FISK NOT TO GET HIS LICENSE BACK

The secretary of state's office will adhere to a recent opinion of Attorney General VanWinkle and refuse to restore the automobile drivers license originally issued to Charles Fisk, of Marion county, it was announced yesterday.

Attorneys for Fisk yesterday sent a letter to the secretary of state demanding that the license be restored.

Fisk was found guilty in the justice court here of driving an automobile while intoxicated and was fined $250 and sentenced to serve a term of 90 days in the county jail. Revocation of Fisk's driver's license followed.

Fisk later appealed his case to the circuit court where the charge was reduced to reckless driving. Judge McMahon imposed a fine of $25, and set aside the previous conviction.

Attorney General VanWinkle advised the state department that renewal of the license could not be made until the end of the year unless the justice of the peace who imposed the original sentence recommended such action. No such recommendation has been made.

Bigger Control System Needed Resident Avers

That the city needs a much greater flood control project than it already has carried out was declared yesterday by W. F. Wright, 795 South 22nd street, who moved here last November from Cheyenne, Wyo. Water from Saturday's overflow of Shelton ditch approached within inches of entering Wright's house, he said. It required exactly 40 hours for the flood water to run off, he noted.

Wright proposed that Shelton ditch be widened and deepened, as contemplated by the city engineer's staff, and in addition, that concrete or stone sidewalks be set in.

BRAND WON'T TAKE HIS DECEMBER PAY

Judge James T. Brand of the Coos county circuit court yesterday sent to the secretary of state here a check for $25, together with a waiver of his $500 salary for the month of December.

This refund, Brand said, was made in compliance with a promise to the State Department that he would not accept more than $5 per cent of his basic compensation for the years 1933 and 1934. Records show that Brand has returned approximately $1800 to the state under the salary refund agreement.

Brand said that while he had no criticism of the action of some other judges who refused to accept a salary reduction, he thought the state should refrain from requesting any salary donation during the next biennium.

Commenting further, Judge Brand said: "If any action should be taken impairing the right of judges to be paid and to receive their full constitutional salary by the incoming legislature, I shall feel free to stand upon my constitutional rights and to assert my right for the December, 1934 salary as well."
