Miss Kerber Is Married at Church

MISS OSENA KERBER, daughter of Mrs. Theresa Kerber, was wedded to Walter Timm, son of Mrs. Mary Timm, at a beautiful nuptial mass Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Joseph's Catholic church.

Father Theodore J. Bernards officiated.

Palms and large yellow daffodils decorated the altar. The bride wore white satin designed with a short court train and long sleeves. Her veil was long and attached to a braided white satin coronet. She carried a white prayer book with a cascade of roses.

Sister Attendant

Miss Regina Kerber was her sister's only attendant. Her gown was of gold and she wore a matching turban and carried daffodils and freesias.

Mr. Timm was attended by Richard Bender of Albany, his cousin. Ushers were Michael Fitzpatrick and Charles Pillette.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother. Yellow appointments were used.

To Reside Here

For going away, Mrs. Timm selected a knitted wine color frock, black fur jacket and black turban and accessories. After a honeymoon north, the couple will reside at 2090 N. Capitol street.

The bride attended Salem schools and has been connected with the Motor Vehicle License department at the statehouse. Mr. Timm was educated in the east and is in business in Salem.

This feature gives a definitely youthful appearance to the bust and forms, too, a distinctive new spring frock line. Loose sleeves—these with turn-back cuff—are not only the rage, but delightfully comfortable as well. Any of the new irregular-surfaced crepes are smart for its making.

This Picture Is Fun to Do

Old Ironsides—how we thrilled to her wonderful story back in the school-room days! How fitting a decoration her picture is in any American home. Here she has been translated into embroidery—the simplest of stitches—in the manner of those ship pictures of Colonial times. You can use it as a picture or on a pillow. Do it in fine wools—a blue sky, blue-green water, a dark ship with rigging and sails outlined in black. It is one of the pieces of needlework that are so much fund to do, that you are sorry to put in the finishing stitches. It would be an excellent gift for a bride, for it would start her off with a most attractive wall decoration.

Pattern 619 comes to you with a transfer pattern of the picture 10 x 14 inches; a color guide; directions for embroidering and yardage requirements.

Send 10 cents in stamp or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to The Statesman.

CHANNEL WORK AT TURNER PROPOSED

Court Makes Inspection of Mill City Moving Job; Progress Pleases

Members of the county court and the county engineer, on an inspection trip yesterday to a flood control project near Turner, the transient camp midway between Mill City and Mehama and the Hammond hall moving job at Mill City, returned to Salem late in the afternoon pretty much disgruntled with the way the weather had treated them for working on a holiday.

But offsetting the disagreeable rains and winds encountered were the progress noted on the two jobs in the Mill City area and the prospect on the flood control work.

Commissioner Roy Melson said a big shovel, use of which is donated by the Southern Pacific company, will be put to work at once digging out and widening a stretch about 1000 feet long in Mill creek near Turner. This deepening will come partly along the Lotta Smith ranch. Mill creek, running at a nine-foot depth in this area, suddenly becomes shallow, running in riffles for the 1000-foot stretch. The digging proposed will lower the water level to three feet, giving more channel at this point.

Melson said moving of the Hammond buildings is making better progress than expected so early in the undertaking.

The crews at the government camp, located some months ago on a site purchased by the county, are now working on clearing the North Santiam right-of-way from the camp site to Mill City on which section the growth is the heaviest. Some trees in this route are six feet through. Three or four miles of growth has been cleaned out to the 60-foot width.

Bad Weather Is Holding Up Road Work, Reported

Unfavorable weather is holding up approximately $1,000,000 worth of highway contracts in this district of the national reemployment service, consisting of Marion, Polk, Linn, Benton and Lincoln counties, reported Ralph M. Coleman, district manager for the service, while in Salem yesterday.

Nearly half a million dollars worth of this work delayed by rain and snow is on the North and South Santiam highway routes, he said. Other projects awaiting better weather are road and bridge jobs near Independence, Buell and Salt creek in Polk county.

Coleman pointed out that whereas a year ago there was only about nine inches of snow in the Santiam pass region, there is now nine feet.

CHEMAWA OUTLOOK BETTER, REPORTED

Outlook for restoration of department of interior funds to the support of the Salem Indian school at Chemawa is improving, according to a telegram received by William P. Ellis, former president of the Salem chamber of commerce, from Congressman James W. Mott yesterday. Mott's message read:

"Argued case Chemawa before interior department, sub-committee of house appropriation committee, yesterday, and conferred with committee members individually today.

"Reaction very good and outlook for favorable committee report optimistic. I think case has not revolved itself into question of finding money for this appropriation without increasing total budget allowance for bureau of Indian affairs."
