Discovery of Bills Paid by Jafsie Most Conclusive Evidence to Date

Shortly before midnight, he was rushed from the Greenwich police station in Manhattan — where he was held since his arrest Tuesday morning — to the Bronx county court house.

Dr. Condon confronted Hauptmann at the police station and proceeded to the Bronx questioning with authorities.

Information varied as to what progress the 74-year old kidnap intermediary had made in identifying Hauptmann as the criminal with whom he dealt. Dr. Condon was understood to have picked out the German from a lineup but wished to hear his voice at greater length.

A taxi driver who figured in the ransom negotiations was reported definitely to have picked out Hauptmann.

Police Commissioner John F. O'Ryan said tersely that Hauptmann had been "identified," by whom he would not specify.

Mrs. Hauptmann Threatened by Crowd

Shortly before Mrs. Hauptmann —held with her husband's nephew, Hans Mueller, for questioning —was taken to the Bronx, a near riot broke out among the crowds outside the Greenwich police station.

The fugitive's wife was taken by detectives to a restaurant across the street. Feeling was high among the onlookers. They had been told her identity.

"Kill her," shouted one person. Another cried:

"Hang her."

She was hurried into a restaurant, the door was barred, police reserves were rushed from the station house and dispersed the crowd.

In the garage of the home of the alien who entered the United States in 1923 as a stowaway while on parole from a German prison was found the ransom cache. But a few miles from St. Raymond's cemetery where Dr. John F. Condon, the intermediary known as "Jafsie," paid over $50,000 ransom for the baby later found dead—$13,750 of the ransom bills were discovered, cached in the floor and window sill.

Police Commissioner John F. O'Ryan made the announcement of Hauptman's arrest.

He spoke for the combined force of investigators that apprehended the alien—federal agents, New Jersey troopers and New York City police.

"In your opinion" O'Ryan was asked, "does this solve the Lindbergh kidnaping?"

Definitely Asserts Kidnaping Solved

O'Ryan conferred for a minute with J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of criminal investigation of the department of justice, and with H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police.

He said:

"Yes, it will."

Making public full details of the arrest, which occurred Tuesday, O'Ryan said Hauptmann, a carpenter and cabinet maker, admitted he worked as a carpenter in the neighborhood of the Lindbergh home.

Detectives have established, further, the commissioner said, that Hauptmann had access to a lumber yard in the neighborhood where timber was found bearing the same trademark as the lumber used to make the ladder—up which the kidnaper climbed about 10 o'clock the night of March 1, 1932.

O'Ryan disclosed that Hauptmann had a criminal record in Germany, saying:

"Despite the fact that Hauptmann denied that he had a criminal record, I have just been advised that he admits he was on parole and escaped as a stowaway from Germany to prevent his return to prison there."

The identification of Hauptmann followed immediately with the announcement of his arrest.

John Perrone, taxicab driver of the Bronx, picked Hauptmann out of the police lineup, it was reported, as the man who gave him a dollar to take a note to the Condon home in the Bronx the night of March 12, 1932—11 days after the blue-eyed, blond son of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh was snatched from his crib in the second floor nursery of their home in the lonely Sourland mountains of New Jersey.

Identification by Jafsie Unconfirmed

Commissioner O'Ryan first said "witnesses" identified Hauptmann as the man to whom the ransom was paid.

By this, it was assumed the commissioner meant J. Condon.

Commissioner O'Ryan, in response to questions later tonight, said only that Hauptmann was "identified." He declined at this time to say in what phase of the case the identification was made, or give details.

Seldom has a clew been traced so quickly to its denouement.

Walter Lyle, a filling station attendant in the Bronx, was given a $10 gold certificate last Saturday by a man who ordered five gallons of gasoline.

"I remarked," Lyle said, "that you don't see many of these any more.

"The man replied that he had only a few more left."

Lyle recalled the presidential order for recall of gold and gold certificates. He was suspicious and took the number of the automobile. Later, he turned the note over to police. It was checked at the bank—again, one of the Lindbergh bills had turned up.

Of this phase of the apprehension, the commissioner related:

"The operator of the gas station described the customer who passed the $10 gold certificate in an almost identical fashion as the one described by a Fordham shoe store proprietor."

In the Hauptmann house, O'Ryan said, a pair of shoes was found that had been purchased in this store.

gas bomb in the other," was the description offered by Senator Bone (D., Wash.).

John Young, gas bomb maker, on the stand when the reference was made, objected to this description of his kinsman in a voice that shook with emotion.

"You haven't the right picture, Senator," he protested.

Incendiary Fires Flare in South

MEDFORD, Ore., Sept. 20—(AP)—Three forest fires which forest service officials said were of incendiary origin flamed yesterday in the Sterling mine district of the Applegate section.

Farmers and CCC workers assembled quickly and held the fires to little damage. Several homes and considerable crops were destroyed by a fire which ravaged the same section recently.

THOMPSON THRILLS IN BLINDFOLD ACT

to get her name, but needless to say she got a thrill, riding in an automobile with a "blind" driver, but so expertly did Thompson drive and so easily did the Chevrolet sedan equipped with General Jumbo tires ride, that the elderly woman remarked, "I was there before I realized we had left."

Next Thompson drove to "Tommy" Hill's confectionery at 697 North Capitol where he helped himself to one of Hill's famous "Wimpy" sandwiches and a glass of beer, entertaining the crowd with a variety of demonstrations that was convincing of Thompson's ability to "see" without eyes. Thompson then drove out to the Basket grocery operated by William J. LaRoche, 835 South Commercial street, and he said he was sure glad he ate only one of Tommy Hill's "Wimpy" sandwiches on account of one being a full meal, because Mr. LaRoche of the Basket grocery insisted he try one of their famous baked ham sandwiches with a glass of Bohemian beer.

It was here at the Basket grocery that Thompson encountered one of the most skeptical men he had met anywhere, but after just one demonstration the skeptic was fully convinced that Thompson either knows his stuff or else can see, as he claims, through the pores of his skin.

Now, tomorrow, Saturday for the big thrill, Thompson will park his Chevrolet in front of the First National bank on State street promptly at 1 p. m. and at 1:30 p. m. will drive blindfolded to the Tokio Sukiyaki house which is operated by Frank Tanaka at 222½ North Commercial street, over Fitt's fish market, upstairs. And by the way, Thompson says that the Tokio Sukiyaki house is fully equipped to take care of parties large or small, a seating capacity of over 100, serving Japanese dishes that are new and different, cooked right before you with individual dinner heaters at each table. American food is also served.

Thompson will then visit Rise Bootery, 129 North Commercial; Bill Watkins of Jim and Bill service station at Chemeketa and Liberty; Kafeteria shoe store, 357 State street; Drs. Thompson and Glutsch optometrists at 333 State street; Harry W. Scott, the cycle man at 147 South Commercial; the Gray Belle restaurant on State street; Eckerlen's beer garden, north highway, where they serve those delightful crawfish and lunches and feature Salem beer, music and entertainment and who have now enlarged the place, putting in cozy booths, formal opening Friday evening. The Rose-Marie beauty salon will also be visited.

Thompson will end his blind drive at the Douglas McKay Chevrolet company. Full details and complete route will appear in this paper Saturday morning; watch for it and be on hand to witness Hayward Thompson's positive last appearance anywhere. He is retiring to private life and is only appearing here now through his friendship for the Capital Post No. 9 of the American Legion.

PICKETS SHOWERED WITH CULL PRUNES

C. A. Page at the Kay mill last night. He said strikers there claimed none of their number participated in the closing Wednesday of the millrace gate. Pickets continued to hang about the mill plant, several of them playing horseshoes on the property courts.

City police kept up their watch at the mill and their services were called upon to stop pickets' resistance to permitting the entry of three non-union workers.

Psychology and Crime Topics of Hewitt Address

That clients never tell the truth to their attorneys and that patients never faithfully describe their ailments to their physicians were statements of psychological fact noted in the talk Thursday night by R. R. Hewitt before the social psychology section of the Salem Arts league, at its first regular session in the auditorium of the Salem public library. Dean Hewitt explained that these persons never tell the truth because they believe what they want to believe.

His talk before the group, gathered in spite of the fall opening downtown, developed the fundamentals of the nervous system, and showed how changes in the nervous system had this bearing on crime and crime detection. He declared that when it was possible to understand the chemical changes in the nerve force and the consequent changes in emotional reaction, crime problems could probably be solved.

ALGANA ADVISED TO 'KEEP MOUTH SHUT'

NEW YORK, Sept. 20—(AP)—George I. Alagna, first assistant radio operator on the Morro Castle, today told a federal board investigating the disaster in which 132 lives were lost that a Ward line representative told him to "cooperate with the Ward line and you'll be taken care of." "Keep your mouth shut," Alagna said that Stanley R. Wright, Ward line representative told him. "Don't say anything to anyone. Come to my office and this thing will blow over.

Earlier in the day Alagna told in detail of his efforts to get acting Captain W. Warms to order an SOS sent out.

Five trips and "strong pleading" were necessary, Alagna testified, before Capt. Warms gave him the order to send the SOS at "about 3:25." Alagna had been assigned to the bridge, he said, to relay Warms' order to Chief Radio Operator George Rogers in the radio room.

WATKINS HITS OUT AT OFFICE HOLDERS

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 20—(AP)—Former Congressman Elton Watkins today declared that democratic office-holders "who make a mess of things" are "hurting Roosevelt."

Speaking at the meeting of the Willamette Democratic society, Watkins declared there was need of house-cleaning at the Oregon Home Owners' Loan corporation.

Democrats who fail in office are bigger enemies of the president than Hoover and Mills and the other republicans who cry "back to the constitution," Watkins declared.

"They've got no business having people under assumed names," he said.

"They've got no business showing preference to mortgage companies."

He related that "one HOLC official appraised his own home and got a bigger loan than the sales price."

Machinery Here For Road Oiling

Yesterday the county received from Klamath county the boiler and retort for road oiling which it purchased. Previously the county had received a distributor which was manufactured for it by the Dallas Machine & Locomotive works. Owing to the lateness of the season it is considered doubtful if oiling work will start before spring.

ONE HUNTER KILLED AS SEASON STARTS

a bullet through his chest. Gill was shot through the left leg.

According to reports to state officers and Sheriff Rowe of Klamath county, the two men were resting on a log when Smith emerged from the brush, mistook them for a deer and shot twice.

Smith got the wounded men to the highway at Chemault when they were taken to Bend by a passing motorist.

'KILLERS' STRIKE PEACEFUL AFFAIR

PORTLAND, Sept. 20.—(AP)—So peaceful was the second day of the strike of "killers" and assistants at the Swift & Co. packing plant here today that the force of deputy sheriffs on guard was reduced from 16 to four.

Eight pickets leisurely paraded posters declaring the company "unfair." Union officials said union butchers of Oregon and Washington were participating in the boycott.

"There is no need of violence," said H. Nissen, secretary of the packing house workers union, "we prevented 21 sales out of 24 stops that one truck made."

B. C. Darnall, Swift's manager, said all departments were operating and that some of the strikers had returned to work.

Swift's was an active buyer in the North Portland livestock market this morning. However, the federal market news service reported that of 12 cars of government drought cattle that arrived, eight cars were "forwarded to another slaughtering center."

MURDER HINTED AS SMALL GIRL'S FATE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 20.—(AP)—A blood-stained handkerchief bearing the letter "D," a small hairpin, and dark stains upon a suburban street were the mute evidences of tragedy in the hands of police tonight as the officers sought the solve the disappearance of 6-year-old Dorothy Distelhurst.

Whether the child who was last seen at 1:15 p. m. Wednesday on her way home from school was kidnaped and slain, killed accidentally by a motorist who hid her body in the vicinity, struck by a train that dragged her body away, or experienced some other less dire fate remained a mystery. Police and U. S. department of justice agents were investigating all of those possibilities however.

A climax of the day's searching of the neighborhood came when W. L. Hamilton, uncle of the child, found a bloodstained handkerchief on the railroad tracks near the street. There was evidence, he said, that an effort had been made to remove the initial from the 'kerchief.

CURLEY HAS LEAD OVER SMITH ALLY

BOSTON, Sept. 21.—(Friday)—(AP)—Former Mayor James M. Curley, original Roosevelt man in Massachusetts and General Charles H. Cole, political ally of Governor Joseph B. Ely and ardent supporter of former Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York came to grips in the Massachusetts gubernatorial primary yesterday and Curley apparently had emerged the victor.

Returns from more than one-third of the state gave Curley a lead of 18,000 over Cole.

At the same time United States Senator David I. Walsh had swept aside former Governor Edward P. Barry's bid for the democratic senatorial nomination and won renomination.

Lt. Governor Gaspar G. Bacon, republican, piled up a commanding lead over Frank A. Goodwin, former registrar of motor vehicles.

SOLUTION OF CASE IS BLOW TO CRIME

aration of state police and federal activities. The justice department could promise only "co-operation" since the case was out of their jurisdiction.

The then small band led by No. 1 federal sleuth, 29-year-old J. Edgar Hoover, could not even bear arms.

Congress started to slash the tapes. The Lindbergh act, making kidnap threats a federal crime punishable by 20 years' imprisonment, was signed by President Hoover in July, 1932. On that day a special squad was assigned to the Lindbergh case.

The next congress added more teeth. Death was voted for kidnapers. Hoover's men were given power to track fleeing gangsters across the state lines which halted local authorities.

Since the Lindbergh tragedy, the justice department has worked on 29 abduction cases and investigated thousands of tips and clues on the Lindbergh case that have led from coast to coast.

It was Hoover's men who brought an end to the killing and terrorism of "Machine Gun" Kelly and John Dillinger.

MEETING POSTPONED

Lack of a quorum caused postponement of the scheduled meeting yesterday of the executive board of the Marion county health department. The session probably will be held next week, Dr. Vernon A. Douglas, health officer, stated. The 1935 budget for the department will be taken up at that time.
