HOP MEN MAY STILL CAST CODE BALLOTS

The state committee working toward the proposed hop marketing agreement has received a list from Washington, D. C., of hop growers of Oregon who have not balloted on the referendum vote to express preference for or against the code. The first list on growers who have not voted came May 17, with another reaching here by airmail this week.

The last check made on Oregon growers who have voted counted 343 ballots but no official indication of how the vote stands has been given from Washington.

Growers may still mark their ballot for or against the code, sending it direct to Washington, D. C., or leaving it with Frank Needham or Robin Day in Salem. The statements as to production and acreage in the referendum ballot must be accompanied by sworn affidavit, Needham points out.

Gasoline Sales Gain Slightly, First 4 Months

Gasoline sales in Oregon increased from 48,985,436 gallons during the first four months of 1934 to 49,299,779 gallons during the similar period of 1935, the secretary of state reported yesterday.

The gasoline tax for the first four months of this year was $2,442,498.02, as against $2,492,271.84 during the corresponding period a year ago.

Gasoline sales decreased 537,703 gallons in April with a loss of $26,885.17 in taxes.

Because it contains the entire whole wheat kernel in a crushed form, plus pure honey and other ingredients which have a stimulating action, Honey Krushed Wheat Bread has proven very beneficial to those who have been forced to take laxatives and habit-forming cathartics. If eaten regularly Honey Krushed Wheat Bread often restores normal elimination because it contains exactly the right amount of roughage to form a balanced diet.

You can buy Honey Krushed Wheat Bread, sliced and wrapped in a new moisture proof cellophane wrapper, at all leading food stores. It is easy to identify because the outer crust, by an exclusive process, is covered with an extra supply of nourishing crushed wheat.

MAKE THIS TEN-DAY TEST
If you are troubled with constipation and bowel troubles, switch to Honey Krushed Wheat Bread for ten days. Chew it well at every meal. After the third or fourth day you will begin to feel more peppy, the poisons that have accumulated in your intestines will vanish, and your elimination will be greatly improved.

Go to your grocer today and get a loaf of delicious Honey Krushed Wheat Bread. Eat a slice without butter. You'll be amazed at its fine flavor and almost sweet it is full of nut meats. It is more tasty than any bread you have ever eaten because it contains an abundant supply of pure honey.

Get your loaf of Honey Krushed right now. —Advt.

SALES OF LIQUOR $432,949 IN APRIL

Sales of Oregon liquor stores and agencies for the first four months of 1935 aggregated $1,674,228, according to an audit of the state liquor commission released here yesterday. The profit to the state from these sales was $374,543. April sales totaled $432,949, which was slightly less than those for March.

The audit showed only the profits from the stores and agencies as the previous records of the license and revenue divisions were destroyed in the capitol fire.

Total earned surplus in the stores division since the inception of the liquor commission more than a year ago was $1,018,687. Of this amount, $742,434 was turned over to the unemployment relief agencies, leaving a balance up to May 1 of $276,253.

The liquor commission announced recently that it would be on a cash basis by August 1, as the result of profits this year. This will place the commission in a position to discount all bills and save a large amount of money.

BANKERS CONCLUDE PROGRAM OUTLINED

State's Money Handlers to Meet Here June 17-18; Baxter Will Speak

With Dr. Bruce R. Baxter, president of Willamette university, Albert C. Agnew, counsel of the Federal Reserve bank of San Francisco, and H. N. Stronck, management counsel of the American Trust company of San Francisco, listed as speakers, the program for the 30th annual Oregon Bankers' association convention to be held here June 17-18 has been completed.

Dr. Baxter will speak on "The Man in the Crowd," at the banquet on the first night of the convention. Agnew, whose talks have created great interest at other banking conventions, will be heard at the opening session. Russell G. Smith, cashier of the Bank of America, San Francisco, an authority on public relations and known to most Oregon bankers, will also speak the first day.

A. A. Schramm, state banking superintendent, will speak Tuesday with H. N. Stronck giving the feature address on the internal problems of bank management.

Wives Play Gossip
Between sessions, tours of state institutions, the linen mills, fruit canneries and other spots of interest have been arranged through the Salem chamber of commerce. Mrs. Linn C. Smith will serve as hostess for the bankers' wives, who will entertain with a golf tournament, bridge and tea at the Salem women's club and a tour of private gardens.

Eugene Courtney, manager of The Dalles branch of the First National bank of Portland, is expected to be elevated to the presidency to succeed Frederick Greenwood. Courtney has been vice-president of the association for the past two years.

INDIAN DRAWINGS FEATURE '35 CHIEF

Distribution of The Chief, annual of the Salem Indian school, is being made this week. The yearbook contains about 80 pages devoted to the past year's activities of the school at Chemawa. It was edited by Clifford Olsen and printed by the students in the printshop on the Indian school campus.

A striking feature of the art work is five pen and ink drawings of the Indian in various moods, printed on imitation birch bark sheets dividing the various sections of the book. Full page photographs of campus buildings are found in the front of the book, with the last page, except for autograph space, showing a fine print of the Oregon state capitol destroyed by fire last April 25.

Young Olsen's staff included: Dan Motanic, manager; Myrtle Spaniel and Louis Jamison, theme editors; Elzie Farrow and

Vote Promise Got Man Job Building Old Capitol, Says

Promise to "vote right" got R. W. Kingsbury, now an aged man, a job on construction of the Oregon state capitol building here nearly 60 years ago, Kingsbury recalled while viewing the statehouse ruins here yesterday.

Construction was going during a political campaign, he said, and as a result there were three men to every possible excuse for a job on the building.

"After the election was over, two-thirds of the workmen on the building were fired — Kingsbury among them."

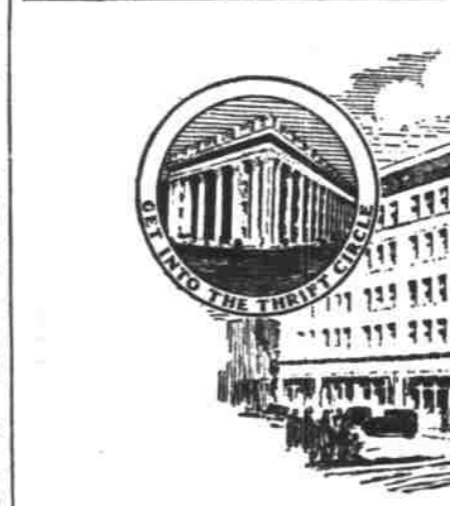

"But I didn't mind, for I was too young to vote anyway," he chuckled in recounting the incident. Kingsbury was here from Eugene looking after property interests.

INVENTORS MARKET OPENED, PORTLAND

As one of the results of the annual inventors exhibition held in Salem last March, sponsored by the chamber of commerce here, an "inventions and industrial mart" is being opened this week in the grand central public market in Portland, John T. Anderson, industrial co-ordinator who handled the exhibit here, announced here yesterday.

"This will provide a long felt want in which the manufacturer will be able to see the many new inventions ready to market, the efforts of Oregon residents," Anderson said. This section, provided with office and information booth, is under personal management of Anderson, who has been working with Oregon manufacturers and inventors the past two years.

The Portland inventions mart will have a grand opening in the near future. Monday night at 8 o'clock Anderson will meet with local inventors at the chamber of commerce here to arrange for a display at the Portland fair.

The Salem chamber of commerce is already making plans to sponsor the second annual state inventors' exhibition here next year, at the armory.
