

BREWERY FIGHT TO FLARE UP TUESDAY

Conservative Unionists to Oppose Placing Plant on Unfair List

Another attempt to have the Salem brewery placed on the unfair list is to come before the Salem Trades and Labor council here next Tuesday night with conservative leaders in the organization again making a determined fight to have the proposal rejected. Three times in recent months the proposal has been up and each time has either been voted down or tabled.

Conservative leaders in the labor council declare there is no reason whatever that the brewery should be called unfair or that any propaganda should be issued urging people to avoid purchasing its products or the products of other breweries throughout the northwest.

The Salem brewery is under contract to use only union labor and has carried out its contract meticulously, the opponents of the unfair action declare. The only question at issue, is whether truck operators and engineers at the plant should come under the jurisdiction of the Brewery Workers' union or should retain their connection with the Teamsters' and the Engineers' unions, respectively.

Question Twice Decided
This question has twice been decided by the American Federation of Labor, the local council leaders say. In each decision truck drivers and engineers were ordered to be under the jurisdiction of their own unions with the Brewery Workers' union having jurisdiction over the other workers in the plant.

Gust Anderson, secretary of the Central Labor council in Portland, explained the matter fully in a recent issue of the Oregon Labor Press. "For the benefit of the people of Portland and vicinity I want to state that we have no unfair breweries," Anderson wrote. "All of them are operating under signed agreements with organized labor. All that we ask the Brewery Workers' International Union to say is that they respect and recognize the decision of the American Federation of Labor. This controversy will be settled in less than 24 hours."

Boycott Held Wrong
Anderson also stated that "we feel it is absolutely wrong to place banners and to prosecute a boycott against firms pledged to go along with organized labor. We feel, however, that the brewery workers want to do the right thing but are under the control of the International Union and in the final analysis, the dispute between the International unions mentioned must be settled from the top and not from the bottom."

PLANS FORMED FOR SUNRISE SERVICE

Young people from various churches of Salem and the Marion County Christian Endeavor union met last night in the Y. M. C. A. to plan the annual Easter sunrise service for Salem and vicinity. This service is an annual affair, planned and arranged by young people representing the various churches.

A pleasing and worshipful program is being planned this year, with the public invited. The service will be held at Belcrest park, south of Salem, which commands a beautiful view of the city and surrounding country. The time is to be 6 a. m.

Those present last night representing their churches were: Mary Kruger, Court Street Christian; Florence E. Foster, Calvary Baptist; Olga Janik, Harold Holler, First Baptist; Mildred Mulkey, Howard Roberts, First Presbyterian; Blanche Roddy, First Methodist; Donald Douris, Jason Lee Methodist; and Howard Cole, First Christian church and Marion County C. E. Union.

WILLAMETTE'S MAY DAY PLANS FORMING

Pietila, Weisser to Escort Queen's Attendants; Welch is Manager

Plans for Willamette university's annual May festival, May 4, are rapidly taking form, according to J. D. Welch, student manager. Yesterday Al Pietila and Carl Weisser were chosen as escorts to Clara Wright and Elva Sehon, attendants to "Queen" Frances Stewart. Don Egr has been named king.

The festivities will open Saturday morning, May 4, with a breakfast at Lausanne hall. In addition to coronation ceremonies the morning program will include tennis matches and the freshman-sophomore tug of war.

Following the afternoon baseball games at Olinger field, the university's Little Theatre guild at 4 p. m. will present a number of short plays and interpretative readings in honor of the queen. The junior class play, "The Goose Hangs High," will be given at 8:15 in the Salem high school auditorium.

Baxter to Preside
Dr. Bruce R. Baxter, Willamette president, will serve as master of ceremonies at the coronation. Music in honor of Queen Frances will be played by a violin trio consisting of Margaret Savage, Dalbert Jensen and Hortense Taylor, and vocal numbers will be sung by Maurice Dean. Gordon Jones has been selected crown bearer and Ralph Barber, Earl Potter, Richard Smart and Dean as heralds.

Committee chairmen include Warren Peters, Willamette night; Esther Black, programs and invitations; Anna Mae Unrath, decorations; Helen Benner, music, and Forest Robinson, campus.

Church Speaker

Rev. John H. Bostrom of Pasadena who Sunday will open a series of services here at the Evangelistic tabernacle.

Rotarians Elect Sprague, Sisson Club Executives

Robert Hutcheon in Scotch monologues and William McGilchrist in solos and playing his concertina for accompaniment, provided the program for the Rotary club Wednesday noon. Hutcheon had on his highland costume of kilts and tam. Both are members of the club whose musical numbers are always well received.

The annual election of the club resulted in choice of the following: President, C. A. Sprague; vice-president, B. E. Sisson; secretary, Eric Butler; treasurer, G. H. Riches; directors, Lyle Barholomew, William McGilchrist, sr.

Dr. Bruce Baxter on behalf of the club greeted three new members, William J. Thompson, Gardner Knapp and Harley Bosler.

GOSPEL SERIES TO START NEXT WEEK

Rev. John H. Bostrom of Pasadena, Calif., will be in Salem Sunday opening a series of gospel services at the Evangelistic tabernacle. He comes directly from Bethel temple of Los Angeles where he has been speaking to large congregations. Rev. Bostrom is highly recommended by Pastor Louis F. Turnbull of Bethel temple, according to Rev. West-on of the tabernacle, as an earnest and capable speaker. The evangelist will have the assistance of the tabernacle choir and orchestra which will provide special numbers for the opening services Sunday.

There will be two services Sunday, at 11 a. m. and at 7:45 p. m., Rev. Bostrom speaking at both services. The special series will continue each week night at 7:45 except Monday.

The tabernacle is located on Ferry street at 13th, one block south and one block east from the supreme court building.

BIDS WANTED SOON ON FRY WAREHOUSE

Razing of the old Fry warehouse on Front street began yesterday preparatory to the erection of a new $100,000 reinforced concrete warehouse there. Demolition of the old structure will be completed within a fortnight.

Dan J. Fry, who is the owner of the new structure, said yesterday that plans for the new warehouse would be completed within a week to ten days and that bids would be called for at once.

Fry said his plans called for letting the bids within ten days so work on the warehouse could start not later than Monday, April 29. The building must be completed not later than August 15 in order to provide storage space for the 1935 crop. The second to fifth floors, inclusive, are under a long-term lease to the Southern Pacific company. The main floor and basement will be reserved by Fry for his own warehouse and storage business. Knight and Howell, Portland architects, are preparing the plans and specifications.

SILVERTOWN STORE SPRING SALE OPENS

Today the Goodrich Silvertown store, located at 198 South Commercial street is celebrating its annual spring sale. This is a gala event for this store and motorists of Salem, as many money-saving specials are offered on both merchandise and service.

Mr. Walter Zosel, manager, states, "our budget pay plan, which has been welcomed by hundreds of Salem motorists, will make it possible for everyone to prepare their cars without delay for summer driving and vacation trips."

"This liberal plan, which was first introduced to the public about a year ago, seems to have tremendous appeal to Salem motorists largely because it is so flexible and fits the needs of everyone. Any automobile owner can buy from one to five tires on a battery and pay out of his income as he uses them, instead of spending his ready cash all at one time."

"It is this plan as much as anything else that will influence Salem motorists to put their cars in safe, first-class running condition before hot weather comes."

"This easy budget pay plan that fits every need and purse, is doubly valuable to Salem car owners to enable them to take advantage of the many special offers of this store during this big spring sale."

Governor Praises Librarians' Work At Meeting Here

Librarians from virtually every section of the state gathered here yesterday to discuss the many problems incident to their work. The conference was called by Miss Harriet Long, state librarian, who presided.

Speakers included Dr. Bruce R. Baxter, president of Willamette university; Miss Ann Mulheron, Portland librarian, and Governor Martin. Governor Martin spoke in high terms of the work of the librarians and said the benefits of their activities were felt in all parts of the state. R. J. Hendricks, editor emeritus of The Statesman, was the principal speaker at the noon luncheon.

New books were discussed by Miss Long. A question box was one of the features of the forenoon program.
