

Rainbow Comes From Behind, Revives U. S. Cup Hopes

OVERCOMES BIG ENDEAVOR LEAD

Vanderbilt Starts Poorly in Spite of Favoring Light Breezes

By EDWARD J. NEIL.
NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 20.—(AP)—A gambler of the sea, all his chips on the rolling board, Harold S. "Mike" Vanderbilt dived desperately with the winds today to score one of the most amazing triumphs in all the history of the fabled America's Cup.

He shot his snappy hulled Rainbow out of the sea haze and the smoky murk of the huge trailing fleet to overcome a lead of almost seven minutes in 15 miles and add three minutes and 26 seconds more for his first victory margin of the series. O. M. Sorensen's blue bolt challenger from Great Britain, Endeavour.

Not in the memory of the oldest salts was there a recollection of anything like this ever taking place before in the history of the international racing class.

And tonight, based on all but un conquerable lead of three straight victories, which she had by the mutual consent of all except Vanderbilt at the halfway mark this afternoon, the Englishman's lead was only 2 to 1, with anything likely to happen now in the thrilling battle of the great sailing ships.

Starting out today in typical Rainbow weather—a breeze of only 6.8 statute miles an hour at the start nine miles southeast of Brenton light ship—for the 15-mile run to leeward and the beat back the same distance against the wind—the big cup defender gave a miserable display to the outward mark.

The air was fluff, puffing out of the northwest. Rainbow slipped steadily astern in the run south-west by south toward a point off the southerly end of Block Island. They went over the line together in bright sunshine, and a sparkling blue sea, both under mainsails and jibs, but once the maneuvering for the start was over, out came the parachute spinnakers, the "Mae West" on Rainbow, the "Annie Oakley" on the blue bolt, and away went Endeavour.

Mr. Carl Hubbell put on a one-man show today to lift the Giants to a 4-3 victory in their final struggle with the last-place Reds. The victory, gained in the ninth inning, enabled them to hold their loss to a half game in their race with the Cardinals, who won twice.

Joe Moore drove in two Giant runs with his 15th homer and one of his two singles. Ernie Lombardi crashed a circuit blow for the Reds.

Archers and Golfers Will Vie on Links

A contest between archers and golfers at the Illahae Country club and five straight archery events at Olinger field will be the program of the archery tournament to be held Sunday by the Salem Elyan Archers, local bow and arrow organization.

Probably the most interesting feature of the tournament will be the game of archery golf at the Illahae club. Instead of driving the ball from a tee, the archers shoot a flight arrow onto the green . . .

Sandberg and Cornell Concede Championship to Spec Keene; Proving they have some ace up-sleeve.

Coach Roy "Sandy" Sandberg of the College of Puget Sound, our Tacoma informed informant informs us, fears Willamette more than any other conference team and openly predicts that the championship will go to the Bears. Which adds the voice of prophecy from the Tacoma oracle to the slight seeing already done by Coach Anse Cornell of Pacific, who also predicts a conference crown this year for Willamette.

All of which makes us wonder what Mr. Cornell and Mr. Sandberg have up their sleeves, for we are not given to trusting the public declarations of football coaches, especially when they start banding up their opponents.

Mr. Sandberg keeps an ace in the hole when he also says that Puget Sound will not be in good shape for the Willamette game since the week previous it will meet the tough Gonzaga Bulldogs, hence will not be playing Willamette in its usual top notch condition. Willamette's game on the day when C. P. S. meets Gonzaga will be with Linfield.

According to our informant the Tacoma school has a large squad of 53 men out for practice, including Jimmy Ennis, dynamic halfback, whose failure to rate all-conference last year left Tacoma sport writers in a huff. Ennis, doubtless the C. P. S. star, will be playing his last year.

Roy Carlsson, all-conference end last year, is captain of the C. P. S. outfit. He weighs 210

RED AND BLACK WORKING HARD

Everett Game Only 8 Days Away; End Candidates are Doing Well

Working harder than they have ever worked before, according to Coach Hollis Huntington, members of the Salem high squad are getting into fine condition. Doubtless the hard work the squad has gone through in the first three days of practice was one reason for a skimpy turnout yesterday, but Huntington said that the boys were just taking a day to give sore muscles a chance to recuperate.

Olinger field, untouched by rain in the last two weeks, has become a dusty field of combat for the scrimmagers and a heavy cloud hangs over them as they practice.

Three teams have been selected from the group out for football, although the players who will eventually make up the first and second strings have not yet been announced.

With the enigma at end a little lessened by the good work done by May and Tragilo, Huntington has been at work trying to get the whole team in shape for the first game a week from Saturday when Salem plays Everett, Wash., at Everett.

Beavers Working Hard For Willamette; Look Ragged in First Outside Competition

CORVALLIS, Ore., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Coach Lon Stiner sent his Oregon State football squad through a rigorous practice today in efforts to polish off raggedness shown when the Beavers met their first outside competition in a practice scrimmage yesterday against Linfield and Albany colleges.

On the first team in the scrimmage, Jack Woerner, a transfer from Sacramento Junior college, played right guard and Tommy Swanson, a sophomore from Hood River, started at right half.

The Beavers have one more day to prepare for a double-header Saturday against Willamette and Pacific universities. The Willamette game is being taken seriously as the Orangemen remember that they beat the Beavers last year only by a last quarter spurge. It was reported here that Willamette is stronger this year and that Pacific has one of its strongest teams in years.

Medford high to be played under the Sweetland field lights sometime in November are still going on. Although Salem high teams have played in Medford several times, the Peapickers have never played a game in Salem.

First home appearance of the Salem high team will be October 12 against McMinnville.
