

INDEPENDENTS SEEKING ENTRY

Nominee of Neither Party Satisfies Belligerent Oregon Mavericks

man on the ranking list of Oregon independent candidates for governor but the players above him have scratched themselves from the list. Rufus Holman has decided the people are not interested in their own salvation and has retired, with a summer vacation trip through the east. Sam Brown is back on the farm; he cannot be a Cincinnatus this year, no matter how much the independents want him, because of the legal inhibition in Oregon against a defeated candidate becoming an independent aspirant.

The Ray Gill boom has resounded upon all the independents the last fortnight and Gill, at the grange convention this week in Roseburg, will be "talked to." He is said to turn a deaf ear to entreaties to run independent for the governorship because Multnomah voters gave him such handsome support for the state senatorship.

C. M. Thomas has been talked extensively as a candidate but is represented as not being interested. Thomas had the supposed powder in his anti-utility date to supply any independent candidate as Mahoney was provisioned in the latter's campaign.

So Zimmerman, by elimination, is left. Evangelic, experienced and a man of personal vigor, the radical Yamhillite might make quite a stir in Oregon, come November. Here last weekend for a Farmers Union meeting, Zimmerman admitted he had been approached and was considering making the race.

The problem of all the independent candidates, prospective or actual, is funds. Zimmerman is similarly bothered. There is no party organization to recruit its free workers into an independent's fold. Independent candidates, J. L. Meier excepted, invariably have no funds of their own. That's the problem bothering Zimmerman.

Four years ago an independent did sweep the field in Oregon. But $60,000 cash funds went into the war chest. And there was public protest at the manner in which a republican convention had chosen its gubernatorial representative. The omens are not auspicious for an independent in '34 as in '30.

ANOTHER ELECTION MYSTERY APPEARS

Not a "green ticket" but a penny postal card is the latest election mystery.

Salem school teachers yesterday were receiving in the mails such cards bearing the mimeographed admonition, "Don't forget the school election Monday June 18th. William J. Entress is the teachers' candidate."

As in the case of the "green ticket" in the city election last month, this postal card does not bear the name of its author and its printer as required by the corrupt practices act.

Entress is understood to have the general support of the Salem local union of the American Federation of Teachers, an American Federation of Labor affiliate. The local, however, has not officially endorsed Entress. Gertrude Shuler, president, and Latin instructor at the senior high school, declared yesterday. She declined to comment on the authorship of the postal.

MILTON TAYLOR IS CADET LIEUTENANT

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 12. — Appointments of new cadet officers at the U. S. military academy were announced by Major General William D. Connor, superintendent, after the completion of graduation exercises here today.

Appointments included Lieutenant Milton C. Taylor of Salem, Ore.

Milton Taylor will be a senior next year at West Point. During the past year he has been a student corporal. He was outstanding in his gymnasium work and represented the school in a number of intercollegiate gymnasium events. As a recognition of his general ability, he was chosen a member of the council, a senior organization composed of 12 upper-class West Pointers.

Taylor was home last summer for the furlough granted at the end of two years at the academy. He will remain in the east this summer.

JUG OF WATER SETS AUTOMOBILE AFIRE

H. O. Von Behren, 645 South 12th street, came all too close to having a gallon of cold, clear water make a bonfire out of his automobile. And so he's passing the story along to others who might find themselves in the same predicament if they don't watch out.

VonBehren went to Aumsville Monday, and while there filled a gallon jug with cold water, proposing to bring it back here with him. He set the jug, which was partly covered with burlap, in the back of his car. For a moment it was a man with whom VonBehren was conversing called his attention to smoke emanating from the car.

SINO-JAPANESE FRICTION GAINS

Disappearance of Nipponese Vice-Consul Cause for More Bickering

The Japanese residents of Nanking to remain calm. There are fewer than 100 Japanese living here.

SHANGHAI, June 13. — (AP) — The disappearance of a Japanese vice-consul in Nanking was made a matter of serious international importance today with the delivery of a warning to China that Japan holds her responsible and reserves the right to take appropriate action.

The Japanese position was given officially to the Chinese government at Nanking by Yorkitchi Suma, Japanese consul general, as no trace was found of the vice-consul, Eimei Kuramoto, who disappeared last Friday.

Japan, the consul general told the foreign office, may demand indemnity.

Meanwhile the Japanese legation here said Japanese living in Nanking are somewhat alarmed because of "the unpleasant relations with the Chinese police in recent days."

This condition, it was said, was the reason for dispatching Japanese warships to Nanking.

CARROT THEME FOR RECIPES THIS WEEK

sweet relish add flavor to liver sandwiches.

Devil Liver Sandwiches
1 pound calf's liver
sauté dressing
buttered bread
salt

Have the liver cut in thick slices. Place in pan with cold water to cover and let water come to a boil. Remove and drain liver. When dry, cook deep fat until cooked through but not crisp. Put through meat chopper. Salt to taste. Place in glass jar in cool place and when needed, add salad dressing to the quantity desired.

MRS. T. G. BOYT

Mrs. T. G. Yarem, also of route 9, suggests the following method for keeping sandwiches fresh on a picnic: Wrap them in waxed paper. Wrap clean cloth out of cold water and fold about waxed paper package. Over the damp cloth place a second dry cloth and sandwiches inside will stay fresh in the hottest weather.

60 CHERRIANS WILL MARCH AT FESTIVAL

Will Leave Salem by 10:17 Regular Train Thursday Morning, Decided

At an enthusiastic meeting of the Cherrians held last evening at the chamber of commerce, it was definitely indicated that 60 or more Cherrians would attend the Portland rose festival Thursday to take part in the grand floral parade.

Cherrians, commanded by Carl D. Gabrielson, will be uniformed in tuxedos, with white straw hats, white trousers, white shoes, and black four-in-hand ties. Float escorts, color bearers and color guards will be uniformed entirely in white.

The Cherrian float will be preceded by the tuxedo members of the Cherrians with a special band allotted to the Salem group for the parade.

George L. Arbutkie, king bing, appointed as a special attendance committee, Ray Bonesteel, chairman, Kenneth Perry, Willis Clark and Donald Deekbach.

As a clean-up committee to handle sales of rose festival buttons, Arbutkie appointed R. W. Niles general chairman and J. T. Delaney, special chairman, with authority to select their own workers. This committee will appear to business and professional men to donate one dollar or at least purchase one rose festival button, receipts from which will be used entirely for construction of the Cherrian float.

Cherrians have been generous in buying Rose festival buttons and this special clean-up committee is now appealing to the business and professional men of the city.

Cherrians will leave Thursday morning on the regular Southern Pacific train at 10:17 o'clock, all assembling at the Southern Pacific depot at 10 a. m. From the Portland Union station they will march to the Portland hotel, headquarters, and are ordered to report at Multnomah stadium at 1:30 o'clock, meeting with the Cherrian float. The grand parade will leave the stadium at 2 o'clock.

GENE EBERHART TO ARRIVE HERE TODAY

Gene Eberhart of Eugene, who will be instructor-in-chief for the Red Cross learn-to-swim campaign here June 13 to 27, will come to Salem today for a conference at 2:30 p. m. with R. S. Keene, campaign chairman; Judge George Rossman, chairman of Willamette chapter, Red Cross, and Helen Pettyjohn Lamb, Red Cross secretary. They will meet in Keene's office on the Willamette university campus.

The swimming campaign will mark the opening of the summer playground season here. Ten more SERA workmen were added to the crew at Olinger field yesterday to insure the pool's being ready for the Monday opening. The Leslie pool probably will not be opened for two or three weeks. Children and adults are eligible.

SNELL HERE ON WAY TO PARTY MEETING

Earl C. Snell, republican nominee as secretary of state, will keep his speaking appointments during the summer months but otherwise will devote himself to his business interests at Arlington. This was the word he brought to the capitol yesterday on his way to a meeting of republicans held last night at Corvallis. Snell and Joe E. Dunne, republican nominee for governor, were to be the principal speakers last night.

Snell said business conditions were decidedly improved in his section of the country. Farther to the east, farmers are feeling better because of higher wheat prices. The nominee said he was planning to be at Astoria later in the summer for the state legation convention.

CIVIL CASES GAIN IN JUSTICE COURT

Civil cases coming through justice court here were yesterday nearly 60 ahead of the corresponding period last year. W. E. DeLong, constable for the Salem district, found on a check through his records, DeLong serves all the papers in civil cases going through this court. His check showed he had served papers in 278 civil cases since January 1.

He has also served subpoenas to 134 persons in that period. Comparatively few juries have been called to service in justice court cases, for his books check up only eight cases that have been tried by juries. DeLong, constable here a number of years, recalls that for a number of years, prior to six years ago, jury trials in justice court were almost the rule instead of the exception as now.

Petticord Return to Be Requested; Assistant Wanted

More than $10,000 has been raised by the members of the First Evangelical church during the past year, reports the pastor, Dr. E. W. Petticord, as he leaves for Corvallis to attend the annual session of the Oregon conference of the Evangelical church.

Accompanying him will be Walter Lamkin, who, as lay delegate, carries the unanimous wishes of the congregation that Dr. Petticord be returned as minister of the local church. Mr. Lamkin will also ask that the conference station send an assistant pastor here.

During the two years of Dr. Petticord's pastorate the church has had a period of marked growth. Membership has increased 45 per cent and much interest is shown in all the activities of the church.

Business View is Quite Favorable

The Pacific coast, "particularly Oregon," is showing considerable business strength, according to the current issue of Babson's reports. Salem's business for May is reported as 30 per cent higher than May, 1933; the outlook for September, 1934, Babson states, is 20 per cent better than in 1933.

Warners Will Go to Yale to Take Graduate Study

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Warner of Wasco, graduates of Willamette university with the class of 1932 who were in Salem the past weekend for the university's commencement activities, will next year take graduate work at Yale university in New Haven, Conn., where they hold scholarships. Mrs. Warner will take work in religious education, her husband will enroll in the theology seminary.

TRANSIENTS' CAMP PLANNED, SANTIAM

The county court expects today to meet Clarence W. Reynolds of Portland, state director for the federal transient relief service, and with him inspect the new right-of-way for the North Santiam highway between Mehama and Mill City for the purpose of selecting a site for a government transients' camp. This camp, it is understood, will supplant the one conducted near Molalla during the past winter but it probably will have accommodations for twice as many men, or around 100.

The transient service will pay for reconstruction of the camp, estimated to cost $2000, while the county will provide blasting powder and a tractor if these are needed. The men housed at the camp will be put to work clearing the right-of-way.

It is expected that if the transient service eventually abandons the camp, it will be put to use as a recreation or Boy Scout center.

STAYTON CANNERY RUMOR IS SPIKED

Rumor that the cannery at Stayton would take up some of the unsold strawberries from the hills districts on a co-operative deal was set at rest yesterday by George A. Smith, one of the cannery officials.

Smith branded reports to this effect reaching Salem as entirely false, and said the cannery finished its strawberry deal some days ago. The Stayton cannery, a co-operative, has been operating since the first of May, and will continue to run another 10 days or two weeks. Loganberries, wild blackberries and other berries now in the market are going through the plant. The pack this season will likely run between 10,000 and 15,000 cases.

In addition to barreling and canning, the Stayton plant puts up a quantity of jams.

Audit of Liquor Board Finances Now Completed

The state liquor commission audit, which has been in progress here for several weeks, was completed yesterday by S. W. Starr, supervisor of the auditing division of the state department.

The audit was authorized by George McMorran, chairman of the state liquor control commission, and the state board of control, following a request that salaries affecting eight employees of the liquor commission be increased.

$50,000 DAMAGES SOUGHT FROM CITY

Damages of $50,000 are sought from the City of Silvertown in an action filed in circuit court here late yesterday by Evelyn R. Umphette.

She asserts that her left arm was permanently injured when it was severely cut by glass from a milk bottle. The latter broke, she asserts, when plaintiff was thrown to the sidewalk in Silvertown the night of December 13, 1933, due to the defective condition of the walk.

Plaintiff holds the city was liable for not keeping the walk in repair and for allowing dirt to accumulate there. The accident allegedly happened on a wet night.

3 More Couples in June Trek to Marriage Altar

Marriage license issuance continued brisk yesterday at the county clerk's office. Three couples seeking permits to wed.

Harold J. Colgan, 1349 Waller street, a service station operator, asked permission to wed Jane Harland, 1570 Mission street, a teacher. Rev. Grover Bircher is to perform the ceremony June 16.

Mike Tobias, 30, 1445 Oak street, a mechanic, is to wed Ora Larson, 25, Silvertown, a clerk. Rev. Carl Foss is to perform the rites June 16.

Loyal A. Warner, for the past three years assistant manager of the Salem J. C. Penney store, will leave Sunday to accept the management of the company store at Laramie, Wyo.

Sod Ranch Case Finally Settled

Final litigation in the Sod ranch dispute was stipulated yesterday when a settlement between the litigants was reached. Through the agreement, Robin Day, one of the contending parties, becomes sole owner of the ranch, which includes much valuable hop land.

Several days was required to present evidence to Judge Carson in an attempt to work out an equitable settlement of the case.
