Rain Not of Material Help Says Relief Chairman; U.S. Aid Needed

port that conditions would "materially affect the national food supply." Agreeing with President Roosevelt, who pressed a program for $225,000,000 relief to suffering farmers, that there was no danger of famine, the department asserted total production of wheat, feed grains and hay would be greatly reduced.

Harvest of the drought have taken such a toll in wheat fields that the crop from present indications, the department said, was reported likely to be "much below" harvests of any of the last 25 years, with the possible exception of 1933. The livestock supply has been reduced, many animals being too weak to stand shipment and others too thin to be of value.

INFLATION OPPOSED IN G. O. P. PROGRAM

tion has committed the country to a program which unless checked will lead to the chaos of unlimited inflation. The slowly accumulated savings and the present earnings of the people are being consumed recklessly by the government. At the very threshold of life, the youth of the nation is being saddled with unbearable burdens.

"There is nothing new in most of the present political and economic experiments. History records a long record of failure of similar experiments. As often in the past, the people least able to bear the burden will be the chief sufferers from the mistakes of misguided bureaucrats, who ignore history."

"Even if, by tyranny, government could assure material well-being—which it cannot—it is too heavy a price to pay."

"Given liberty of expression and of action, the people are better able to find a solution of their problems than any groups of autocrats."

"We believe in freedom of speech and in freedom of the press, and in freedom of the radio for the discussion of national questions."

"We believe in an economic system, based upon individual initiative, and the maintenance of competition, checked by government regulation—not in an economic system based upon bureaucratic control and bureaucratic management."

"We believe that the present emergency laws vesting dictatorial powers in the president must never be permitted to become a permanent part of our government system."

"We believe that we cannot spend our way to prosperity."

DEFENSE OF PAYNE WILL BE INSANITY

LOS ANGELES, June 6.—(AP)—The defense of the 40-year-old Louis Payne against a charge of slaying his mother, Mrs. Carrie L. Payne, and brother, Robert, 14, with a hand axe last week will be not guilty by reason of insanity, his father, Lucius Payne announced today.

The elder Payne made the announcement after a coroner's jury returned a verdict holding that the youth attacked his mother and brother "with homicidal intent" but expressed no opinion as to his mental condition.

District Attorney Byron Pitts said the case will be taken before the grand jury tomorrow. He also ordered that three alienists examine Louis, who has insisted to police he could not rationally account for the killings.

"Using less material than usual, he has achieved considerably more strength in the structure itself," he said.

Baldock estimated that Oregon should get about $4,800,000 highway money if legislation now before congress is approved.

The commission decided to print for free distribution some 70,000 state highway maps.

No funds are available for oiling the detour road between Woodburn and Mt. Angel, the commission replied to a petition for the oiling to eliminate dust.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 6.—(AP)

The cannery steamer North King completed loading tonight and prepared to sail for Alaskan fishing waters in the morning after completing its westward trip.

The ship was loaded by 42 members of the International Longshoremen's association under a special agreement. Otherwise the 22 miles of Portland's waterfront remained strike-bound, and complaints of losses mounted.

A group of shippers of lumber, grain, flour and general merchandise, and importers of inbound cargo, pleaded that employers and longshoremen strike toward immediate settlement of the strike to halt the many financial ramifications.

"The losses mounting daily as a result of this strike are staggering and must be prevented even though concessions must be made by one side or the other, or both," the group's statement said.

The waterfront employers of Portland were advised by telegraph today that 1600 longshoremen worked cargo at San Francisco yesterday and that the port of Los Angeles is operating on a 90 per cent basis.

PORTABLE CANNERY PACK TO BE LARGE

Three times as large a pack of fruits and vegetables will be put through the county's portable relief cannery this year as last, it was announced yesterday. Word was received that the federal government would pay for 300,000 cans, probably of the No. 2 1/2 size, as against the 97,800 used last summer.

With more cans available, the county relief committee anticipates it will be able to save for winter use by relief families fruits and vegetables of all sorts and that are grown in relief gardens or donated. Last season it was limited to beans, tomatoes and stew in spite of the fact that several tons could have been had for the picking.

It is estimated each family on relief can have as high as 200 or 300 cans of foods next winter under the present allotment of funds. Plans are being laid for placing the cannery in operation as soon as the cans are received.

SILAGE PIT FOUND SUCCESSFUL HERE

Doubts of Neighbors Based on Moisture Unfounded, Kuensting Reports

Ensilage from the ground pit dug and filled as an experiment last fall by F. G. Kuensting of route one, Woodburn, is the best he has ever had for his stock, Mr. Kuensting reported while in Salem yesterday to attend the Marion county Jersey spring show.

Kuensting conceived the idea of trying a pit, such as is used in the east, when he found he had more than enough corn to fill his silo, and went ahead with the idea in spite of protestations of neighbors that rains would cause the fodder to rot. He opened the pit two weeks ago, and use of the ensilage to date convinces him that it is better than that from the regular silo.

The pit, dug 10 feet deep and 8 feet in diameter, he did not line, but simply filled the earthen hole in the same manner he did the regular silo. He put only a dirt covering about two feet deep over the top, but when he repeats this method of putting down his corn this fall he will erect a shed or roof over it, and fence it in to keep stock from running over it.

Kuensting plans to dig a second pit this fall near the first one. The one now in use is on the highest spot on the farm, near the home site. This method, he believes, keeps the ensilage cooler and makes it more even in feeding than does the wooden silo familiar on farms in this area.

The corn placed in the ground pit was a bit ripper than that which went into the regular silo, but outside of this there was no difference, so Kuensting does not believe this alone sufficient to account for the better quality of that taken from the experimental "silo."

The Kuensting farm is seven miles northwest from Woodburn, or due west from Hubbard.

Macleay Gardeners Have More Signs Topsy Season

MACLEAY, June 6.—Macleay gardeners are producing not only oddities this year but both fruit and flowers entirely out of season.

Mrs. Edith Wilson was enjoying raspberries before strawberries were ripe, Mrs. J. F. C. Tekenburg reported a double snapdragon in her garden some time ago and now she has a chrysanthemum which ordinarily blooms in October, in blossom. It is of the garden variety, the plant is of the usual height and flowers are of the ordinary size.

V. L. Marten has been experimenting with a Russian thistle in his garden and has quite an oddity. Its bright foliage and size attracted his attention so just to see what it would do he began picking off the side growth. He now has a thistle much above his head with a thick stalk and huge glistening leaves.

STATE CANNOT RULE BRANCH U.S. BANKS

Oregon Act Ordering Branch Statements Does Not Apply to Nationals

Branches of national banks operating in this state need not make public statements of condition as regards the individual branches, Attorney General Van Winkle ruled yesterday. He made his opinion in answer to an inquiry directed to him by A. A. Schramm, state bank superintendent. Schramm inquired if national banks had to give such statements as required in a law passed in the second special session of the 1933 legislature.

The attorney general held that national banks and their branches were subject to federal, not state jurisdiction and cited two court opinions to the effect that states were powerless to regulate them.

While the federal act permitting branch banks made such branch establishment subject to state laws regarding their location, nothing in the act, according to Schramm, permits states to prescribe the statements of condition as a condition precedent to the establishment of a branch of a national bank.

The practical effect of the decision is to continue for all national banks with branches, merged statements of condition. Local communities where such banks are located are not informed of the amount of deposits or of loans received or made by the branch in that area.

QUIGLEY EXPLAINS CHANGE OF PLANS

William Quigley, member of Quigley Brothers, contractors engaged in erecting the Putnam building on Chemekeeta street, announced last night that he would obtain 50 per cent of the carpenters needed on the job from Portland and pay them $1 an hour for a 30-hour week, conforming to the new Salem union carpenters' scale. Carpentering operations were temporarily suspended yesterday.

Quigley said the men from Portland are "familiar with this type of construction."

"I started out giving all the work to the Salem men," Quigley explained, "even though most of them were not efficient at this type of work. I even had a good, efficient foreman in Portland who was anxious to come here but I didn't take him because I wanted to keep the work in Salem."

Quigley declared it "was a good four weeks after I had bid in the job that I learned of a change in the carpenters' scale here."

REVUE OF DANCERS IS WELL ATTENDED

Audience Pleased as 80 of Barbara Barnes' Pupils Go Through Paces

By JESSIE STEELE

Chubby pink legs flashing or faltering through a rhythmic dance routine—dazzling costumes and a fairy-story setting—Barbara Barnes' annual dance revue at the Elsinore theatre last night and again tonight delights its packed house for the full hour and 45 minutes of its duration.

Highlights are all that are possible in describing such a lengthy performance that includes 80 kiddies. Spectacular are the boneless wonders known as the Fiddlers Three in scanty but stretchy red suits—flawless in its execution is the George Porgie number with three charming brunettes in yellow, tantalizing Georgie with an intricate toe routine.

The rank and file of the Woodmen Soldiers do a tap that never misses in its timing and soldierly precision. . . . the toe dance by the tiny bunny with the "cool" costume is worth seeing if only because of the extreme youth of the dancer—Jack and Jill in their comely adagio bring down the house. . . . and the grand finale "Rhythmic Design" is practically professional in its ambitious costuming and pattern.

Talent and hours of practice show through Miss Barnes' revue and the fact that not a seat was left at the theatre gives testimony that the public appreciates the effort put forth.

MEMORIAL SERVICE HONORS R. V. WILSON

Many Friends Show Sorrow at Tragic Drowning of Englewood Pastor

Memorial services for Rev. Robert V. Wilson, popular young minister of the Englewood United Brethren church who was drowned in the ocean near Neilscott May 30, were held yesterday afternoon at the Clough-Barrick chapel. Bishop Ira D. Warner of Portland, of the United Brethren church, delivered the eulogy. Rev. Wilson's body has not been recovered.

The chapel was filled to capacity for the services, in which Rev. F. G. Roscoe, Portland, offered prayer and presented the obituary. Dr. E. W. Petticord of the Evangelical church, representing the Salem ministerial association, paid fitting tribute to the departed member.

The Knight Memorial church trio, Harriet Adams, Mrs. Roy Harland and Carol Braden, sang, with Donald Allison at the organ. Twenty-two Salem ministers attended in a group, and members of the Y.M.C.A. volleyball team on which Wilson played, also attended in a body.

A profusion of flowers gave further evidence of esteem in which Rev. Wilson was held by congregation and friends.
