

SPORT LETTERS AT HIGH SCHOOL GIVEN

Other Awards Handed Out; Don Coons is Winner of New 'S' Honor

Letters for participants in seven sports and several special awards were presented at the annual awards assembly at Salem high Tuesday. Coaches of the various sports handed out nearly 100 letters, the largest group being the 20 wrestlers who received awards.

Don Coons was awarded the new "S" club trophy for excellence in scholarship, leadership and sports. The trophy was awarded for the first time this year. Selection was made by Coaches Huntington and Gilmore, J. C. Nelson and E. D. Roseman of the commercial department. Coons later, as president of the "S" club, presented the student body with a check for $100.

The Commercial club honor cup went to Earl Crabb and Clarence Kelbe on a basis of scholarship, initiative and loyalty.

The third place banner won by the shorthand team in state competition was presented to the student body.

MRS. HEATON HEADS REBEKAH ASSEMBLY

The fire siren in the parade brought many calls to The Statesman office asking the whereabouts of the fire.

At the closing sessions today, a resolution will be presented asking that the city of Salem be made permanent meeting place of the grand lodge, but indications yesterday were that this would not be accepted.

In a beautiful ceremonial early yesterday afternoon, held jointly by the grand lodge and assembly, presented by Olive lodge No. 28 of Medford, memorial services were held, with special tribute to four departed past grand officers.

At the grand masters' and Muscovite banquet last night, held at the armory, 620 delegates were served, and following this separate work was presented in separate sessions of the lodge and assembly. Montezuma lodge No. 50 of Hillsboro exemplified the second degree for the regular meeting of Chemeketa lodge No. 1 at the armory, while Epsolon Theta Rho club No. 5 of Bend exemplified the Tieton Rho degree for the assembly at the Willamette gymnasium, followed by the Rebekah degree by the Tillamook Rebekahs.

West, From Hospital Bed, Sends Poignant Tribute to Miss Cosper

Ex-Governor Remembers Retiring School Head Here for Her Smile, Sympathy and Finding of Joy in Life

Unable to attend the dinner in honor of Miss Margaret Cosper here last night, Oswald West, former governor, composed a beautiful tribute to her which was read at the banquet. Mr. West's message, written in St. Vincent's hospital in Portland where he is recovering from a severe operation, follows:

"I regret exceedingly that temporary detention in this hospital repair shop has made it impossible for me to be with you tonight and thus join in paying a just tribute to one who, for over half a century, has so unselfishly devoted her life to the common good.

Smile Remembered

"Time is said to be like a flowing river, and memory a bridge for our convenience in returning to the scenes of our childhood and our experiences in life. I can see, as if it were but yesterday, the entrance of Margaret Cosper, a mere wisp of a girl, upon her professional career—a teacher in your public schools. She seemed to have sensed, early in life, that of all things one's own expression is the most important, for never, not even in life's darkest moments, has she failed to present that smile which has so endeared her to thousands of children and made her an institution in your beautiful city. She was one of those who believed that, no matter how short one's life, there was always time for courtesy. In fact, the makeup of her character has consisted of exalted and pleasant thoughts seated in a heart of courtesy. She has been one of those fortunate human beings who are fond of gardens, flowers and shady places. She has loved the beautiful in everything, and the breadth of her appreciation has made her of kindly heart and sympathetic. She has always seemed to display such an artless delight in the simple art of living.

Sympathy Given Thousands

"Without a chick of her own, she has mothered thousands. She has had to give to too many of these children that love and sympathy had a right to expect, but did not receive, from their parents. Speaking in his book, "Character and Conduct of Life," Professor William McDougall, discusses the lost opportunity of parents. He says: "Who would not be a demi-god if he could? And yet how many parents fail to see that here is their one chance to fill that role! How delightful to walk with innocence and beauty and new born wonder; to protect, to guide, to share their fleeting joys and sorrows; to heal their hearts; to reveal new sources of delight; to observe the unfolding of new powers, to know that, in all this our marvelous process of growth, we have taken an essential and beneficial part."

"What many parents have lost, Margaret Cosper has found. The sunlight she has gathered, through the passing years, from the innocent faces of thousands of children, will drive the shadows from her remaining days. Those who have so lived their lives, in sweetness and love, that they can change their winter into a gentle Indian summer, have come as victors through the ordeal of life. In facing the future let this be her prayer:

Prayer Offered

"Give me a few friends who will love me for what I am; keep ever burning before my vagrant steps the kindly light of hope; and though age and infirmity o'er take me, and I come not within the castle of my dreams, teach me still to be thankful for life, and for times older memories that are good and sweet; and may the evening's twilight find me gentle and content."

200 FRIENDS HONOR RETIRING PRINCIPAL

Dr. Burt Brown Barker, speaking for B. F. Irvine, lauded Miss Cosper's service and read for Former Governor Oswald West, who was unable to be present, a tribute written from his hospital bed to commemorate her service in Salem.

Breyman Boise said his parents were friends of many years with Miss Cosper while his wife and himself and now their two children had been under her principality at the Garfield school.

Mr. Sheldon F. Sackett expressed, as a former pupil of Miss Cosper, her appreciation for the development of hundreds of pupils through the years Miss Cosper has been an instructor here. J. C. Nelson, of Salem high school, paid a tribute to Miss Cosper's personality and character and her influence in the community.

MUSIC was furnished by Wesley Roeder, high school teacher and a former pupil, who played a trumpet solo, and by Mrs. Bruce Spaulding of Dallas, also a former pupil, who sang two solos.

dent's veto of the Patman bill. Father Coughlin, touching on the background of democracy by representation, said that "until a year ago there was no truly representative government in your nation."

Critics Propaganda Sent Congressmen

"Your congressmen," he declared, "were subjected to a barrage of propaganda."

He flayed the nation's newspapers, but asserted the press did not "maliciously subject itself to powerful interests."

"The newspapers and their masters have been almost in complete control of the two principal political parties.

"The national union for social justice is no more a political party than the newspapers."

Coughlin said the union would furnish the principles "for a return to social justice," and called upon his listeners to elect a congress which would fulfill them.

O-C GRANT CONFAB FINDS SCANT HOPE

A fruitless conference to consider ways and means of securing Oregon and California land grant tax rebates was held yesterday afternoon at the courthouse with a number of county judges and commissioners from various counties in the state attending. Counties where the lands are located are eager to secure full payment of the moneys allotted them by the Stanford act but reduced severely in 1933 when the new federal administration declined to pay the amount any larger sum than that received from sale of federal timber on O. and C. timber. Until congress appropriate specific funds to make up the deficiency between moneys due counties in lieu of taxes, county officials are dubious if they can secure a sum equivalent to the taxes levied.

COOPERATION URGED BY MARTIN, SPEECH

Declaring he "intended to do all in his power to establish an era of good feeling in Oregon," Governor Charles H. Martin, speaking for the first time in Benton county since his inauguration, last night called upon all groups to lay aside any spirit of bitterness or misunderstanding and to take a sympathetic attitude toward those public officials whom they have chosen to administer the affairs of this commonwealth." The address was delivered to a large audience in Memorial Union hall.

Involved parties, of the questions at issue.

"The effects of the dispute in the lumber industry have become so far reaching that in fairness to the large number of people not directly involved but who are now suffering as a result of the controversy, it seemed to me that some solution to the situation becomes imperative and must be attempted at once."

HEAVY FLOW GIVEN BY SILVERTON WELL

SILVERTON, May 22.—The Silverton water department nearly went on a justified celebration Wednesday afternoon when the testing of the newly drilled well here showed a 750-gallon a minute flow with only a 45 foot drop. Water stood at 15 feet from the well. Drilling was stopped at 133 feet. The well is a 12-inch one in rock formation.

The water shows little mineral content and members of the water commission and the water superintendent, Elgin McCleary, brought out soap to test the water for its hardness. They reported that even Silverton laundry women would be satisfied with its softness.

R. J. Strasser drilling company of Portland did the work. Testing was done today with a deep well turbine pump.

Dr. A. W. Simmons is chairman of the water commission with Austin Eastman and Roy Morley the other members. Dr. Simmons said that work in cleaning up and connecting with the pipe lines will begin at once.
