papers about myself.

"They always gave me all I could eat. Yes sir, they treated me fine.

"They only hurt me once. That was when one of them lifted me out of the car. I said, 'Say, don't you hurt me.' And he said, 'Young man, you're too valuable to hurt.'

"They always kept telling me they would turn me back to my father.

"They used to put me in the closet at night. It wasn't bad. They always put a mattress against the door and one man always laid on it.

"I rode the trunk in the car. Sure it had holes in it. How could I have gotten any air? My legs were bent a little but they didn't hurt after I walked around a little.

"They always took the blindfold off my eyes and I could see things in the house. They always wore masks. They looked funny and I laughed at them at first.

"About 10 o'clock last night one of them said, 'We are going to put you in the road. You just keep on walking. Pretty soon your ride will come along and give you a ride home. I walked four miles or more. I wasn't afraid. I came to a house, went to the door and knocked, and then I said 'I am the little kidnaped boy.'

with your commission and your employees, gave a large amount of his time and services. The records show that one of the attorneys of this office has attended every one of your meetings, when requested, since the adjournment of the legislature.

"You asked that my assistant draft new regulations for the transaction of your business in the administration and enforcement of the liquor laws and submit them to you at your meeting held in Portland late in April. This was done, and at that time you determined upon certain matters of policy which necessitated the making of changes and additions, and continuing the matter for further consideration at your next meeting.

"You instructed one of your administrative officers to meet with my assistant in the meantime that they might prepare the final draft of such regulations and submit it for your approval and adoption on May 28.

"Such plan was carried out and together they redrafted such regulations as directed by your commission, excepting two, which depended upon certain information which was to be furnished by your commission prior to such meeting.

"My assistant was in Portland the night of May 27 for the purpose of presenting to your commission such final draft the following day at its session, but was advised by you that his presence was not necessary and not desired at that time, but he would be notified later in the week when you desired him to attend.

"The opinions requested but not yet furnished are only five in number, and they were withheld at your request because they were connected with the new regulations and it was understood they should await the adoption of such new regulations.

"Further, it has been known for more than two months that your commission has contemplated the appointment of a private attorney to advise and represent you, and you have been considering applicants for such position.

"It is therefore obvious that the statements accredited to you at your meeting do not express your real reason for taking this action, but they are a subterfuge to cover the reversal of your originally announced policy not to employ private counsel."

over a special telephone connection to the Times.

Even some of Johnny's colleagues—young fellows who got all the way through high school and even a journalism course—grinned all last week when John would get "jittery" over the kidnap case. But it was Johnny Dreher who wrote all the Times' leads last week.

And they kept on grinning when Johnny heard some unidentified farmer had called in and said he'd found George Weyerhaeuser up Inasquah way in the woods. Most of the boys all went down to the police station and up on the hill in front of the Weyerhaeuser home.

But John, as he told it tonight, "just grabbed myself a taxi and started out to meet that farmer's car."

Some of the other boys started chasing John, but it was too late then.

Utilization of Northwest Woods Will be Shown Here In Exhibition From Big Show

Direct to Salem from the National Housing show in Portland Tuesday will come an exhibit of the uses of northwest woods in home building prepared by the West Coast Lumbermen's association. The exhibit will be shown in the lobby of the Hotel Salem Tuesday and Wednesday.

Seven models of homes, built on a scale of one-half inch to the foot and mounted on bases representing 60x24 foot lots from centers of interest in the exhibit. Each house was constructed from architects' plans and the "lots" on which they rest were landscaped in miniature by landscape designers.

model homes is provided by eight sample sections of wall paneling of room-height, and 16 designs for wood dwellings.

Turning countryward the exhibit also boasts a complete set of model farm buildings constructed by high school boys throughout the northwest. Model barns, poultry and hog houses and pens built by members of the Hayesville boys' 4-H club are included.

The exhibit reveals the beautiful effects which the principal west coast woods—Douglas fir, west coast hemlock, western red cedar and Sitka spruce. It was secured for Salem through the efforts of R. A. "Dick" Meyer, manager of the J. W. Copeland yards.

Striking background for the building is raised. On his previous visit to Salem Baer appealed to Governor Martin for a pardon which would prevent him from being deported as an undesirable alien. Governor Martin refused to grant a pardon.

Records show that Baer has served two terms in the Oregon penitentiary and one term in Idaho.

NINE COUPLES ASK WEDDING PERMITS

Nine couples seeking marriage licenses came to the county courthouse yesterday to record the largest number of applications of any day this year and one of the largest days in the history of the county clerk's office in the number of licenses sought. Couples applying were:

Ellis H. Breeden, 38, Dallas, a logger, and Pauline Jobs, 36, Dallas, a teacher.

Theodore R. Anderson, 24, Crawfordsville, a laborer, and Griseida Childers, 21, Crawfordsville, a housekeeper.

Charles A. Harwood, Independence, an engineer, and Nettie Clifton, Aumsville, a nurse.

Lloyd Reilly, 24, 1716 South High street, Salem, a salesman, and Nina Louise Taylor, route four, Salem, a stenographer.

Lloyd D. Girod, 25, 546 Statesman street, Salem, a teacher, and Elsie Ross, 21, 1490 South 13th street, Salem, a teacher.

Milo H. Barker, 23, 215 South Water street, Salem, a laborer, and Mary Heloise Dawson, 20, Eugene, a housekeeper.

Henry G. Kuschnick, 35, Silverton, a logger, and Nora G. Finelde, 22, 1631 South Water street, a housekeeper.

Harvey E. Scheuerman, Monmouth, and Gladys C. Brown, Gervais, a teacher.

Dan K. DeSart, 22, 1260 Center street, Salem, a service station operator, and Ruby E. Green, 18, 1131 Union street, Salem, a housekeeper.

DRAFT RESOLUTION TO RETAIN CAPITOL

A resolution seeking chamber of commerce backing to block "a well-defined movement... aiming the removal of Oregon's state capitol from Salem" will be presented at the meeting of the Salem chamber Monday noon as the outgrowth of the meeting called at the courthouse Saturday noon. A committee consisting of Dr. E. F. Pound, Mrs. A. C. Coe and Fred W. Jobelmann was named to request action on the resolution.

The chamber will be urged to approve a plan of citizens' sending contributions for a capitol fund to the governor and through civic organizations to arouse a state-wide protest "against the proposed removal of Oregon's state capitol to another city."

Talks at the courthouse meeting were made by Jobelmann, Henry Zorn, Ed. Jory and others. The meeting was branded by one speaker, Frank Davey, ex-speaker of the house of representatives as unwise because he knew of no attempt to select another site for the capitol.

listed as missing there with no bodies recovered.

Army authorities rushed large boats to Oxford by special train to aid in rescue work.

A telephone official at Holbrook, about 20 miles down river from McCook said the wall of water, believed to come from a broken dam near Parks—one of two adjacent villages washed off the map Friday with a known loss of eight lives—was nearing that town and would probably sweep into Oxford early Sunday morning.

"If we don't reach the stranded persons tonight, they'll probably be dead tomorrow," Nissen said.

WALNUT GROWERS OPPOSED TO CODE

Seventy-five walnut growers from the Salem territory, gathered at the chamber of commerce yesterday to hear criticisms of the national walnut marketing agreement as presented by Frank Rowell, president of the newly organized Associated Walnut Growers of Oregon.

George Duncan, president of the Hudson-Duncan Grocery company, expressed his opposition to the code, saying he thought its grading standards were too severe and that it subjected the Oregon walnut grower to unfair restriction on production.

A sizable number of the walnut growers signed formal statements saying they opposed, any continuation of the code.

Albert Genthner, secretary of the new organization and counsel for the Hudson-Duncan company, said he was convinced all AAA agreements were unconstitutional in the light of recent court decisions on NRA.

BANK DEBITS SHOW MARKED GAIN HERE

Salem's volume of business, evidenced yesterday in a rapidly mounting total of building permits, showed substantial gains along another line Saturday—its bank clearings for the month of May.

Turnover in the banks ran to $12,431,770, official reports revealed, a gain of $1,562,489 over the $10,869,281 for the same month a year ago.

Bank debits are now running far above any year since 1930 and are more than double the low mark of the depression which was reached here in February, 1933, when the turnover was only $5,704,769.

HUTTON ISSUE TO COME UP MONDAY

A move to speed the hearing of charges against Fire Chief Harry Hutton may be made at Monday night's city council meeting following the report of a special committee of aldermen and citizens last Monday that that group did not have sufficient authority to make the requested investigation. The council's fire department committee had not met last night to consider its next proposal, but Chairman Merrill D. Ohling indicated it might convene Monday.

"The committee still feels that the proper place for an investigation is before the civil service commission and feels Hutton should be glad to have the charges

Has Son Crucify Him Hoping Wife Will Come Back

HIGH POINT, N. C., June 1—(AP)—R. J. Higgs, 38-year-old filling station operator, was found nailed to a cross near here early today and officers, terming him a "religious fanatic," quoted him as saying he had his young son "crucify" him in hope of regaining his estranged wife's affections.

Higgs was found nailed through the flesh between thumbs and index fingers of each hand and through the flesh of his heels to a crude wooden cross which lay by the roadside near his filling station. He was taken to a hospital where attaches said his injuries were painful but not serious.

sizable number of the 4-L men, who didn't strike but were left jobless by the picketing, return to work, it was estimated between 15,000 and 20,000 would be back at their posts Monday and all union higher wages than when the general walkout occurred May 6.

An estimated 40,000 workmen in lumber and allied industries were rendered idle by the strike. Reagents would not say which 4-L mills planned to open Monday. After the strike of the union workers who are part of the American Federation of Labor, the directors of the 4-L—an employer-employee group—raised the 4-L wage scale from five cents an hour in lower brackets to 10 cents at the top.

The first break in the strike impasse at Portland came today when the Southeast Portland Lumber company announced its men would return to work Monday at wage increases corresponding to those their obtained for union workers of the Longview area and in other spots. The increases are five cents an hour in all brackets. The Portland company dealt direct with its workers' own union, which is neither 4-L nor A. F. of L.

Seattle remained the only major spot of the entire strike scene where some break hasn't come, although the Portland break involved only 125 of the some 3000 idle here. However, there were rumors other Portland operators would fall in line Monday.
