Defense Meet In Portland Jan. 19

PATRIOTIC ORDERS throughout the state will be interested in the state conference on national defense being called for Saturday, January 19, in Portland, by the Daughters of the American Revolution and the American Legion auxiliary.

Members of both organizations from all over the state will assemble at the Multnomah hotel at 10 a. m. for the opening session.

Mrs. J. W. McInturff of Marshfield, national defense chairman of the D. A. R., is general chairman of the conference. A luncheon will be held at noon for which reservations should be made with Mrs. James A. R. Fenwick, 3326 N. E. Thurman Court, Portland.

Presiding will be Mrs. Mark Weatherford, state regent, and Mrs. Cecelia Gunn, state auxiliary president.

Distinguished speakers at both morning and afternoon sessions will include Mayor J. K. Carson who will talk on "Communism and Criminal Syndicalism Laws"; Brigadier-General James K. Parsons of Vancouver barracks on work in the C. G. C. and A. M. T. C.; Captain Charles Cross of the U. S. Navy on "An Adequate Navy for National Defense"; Mrs. Calvin Winne, national chairman of national defense for the Oregon auxiliary; Mrs. John Y. Richardson, past state regent; Dr. W. J. Chamberlain, state commander of the American Legion; and Major-General George A. White, adjutant general.

Baxter Adds to Impressive List of Public Talks

President Bruce R. Baxter of Willamette university is adding daily to an already impressive list of over 80 speaking engagements since his arrival three months ago.

He is scheduled to speak at the Rose City Methodist church in Portland today at 11 a. m. and return to Salem for a session at the First Christian church at 7:30 tonight.

Wednesday, he and Mrs. Baxter will be guests of President and Mrs. Peavey of Oregon State college at Corvallis at a luncheon. Following this he will be the principal speaker at a convocation assembly, the first one opening the second quarter at Oregon State.

Players to Hold Business Session Monday Night

Members of Chemeketa Players, Inc., will hold a business meeting Monday night at their new rehearsal hall at 545 Chemeketa street, according to an announcement of Mike Panek, president of the board of directors of the player group. The new rehearsal hall is above the room occupied by the State Motors used car department. It is large and roomy and will give ample space for rehearsals.

President Panek urged all members of Chemeketa Players, Inc., to be present at this session as important questions are to be discussed. Plans for forthcoming productions will be announced, and report of recent activities made.

LOAN FUND LARGER AS RESULT OF PLAY

Professor W. C. Jones, business manager of the Willamette faculty players who produced, "So This is London," last Wednesday, announced yesterday that approximately $300 was cleared from the play, above expenses.

This sum will be added to the faculty loan fund which already exceeds a thousand dollars. From this fund, students may borrow in order that they may finish their schooling.

A revolving fund with a small interest charged for the use of the money and started only three years ago with the first faculty play, "The Thirteenth Chair," it has grown each year until with the money made from "So This is London," the sum will amount to nearly $1500.

Mutual Savings Report Is Made

Total resources of the Mutual Savings and Loan association in Salem as of December 31, 1934, were $263,451, according to the 50th semi-annual statement of the organization released here yesterday. Largest of the assets items are first mortgage loans totaling $160,955. Real estate owned by the association amounts to nearly $47,000. Members' investments are $321,659.

In order to set up ample reserves after meeting all expenses, the association declared its semi-annual dividend on a three per cent annual basis.

SMITH TO MANAGE LONG BEACH STORE

The promotion of E. L. Smith, for two years manager of the Woolworth store here, to be manager of the company's store in Long Beach, Calif., was announced in Salem yesterday. Smith planning to go to his new location the middle of next week. Smith and his wife and two children came to Salem from Petaluma, Calif., where he was store manager. During his management of the store here, he has trained three men who went out to take charge of Woolworth stores.

Smith's successor in the store here will be A. J. Hoche who is coming to Salem from Redwood City, Calif., where he managed the Woolworth operations. C. F. Knauff, assistant manager of the local store, is going this month to Los Angeles where he will become manager of a Woolworth store.

Members of the Lions club of Salem which Smith has been a member, will be hosts at a dinner in his honor to be given at 5 p. m. tonight at the Marion hotel.

MARRIED TEACHER IS DECLARED BEST

By HEYWOOD BELL RICHMOND, Va.—(P)—The long standing debate on whether women teachers should be dropped from faculties as soon as they accept wedding rings is entirely beside the point, says Dr. David Wilber, Peters, director of instruction for the Virginia department of education.

The welfare of the pupil should receive primary consideration, he holds.

Dr. Peters, who has just completed a nation-wide statistical study of the question, concludes that if any relationship exists between marital status and teaching effectiveness of women, it favors the married teacher.

Kuhn to Talk on City Government At Monday Meet

"City Government" will be the topic for Mayor V. E. Kuhn when he speaks tomorrow noon to the chamber of commerce here. Problems facing the new administration and plans for meeting them will be considered in the address. The chamber has invited all members of the council to be its guests for the occasion.

Each Monday noon the chamber will listen to a short resume of the work of the chamber during the past week as a new feature to be introduced into the meeting by Howard H. Hulsey, the new president.

PLANS MADE WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(P)

New ways of expediting action on the bonus, social insurance, "necessity tax" extension and the president's relief appropriations were mapped today by congressional leaders.

To my mind one of the finest of the cotoneasters is the Francis chiefti, tall but of graceful, drooping habit, with fine foliage, usually evergreen, and bright red berries.

A tall barberry, not so well-known, is the berberis Lewis, which reaches about five feet in height. This is a native of western China, has yellow flowers and black fruit. The yellow sprays of the berberis stenophylla, another taller variety, is also very attractive.

Some Sundial Verses
"What verse," some one writes to ask, "should I have on my sundial?"

To that, I would answer, "it all depends." There are many lovely sundial verses. None, I think, is more suitable than the inscription on the sundial in Martha Washington's garden at Mt. Vernon, "Horas non numero, nisi serenas." Only, I believe, I should have it in its translation, "I record none but sunny hours."

Looks After 9,000,000 Children

A task of no mean proportions is that of Miss Katherine Lenroot, new chief of the United States children's bureau, who has the worry of looking after the fortunes of some 9,000,000 delinquent and needy children in the nation. Miss Lenroot, the daughter of a former Wisconsin senator, has been a member of the children's bureau for 20 years and is regarded as an expert on child welfare.

By LILLIE L. MADSEN
The following, I hope will answer the many questions which have been coming to me of late. I appreciate the interest being shown, and I hope no one ever hesitates writing if she feels I can be of any help.

Shrubs which furnish food for birds during the winter and which may still be planted between now and the last part of March, include cotoneaster, barberry, pyracantha, holly and perennials. There are also such trees as the hawthorns and mountain ash.

As a family the cotoneaster cannot be overestimated, furnishing variety of foliage and habit that makes it members favorites in landscape planting. The cotoneasters are not entirely evergreen, but they are so persistent in foliage that they are commonly classed as such. All of them flower pink or white in spring, but their main beauty is in the masses of red or orange-red berries carried through fall and winter. Unless the cotoneaster has a good garden loam in which to grow and plenty of sunshine its berries will be few and inferior.

To my mind one of the finest of the cotoneasters is the Francis chiefti, tall but of graceful, drooping habit, with fine foliage,

There is also the old Roman favorite, "Though suns rise and shadows fall, Love is forever over all."

The yellow vine blooming at this time is not, as some suggest, a forsythia. It is a jasmine.

More on Conifers
In answer to questions about planting native conifers about the home. If you have a small plot about your residence do not plant one of our common native conifers, no matter how "fuzzy and cute" it is now. That is unless you intend to take it out in a few short years. A compact, oval-shaped little bush, suitable for small gardens is Sander's cedar (Chamaecyparis Obtusa Sanderii.) The moss cedar (Chamaecyparis pisifera squarrosa) is still a smaller dwarf, scarcely ever attaining a height of over 20 inches. This is particularly good for rockeries, or for the front foundation planting. Others in the bush type which will not exceed seven feet at maturity are the Japanese table pine, the dwarf Japanese yew, and Chinese juniper.

30 Teachers Take Special Program

Nearly 30 teachers of the county, members of the "rational school program" developed under the supervision of Mrs. Mary L. Fulkerson, county superintendent, met here Saturday to plan a course in geography for the coming semester in the elementary schools. Mrs. Fulkerson's leadership has brought a constantly larger number of teachers into the program where methods of teaching are stressed. Enrollment in the course is entirely voluntary. Originally there were only a very few teachers taking part in the program; the number is growing steadily each year.

Bridge mistakes are embarrassing. Yet such social errors are but the minor results of eyes that have been neglected. Physical poise... mental loginess... facial distortion are too often the penalty inflicted upon the careless ones. Preserve your good vision with good lighting and periodic eye examinations.
