

OREGON WAITS U.S. PRESIDENT

First Lady Already in This State, May Make Trip To Crater Lake

Joseph C. Carson of Portland, and other federal, state and city officials.
Not more than one hour will be spent in Portland. By 1 p. m. the presidential party will leave by automobile for the 40-mile drive through the eastern business and residential areas up the famous Columbia river highway to the site of the Bonneville power and navigation dam. There the president will tour the dam works and will speak briefly.
Two hours later he will board a special train which will carry him to Spokane, from where he will make a side-trip to another great Columbia river dam—the Grand Coulee structure, where again he will speak.

must be regarded as critical."
Later in the evening, however, the official German news agency said no bulletins regarding the condition of the president would be issued during the night, indicating that his condition was somewhat improved.

Speculation in the German press regarding the successor of the president in case he should die was forbidden by the propaganda ministry in an order informing journalists that "all has been taken care of."
The propaganda ministry's cryptic assurance that the matter was settled left editorial offices throughout Germany wondering what these few words, concerning which further comment was refused, might mean.
To every man they meant but one thing, namely that Hitler would automatically succeed to the leadership of the nation, whatever be his title. To die-hard of the old regime it meant that Dr. Edwin Bunte, president of the supreme court, would become president, according to law, preceding a national election.

DEMOCRATS PLAN TO SEE PRESIDENT

Democrats here will make no united effort to be in Portland and Bonneville Friday upon occasion of the visit of President Roosevelt, party leaders indicated yesterday. However, many of the party members as well as other citizens, will board the special train here that morning for the excursion.
The Southern Pacific offices here said yesterday that many inquiries had already come in about the trip. The special train, which originates at Eugene, will reach Salem at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning and will return that evening. A very low round-trip rate to Bonneville is offered. The train will stop 40 minutes in Portland while the president is there, and then go on to Bonneville.

- Reproducing famous tourist haunts in Paris proved quite a task for research experts at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios during filming of "Paris Interlude," current screen attraction at the Elsinore theatre. The new picture, laid in Paris at the time of Lindbergh's first flight, had to reproduce tourist haunts of 1927, many of them radically altered since that time.
Otto Kruger and Midge Evans head a notable cast in the new production, supported by Edward Brophy, Una Merkel, Louise Henry, Bert Roach, Ted Healy, Richard Tucker, George Meeker and others.

Returns Home

Fully recovered from his experience of spending five days in a woods near his home, Bobby Connor is shown greeting his mother, Mrs. Charles H. Connor, at their home in Hartdale, N. Y., after the baby was returned from a hospital. Bobby, now as robust as ever, had been reported kidnapped.

LEE CENTENNIAL TO BE OBSERVED HERE

with members of the pageant committee and others interested in promoting the great enterprise.
It is believed that Sweetland field may be arranged to seat a crowd of 7000; as many as, or more than attended the biggest night at the Eugene pageant. The intention is to make Salem's centenary celebration pageant entirely historical, educational, and to arrange it that it will be self-perpetuating. That is, so that it may be repeated in future years. This is of importance, for Salem was founded by the men who began the Christian civilization west of the Rockies; laid the foundations of states and were first to visualize and invite the forces that made this American territory. These are certainly sound reasons for this pageant, and future ones.
The covered wagon, on the way from Boston to Salem, is today at Baker, Oregon. It will be at La Grande tomorrow, Pendleton Friday, and The Dalles Sunday. Thence to Walla Walla, reaching there next Wednesday. After a tour in eastern Washington, it will be in Seattle the 26th and 27th, reaching Olympia September 2.
The covered wagon carries speakers and entertainers, including an Indian accomplished in the lore of his race and a fine musician.
It is the intention to solicit the help of everyone in Salem, and in Oregon, who can in any way aid in making the forthcoming pageant a production worthy of the 100 year event that has caused its planning, which has been going forward for eight years, and has been more or less active for four years.

ONE DEATH OCCURS IN STRIKE TROUBLE

(By the Associated Press)
Another death and four injuries were added to the strike toll Tuesday as trucks moved without restriction at Minneapolis, where the national guard ruled the city.
Other strike casualties were a girl employee of a shirt mill at York, Pa., gassed by police during an outbreak of violence.
A national guard truck running through a traffic signal to the scene of a reported disturbance crashed into a small sedan at Minneapolis. The driver of the sedan was killed and a passenger and three guardsmen were hurt.
Wholesale picketing in an effort to stop all truck movement was threatened following the issuance of a statement by Governor Floyd E. Olson of Minnesota labeling the Minneapolis dispute a "struggle between recovery and the child-work." The employers in turn declared that to give in would be a surrender to the communists.

CANNERY TENDER CRASHES ON ROCK

SEATTLE, July 31.—(AP)—The cannery tender Otsego crashed on a rock in Bristol bay, off the Alaskan coast, today, and sprang a leak, limping as fast as she could for Dutch Harbor on the Aleutian islands, with a large cargo of salmon and between 500 and 600 persons aboard.
The weather was fair, and she was not believed in serious danger, the owners, Libby, McNeill and Libby, were advised.
Because of an extensive aerial concentration around Alaska three coast guard cutters were believed to be fairly close to the coast.

BRAINS IN PUBLIC ISSUES DEFENDED

Intelligence and Training Needed Despite Sneers Says Linfield Head

Sneers at the "brain trust" and slurs at college men applying their knowledge to government, do not refute the necessity that more intelligence and education must be applied to public matters and that trained men must have a larger and larger place in government, Dr. Elam J. Anderson, president of Linfield college, told Salem Kiwanians Tuesday noon. He praised a governmental policy which was "not afraid of experimentation."
"The process of trial and error is essentially the modern, scientific attitude and one to be commended," Dr. Anderson declared. "The old day and old dogmas and formulas will not meet all the riddles of 1934."

Declaring that higher education, with revenues curtailed and with 750,000 college graduates out of work, had been forced to take inventory and to make changes, Dr. Anderson said higher education, like business, was likely to suffer from inertia. He said the "formal discipline" values of the classical studies, along with the value of rigid, technical training espoused by many colleges in the last decade, were both under justified attack.

Colleagues must form their aims and programs objectively, with present-day conditions and needs in mind, he contended.
He sketched Linfield college's program by explaining what the student was expected to acquire in his first two years in school. First, he must have as wide a knowledge as possible of present day situations to make him a good citizen. Second, he must be able to live with his neighbors, hence a practical, workday psychology instruction. Third, he must possess a working knowledge of English, and perhaps, of one foreign language although the latter is not required. Fourth, he must acquire a general, not technical knowledge of science. Fifth, he should have basic study in religion or a code of moral conduct. Sixth, he should have vocational and avocational guidance.

BAXTER TO BE 14TH PRESIDENT OF W. U.

tion with reluctance. In five years, after three men had served for a short time each as president, Dr. Gatch was persuaded to return and filled the office for nine years until 1929. He later became president of the Oregon Agricultural college, after holding for a time the professorship of English literature at the University of Oregon.
Under Dr. Thomas Van Scoy, 1880 to 1890, the university grew by leaps and bounds. Three fine buildings, according to university prospectuses, graced the campus, 30 professors and instructors were on the staff, and courses were offered in all important branches of knowledge. The Willamette law school was established in 1893 during his presidency.
President Van Scoy was interested in transferring the university to a more suitable point, preferably Portland. On his resignation he succeeded in gaining the appointment of Dr. C. C. Stratton, whom he had imbued with his ideas on the transfer of the university to Portland, as president of the Willamette graduates to become president of the university.

JERMAN IS WINNER IN SUPREME COURT

Lewelling Reversed in Case Involving Division of I. Durbin Estate

The state supreme court yesterday reversed the decision of Judge L. G. Lewelling in the case of Hawkins and Roberts, Inc. against Edward Jerman, Jr., and others.
The suit, brought by plaintiff here to quiet title, was decided favorably to plaintiff in court here and Edward Jerman, Jr., appealed. The question involved was title to certain property which Lela Jerman inherited through the will of Isaac Durbin.
The latter left his property to Olive Durbin, for life, after which it passed to Lela Jerman, for her life, and "upon her death, to the heirs of her body only."
The supreme court held that Judge Lewelling erred in sustaining a demurrer in court here to the claim of title of Edward Jerman, Jr., grandson of Lela Jerman. The court held that he had not conveyed his interest in the land to Hawkins & Roberts.
The court also set out that complete title could not now pass since Edward D. Jerman and Paul Jerman, sons of Lela Jerman, still lived and there was no certainty, pending the death of Lela Jerman, what the exact interest of Edward Jerman, Jr., would be in the property. In the event that no other heirs of his grandmother survived, he would be entitled to all the property; if one or more of his cousins on his grandmother's side lived, he would be entitled to one-half the property.
The court ruled that the plaintiff-respondent had only received the life interest of Lela Jerman in the property in question, plus the contingent interest of Paul Jerman and his two children which had been assigned to Hawkins & Roberts.

ONE KILLED, SIX HURT ON HIGHWAY

OREGON CITY, Ore., July 31.—(AP)—A woman was killed and six other persons injured today, one critically, when a speeding automobile swayed on a highway shoulder and hurtled off of control.
Mrs. Everett Clark, 35, of Portland, was killed and Mrs. Nellie H. Meadows, 60, of Portland received a critical skull fracture and was unconscious. Others received hospital treatment for less injuries.
Commissioners said the waterfowl bag limit was reduced solely to perpetuate the duck hunting sport. Some frankly stated a closed season on ducks might be necessary soon if the sport is not to disappear.
The duck hunting season was set for October 25 to December 30. Shooting will be permitted only on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays. The bag limit will be 12 ducks a week to a hunter.
The bag limit, weekly limit and possession limit were all set at 12, to forestall any chance of judging. Last year the bag limit was 12 but the possession limit 20, which mad law violations hard to prove, it was pointed out.

DUCK SEASON OPEN 3 DAYS EACH WEEK

PORTLAND, Ore., July 31.—(AP)—The bag on ducks and geese in the coming hunting season was lowered by the state game commission in a meeting here today. The commission also firmly opposed the proposed "fish lift" for Bonneville dam.

STUDENT SOUGHT IN GIRL'S DEATH HELD

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 1.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—Neal Myers, young pharmacy student who eluded officers throughout Oklahoma, Texas and Colorado for three weeks, surrendered to his attorney here early today to face murder charges in the death of Marian Mills, former beauty queen at the University of Oklahoma.
The 21-year-old student, who fled after the death of the daughter of a university professor July 10, was tired and worn from his three weeks' flight and a hurried last dash of 180 miles to the home of his attorney, W. F. Morrison, former state senator.
With Morrison, young Myers was scheduled to appear before Cleveland county authorities at Norman, seat of the state university, at 10 o'clock this morning.
He disclaimed responsibility for the death of the girl.
"I committed no crime," he cried. "I just couldn't face the disgrace."

SUPREME COURT IS TO TAKE VACATION

The state supreme court adjourned yesterday for the annual August vacation after handing down 11 opinions. Most of the justices are leaving this week on vacation trips.
The court ruled, in one of its major decisions, that Matt Wales of Portland was entitled to a judgment of $12,000, less $2400 already paid him by the industrial accident commission, for injuries sustained when he was shot by a spring gun set on the property of J. D. Allen. The gun was alleged to have been set to prevent burglaries.
The opinion was written by Judge Bailey and affirmed Judge Kanzler of the Multnomah county circuit court.
Wales charged that one of these spring guns was attached to a garage door and was not visible to a person entering the building. He testified that it was while opening this door that the gun was discharged.
Justice Bean affirmed Judge Skipworth of the Lane county circuit court in a suit brought by Mamie F. Hendrix to recover from school district No. 4 in Lane county, $1260 alleged to be due her under a teaching contract entered into with the school officials. Judge Skipworth held against the plaintiff.
The plaintiff charged that her contract, allegedly cancelled by the school directors on the ground that she had married.

LIQUOR STORE TAX ISSUE UNSETTLED

WASHINGTON, July 31.—(AP)—The question whether the Internal Revenue bureau may legally assess the earnings of state liquor control commissions was being considered by bureau officials today.
Commissioner Guy T. Helvering said that a ruling of the general counsel of the bureau holding that the Oregon Liquor Control commission might be assessed for its earnings under the federal corporation income tax had not yet met with final approval.
He pointed out that it was undecided whether the federal government had authority to assess the taxes, but that liquor sold through such state commissions would be subject to the direct federal tax upon its release from warehouses.
The ruling of the general counsel in the Oregon case held that a state liquor control commission was not engaged in handling an essential government function and therefore could be taxed under the corporation income tax provisions.
