter, alias Wayne, of Chicago, and George "Baby Face" Nelson, Chicago.

Infant Girl Born to Griffith Dies; Buried Jefferson

SCIO, April 12. — The infant daughter born April 10 to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Griffin at the F. C. Haynes farm near Scio, was buried at Jefferson, April 11. Mrs. Griffin, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Haynes, is reported getting along well.

Mrs. J. F. Sanders, who has been in declining health for several months, is reported somewhat improved at the Portland medical hospital, where she has been taking the rest cure for a short time.

Max Weasley is preparing the building first door north of the Red and White store for his confectionery, soft drinks and beer business, which will be opened as soon as practicable.

In Politics

Maureen Orcutt, New Jersey golf star, who has won virtually every title except national championship, makes her bow in political field as a candidate for State Assemblywoman from Bergen County, N. J. She believes it is only a short putt to victory.
