UNSANITARY BEER MUGS UNDER FIRE

Sterilization Regulations are Cited in Letters Sent to All Handlers

Dipping beer glasses in cold water to rinse them doesn't come under the head of sterilization, so the state board of health has asked Dr. Vernon A. Douglas, Marion county health officer, to enforce the health regulations in this matter. Reports have been made that some beer vendors in this county have been careless in sterilizing the glasses.

Dr. Douglas is today mailing out to 50 dealers in Salem and as many in other sections of the county, notice of the regulations regarding sterilization of eating and drinking utensils. It is important that such precautions be outlined in the letter be carried out, as such diseases as trench mouth, diphtheria and scarlet fever may be transmitted through improperly cleaned mug or glass.

All mugs, steins or glasses used for serving beverages must be washed and rinsed in clean water containing at least 25 parts per million of available chlorine, the board of health ruled July 11.

Chlorine is the same solution as utilized in sterilizing the Salem drinking water, Dr. Douglas says, only for the cleansing of utensils in use in public places, a larger percentage of the chlorine is required.

The health ruling states further that all cups, dishes, knives, forks and other eating and kitchen utensils in public eating places must, after using, be thoroughly washed with soap and water having a temperature above 130 degrees Fahrenheit and rinsed in clean water.

Spuds Join Freak Lists On Big Vine

BRUSH CREEK, July 28.—Potatoes on the Jensen farm in this community are taking an unusual turn this season. Early in the season the vines began to lengthen out and many of them now measure five feet and over in length. Whether or not there are any potatoes on the vines has not as yet been discovered, but if the tubers are in keeping with the vines, members of the family report, some difficulty will be experienced in digging them.

Where in former years threshing machines were the only thing in use in this time of year, very near the entire Brush Creek district's grain is being combined this season. Because of the damp mornings, combining has been carried on only in the afternoons. Wheat, here, like elsewhere, is reported light. Oats and vetch however run to a fair average.

TWO ACTIONS FOR DIVORCE ON FILE

Two complaints for divorce were filed in circuit court yesterday.

Elmore Klingsporn asks marital release from Theo Klingsporn, to whom she was married in Portland December 24, 1928. She asks custody of their two children, share of the $1500 in property, $25 support money for the children, $300 lump alimony and attorney's fees.

The complaint alleges in part that Klingsporn refused to take her to church at Stayton where he was preaching and that he would leave her stranded in the road en route there; that he refused to take her to homes where they both were bidden; that he leveled false accusations at her; and that he refused to permit her to have a doctor when their children were born.

Kathryn V. Salzer filed suit for divorce from Lonnie G. Salzer and seeks restoration of her maiden name, Kathryn V. Morrison. The Salzers were married September 14, 1924.

Accept Property—In connection with liquidation of the bank of Woodburn, the circuit judge has granted petition for acceptance of property from Robert H. and Maude M. Scott in settlement of a note.

Sues on Note—John Strub and Mary A. Stubb have filed suit in circuit court against George and Della Jensen for judgment for $526 on a group of promissory notes.

Asks Suit Money—In divorce action of Alfred Smith vs. Dorothy Joyce Smith, defendant has filed motion for suit money, attorney's fees and maintenance money.

Sell Estate Property—Real property in the estate of John Winnickamp, insane, has been sold to Steve and Lena Fessler for $1850, according to report in probate court.

Leach Estate—Gladys H. Gibbons has been appointed executrix of the estate of Rebecca Leach, property of which is valued at $1900.

Gets Divorce—Judge Lewelling yesterday heard the divorce action of Garner vs. Garner, in which he granted divorce to the wife, plaintiff in the case.

Ellis to Preach—Rev. J. Lincoln Ellis of Salem Heights will preach at Liberty hall Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The Liberty district is south of town.

Estate Closed—Final decree has been entered in estate of John F. Nadvornik.

West Salem News

WEST SALEM, July 27.—Lewis Howell, who has a large greenhouse between Independence and Monmouth, has purchased from Charles Ruge, the tract of land along the river between the residence of William La Due and the S. P. right of way and will build greenhouses on it. In the tract of several acres there are 13 lots. Building materials have already been delivered.

The Jolly Time Quilting club staged a pleasant mid-summer get-together Tuesday evening, the occasion celebrating triple birthdays, those of Mrs. Homer Harrison, Mrs. George Lathrop and Mrs. William F. Sexton. The club gathered at the Harrison home.

Mrs. Lynn L. Sloper and daughter, Mrs. Pat Jarvill, have returned from a week's vacation at Hood River, Bonneville, Toledo and Newport. Mrs. William Clark and son Gayler of Vancouver, Canada, are guests of her father, Lew Deranleau.

Summer holidays will soon be over and a number of teachers here will be home again for the remainder of the summer vacation. Among them will be Lyle Thomas, who has been at Eugene, Clarence Guderian, who has been at Corvallis and Gertrude Needham, who was at the Portland branch of the U. of O.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Snyder of Bay City visited part of this week at the L. T. Wallace home. The women are sisters. Mrs. Fannie Smith and son Everett, who returned from a visit in Estacada, where they were guests of her sister.

Mrs. Rita Fox of Cottage Grove was a guest of Mrs. Glenn Davenport part of this week. At the L. G. Richardson's is J. D. Slagle of Ashland, father of Mrs. Richardson, who will make his home here for the present. Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Van Skike and family of Los Angeles, who have been guests for some time at the home of her parents, Rev. and Mrs. John Evans, returned to their home this week.

BEAN RUN TO START AT CLEARY-HILLMAN

First beans of the season, enough for a trial run through the newly installed machinery, will go through the Cleary and Hillman plant in West Salem this morning. It was expected yesterday. The deal will get into smooth running by the middle of next week, and will continue for six weeks or so, with possibility that it will go beyond the middle of September if weather is favorable to the crop.

The West Salem plant expects to put up tons of Blue Lake beans from the West Salem growing under the co-operative deal. About the same tonnage of tomatoes will be handled from the same irrigated area, though it will be about three weeks before the tomatoes are ready for harvest.

Pickers will get around 90 cents a hundred for work in the beans, it is believed, and it is estimated delivery costs alone will run to $20 per ton. The net return on expenditure of $18,000 to labor at the outset.

Besides beans and tomatoes, the West Salem cannery will handle prunes and blackberries in its pack the latter part of the season. On the bean deal, as high as 150 women will be on the payroll, and two shifts will likely be run for a period during peak of the season.

LICE LATEST PEST TO VISIT HOPYARD

Present weather conditions are bringing forth another hoppyard pest, the lice, growers report. There has also been some report this week of the red spider in upland yards.

Some growers think now that picking of the early crop will get under in nine or 10 days, but others believe it will be nearer the middle of the month. Lates will come on about the usual time, the report. Hop growers are said to have made heavy inroads into yards in other sections of this county. In other sections of this heavy growing area, there has yet been no definite information as to what has caused uneven growth. So far, the best explanation seems to be mild weather conditions last winter. Hop growth has made marked improvement in the past two weeks or so, especially in the late yards.

ENDICOTT'S JOB AS EXECUTOR UPHELD

All but four of the 24 objections brought by the First Christian church of Turner to the final account of S. M. Endicott as executor of the estate of Cornelia A. Davis, wealthy Turner eccentric, are overruled in the final order of the probate judge, filed yesterday. The probate judge held that sums of $25, $25, $30 and $42 for which the executor did not account properly belong to the estate and must be accounted for. Otherwise, all charges against the executor are found baseless.

Objection to an additional $1000 attorney's fees for W. C. Winslow, attorney, was among the matters overruled, and the probate court authorized sale of property to pay said fees.

Carson Recall Petitions Have 15,000 Signers

PORTLAND, Ore., July 27.—(AP)—Approximately 80 per cent of the 15,000 signatures now on petitions filed for the recall of Mayor Carson of Portland are those of registered voters, L. N. Penfield, deputy city auditor in charge of elections, reported today. To force a vote on the recall, the petitioners must secure 27,400 names, or 25 per cent of the vote cast for supreme court justice at the last election.

O. F. Shintaffer, head of the group backing the recall move, has announced 50,000 names as the recallers' goal.

YIELDS IN NEARBY GRAIN FIELDS FAIR

As the thrashing season progresses, early predictions of only fair yields are found to have been accurate. One dealer reported the highest wheat output reported to him is 24 bushels per acre, from the Waldo Hills area. The lowest on wheat has run eight bushels to the acre, this figure being not uncommon. The wheat average will run far below the 20 bushels which is considered an average yield in the usual year.

Oats are running better than wheat, but still only about half a crop in light of the usual 60-bushels-per-acre average. Quality of oats is said to be poor. Oats have been running from 25 bushels to 45 bushels per acre on threshing reports received so far.

Threshing of brewing barley has not come on yet, but prospects are that this crop will turn out considerably better than the other grains.

Much grain is moving into town warehouses, and already it is said the warehouses are pretty well filled.

INDUSTRIAL JOBS INCREASE SHOWN

There was an increase of 17 per cent in man-days work done in Oregon by 17,000 firms operating under the workmen's compensation act during the past year, T. Morris Dunn, member of the state industrial accident commission, reported Friday.

In addition to more work provided by employers the per day wage average increased seven cents a day. In June of this year the average wage increase was 40 cents per day when compared with figures for June, 1933.

The total man-days work in the year ending June 30, 1933, was 20,937,826, as against 24,489,070 for the year ending June 30, 1934. The average wage for the previous year was $3.34 per day as compared with $3.41 this year.

Dunn declared that the June figures, showing an average per wage of $3.57 a day showed the trend toward higher wages being paid to more men than during the previous 12 months period.

Approximately 92 per cent of the employers providing compensation insurance are under the workmen's compensation act, Dunn said.

TOURIST TRAFFIC HERE IS LIGHTER

Tourist traffic fell off through Salem the past week, reports Claudia Benson, in charge of the Oregon State Motor association desk at the Marion hotel.

The slump is thought to be due to reaction from the strike with its threat of gas shortage which held back many tourists, particularly those from California. Continued cool weather may account for part of the drop since local people wait to escape the hot weather when it comes.

Weekend tourists should still go by Amity to the north beaches if they want to avoid the heavy construction work on the River road. The Wallace road is getting in good shape now with only a short detour. Other roads are in good condition.

The Pudding river bridge east of Woodburn is completed and open for traffic. Short detour over gravelled road is necessary on the road north of Silverton on account of building a bridge over Abiqua creek.

Oregon Exhibit Plan Abandoned

PORTLAND, Ore., July 27.—(AP)—A proposal to have an Oregon exhibit at the Century of Progress exposition in Chicago this year has been abandoned by the Portland chamber of commerce, Walter W. R. May, manager of the fund for financing the exhibit were informed their donations, less 19 per cent for expenses of the campaign, would be returned. May reported that a total of $1690 had been collected.

JERSEY GROWERS WILL HOLD PICNIC

August 19 at Farmington is Tentative Plan Made at Meeting Here

Plans for an all-state picnic for Jersey breeders, their families and friends, at the J. R. Putnam ranch at Farmington, Washington county, were formulated and the date tentatively set for August 19, when the Oregon Jersey Cattle club directors met at the chamber of commerce here yesterday.

As in the past, the Jersey club will give a Jersey calf to the outstanding boy or girl in 4-H Jersey calf club competition at the state fair, the directors announced. In fact, pledges eight years ahead have been made by Jersey breeders for this award.

The directors appointed a committee to arrange a Jersey booth and rest quarters at the state fair and also went on record to encourage all new breeders to display their stock at the fair this year. On the committee are Mrs. Leona Gribble of Canby, state secretary; Lloyd Hulbert of Independence and Mrs. Estella Fennie of Portland.

The directors have issued five permits for use of the Jersey breed name in selling milk, they stated.

Levi H. McKee of Perrydale presided at the board meeting yesterday, and others present were: Mrs. Gribble, W. A. Forrest of Yamhill county; C. A. Smith of Clackamas county; W. F. Rollins of Multnomah county; J. R. Davis of Turner, president of the Marion county club; and R. L. Burkhardt of Albany, representing Linn and Benton counties.

RESTAURANT CODE TEST SUIT HALTED

Collection of restaurant licenses under the so-called marketing agreement and code adopted two months ago, will be resumed immediately, Max Gehlhar, state director of agriculture, announced Friday.

Gehlhar's announcement followed receipt of information from Attorney General Van Winkle that the suit filed by L. N. Sturtevant to test the validity of the code and the state agricultural adjustment act, had been withdrawn. The suit was filed against Governor Meier, Gehlhar and Van Winkle. All state codes are promulgated under the agricultural adjustment act.

Under the code a restaurant is defined as "any establishment where food or beverages are prepared and served to the public, and consumed on the premises." Establishments serving milk, cream, buttermilk, ice cream, beer and soda water exclusively, are exempted from the marketing agreement.

Gehlhar declared that after the suit was filed representatives of all the agricultural codes held a meeting in Salem and organized a defensive movement. Prune growers were said to have played an important part in the negotiations which resulted in withdrawal of the action.

BRIDGE BONDS ARE BEING MADE READY

Preparation of permanent bonds aggregating $4,200,000, to secure payment of a federal loan and grant of $5,602,000, for construction of the five Oregon coast highway bridges, was undertaken Friday by J. M. Devers, attorney for the state highway department.

Temporary bonds of $1,000,000 already have been issued to secure the initial advance of that amount of money by the federal public works administration. The permanent bonds will be purchased by the federal government at par and accrued interest. The temporary bonds are now on deposit in the Federal Reserve bank in Portland.

Officials said the advance of $1,000,000 by the government had made it possible to proceed with the construction of all five bridges. The remainder of the loan will be received in installments as it is required by the highway department.

DOCK ACTIVITY NOT IMPROVING SO FAR

Movement of goods to and from the docks at Portland is "just as tight as it ever was" since the longshoremen strike started, truck operators here declared yesterday. Little hope is held that trucks will be able to load or unload from the Portland docks today, but there is some belief that movement may be started by Monday.

The Salem Navigation company is still tied up, so far as dock deliveries go, and the company's two boats will not be able to get action again until there is definite knowledge that the strike will not interfere with their operations. Many tons of local commodities, including much canned fruit from the local canneries, has been held from shipment because of the strike, and heavy tonnage of goods for local concerns are piled up on the docks or still unloaded due to the paralyzed ocean commerce.

Canners say there has been good demand for their product and that orders have been filtering through even from the east, despite the strike situation.

FRANKLIN, DUNNING SERVICES ARE HELD

WOODBURN, July 27.—Funeral services for William Edward Franklin, 65, of West Woodburn, who passed away at Salem Tuesday morning were held from the Hall-Ringo funeral chapel Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. D. Woodfin conducted the services. Pallbearers were J. H. Gunderson, C. B. Johnson, C. L. Saunders, B. Kent, Ralph Palmer and George Stuckey. Interment was in Belle Passel cemetery, here. Woodfin officiating. She was buried beside her husband, Edward Howard Dunning, who died in 1918. Mrs. Dunning was born in New York, February 20, 1853. She came to Woodburn in 1914 and lived for several years on the highway east of here. She is survived by one son, E. Dunning, who accompanied the body here from "pokane"; one granddaughter and a sister, Mrs. Alice Church.

Mrs. Alice A. Dunning, 81, who died in Spokane July 24, was buried here Thursday morning in Belle Passel cemetery. She was the widow of John A. Dunning, who died in 1918. She was the mother of John A. Dunning, who died in 1918. She was the mother of John A. Dunning, who died in 1918.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zielinski, Jr., and children, Mildred, Charles, Eileen and Ernest, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Perrenne and daughter Alice have returned from a vacation at Newport.

Live Frog Found Inside Stomach Of Dead Snake

A post-mortem examination of a snake found on the Frank Perry ranch near here Thursday revealed that the stomach contained a good-sized frog. When liberated the frog appeared to be dead, but later showed signs of breathing. It subsequently opened its eyes, jumped into a nearby pond and swam away.

Frank Perry, owner of the ranch, and superintendent of a local newspaper mechanical department, vouched for the truth of the story.

Quintuplet Ear Of Corn Shown

PORTLAND, Ore., July 27.—(AP)—Without benefit of medical aid, a "Siamese" quintuplet" ear of corn appeared in a Portland grocery store today. Grown by Nick Rossi, of Penrose, a Portland suburb, the multiple ear had a central ear of normal size and four other fully formed ears growing from near the base. All parts of the sprout were covered with normal kernels.

NEY'S SQUAD WINS ON FUNNIEST STUNT

By BERTIE GLAISYER
Y. M. C. A. CAMP, July 27.—Stunt night was held Wednesday. Each squad arranged or prepared some original play or stunt. Squad 1's play was of a "Pitchfork Marriage." Steve Kerber played the part of Shakespeare, Jim Schen as Father Time, George Alexander as best man, Bill Laughlin as groom, Howard Sehon as bride, Floyd Sanford and Bill Shinn as bridesmaids, and John Loughlin as maid of honor.

Squad 11's stunt was "Camp Occasional Burlesque." It consisted of Hula Hula dancers with sea weed skirts, Kruger, Blodgett, Ewing, Bob Hill, Glenn Roehford, as maidens, C. Niles and Jack Nelson put on an adagio dance and Joe Herman as a fan dancer.

Squad 13 won the contest with two plays. One impersonating the Camp Merry Weather sea scouts, and one the Scouts Riders. Tom Hill, Wallace Steed, "Butch" Nelson and Malcolm played in the sea act, while Bill and Jim Schen as Father Time, George Alexander as best man, Bill Laughlin as groom, Howard Sehon as bride, Floyd Sanford and Bill Shinn as bridesmaids, and John Loughlin as maid of honor.

Squad 14's play was of Little Blue Riding Hood. Tom Roen was the curtain. Dayton Robertson, grandmother, Phil Barrett, the hero; "Sonny" Arbutnot, as "Little Riding Hood"; C. Wiper as the wolf and Joe Law as the mother of Blue Riding Hood.

Several of the boys went sea journeying and all returned without sickness. The tournaments are rapidly drawing to a close. Bertie Glaisyer and Walter Bailey won the horseshoe doubles championship.

Suicide Viaduct Has New Victim

PORTLAND, Ore., July 27.—(AP)—James E. Whitner, 70, of Portland, leaped more than 100 feet to his death early today from the Vista avenue bridge, Portland's famous "suicide viaduct," to Canyon road below. There were no witnesses to his fatal plunge. Whitner had been dead more than an hour when his body was discovered by a passing motorist, according to Deputy Coroner Shea. Whitney had been despondent over financial matters for some time, his widow told coroner's aides.
