Richard F. Flood, jr., past exalted ruler of the Elks' lodges of New Jersey, and Albert Rasmussen, official ambassadors of the national B. P. O. E. organization, were guests of the local lodge last night. The two men are on a 9000-mile tour of the United States and will conclude their journey at the 71st annual convention of the lodge to be held July 15 in Columbus, Ohio.

While in Salem, Mr. Flood and Mr. Rasmussen were in charge of a group of Elks headed by Dr. Armin E. Berger and Dr. Laban A. Steeves. This morning the two men will drive to McMinnville and from there to Portland. Dr. Berger is the newly elected exalted ruler of the Elks' lodge

The ambassadors began their trans-continental trek at Sacramento where they were started by Governor Merriam, May 25. They will be seven weeks en route to their destination.

Tonight they bring to the Elks of Salem a message of Good-Will and a formal invitation from the grand lodge to attend the national convention in Columbus. To those familiar with the world of the theatre and fraternal affairs, the visiting Elks are no strangers. Flood is well known for his activities on behalf of crippled children. "The cars will travel more than 30,000 miles between May 25 and July 15 — circling the nation on a strict schedule and over every type of road and highway. I am highly pleased that 1935 Chevrolets were chosen, because Chevrolet's wellknown reliability, ruggedness, and all-around performance assure the Good Will Ambassadors freedom from delays.
