CROP LOANS FINAL DATE SET JUNE 14

Riches Gives Warning; Feed Crop Tour Shows Gain of Alfalfa Here

Farmers were advised by County Agent Harry L. Riches yesterday that June 14 is the deadline for applying for emergency crop loans. No applications will be accepted after that date, he declared.

During the past week tours of the county were made to study feed crops. Alfalfa, he said, is becoming one of the one dependable hay crops in the county.

Thursday forenoon was spent meeting in alfalfa fields with interested farmers in the West Woodburn community. On one farm alfalfa was seen doing an excellent job of choking out Canada thistles. Where an average stand can be secured among thistles the alfalfa is almost certain death to them, stated E. R. Jackson, of the extension service at Oregon State college, who assisted with the meetings.

It is sometimes difficult, said Jackson, to get a start in a well-established thistle patch. There are two fairly easy ways to do it. One is to grow a cultivated crop such as corn or potatoes on the thistle ground and do some conscientious hoeing. This will weaken the thistles to some extent so that one can plant alfalfa the following year. The second method is to plant oats and vetch quite thickly on the thistle ground, cut the crop for hay in June, dry-plov immediately, disc and work the land down all the balance of the summer, and then plant the alfalfa the following May.

Thursday afternoon was spent in the Woodburn district. Stops were made at the William Licht and Paul Simon places. Simon has a small farm with about 25 per cent of his entire place in alfalfa, where the value of barnyard manure on alfalfa is striking, with a crop prospect of approximately three tons of hay per acre in the first cutting.

Friday forenoon was spent at the E. A. Rhoten farm, six miles southeast of Salem. Rhoten had a good demonstration of the value of buying certified Grimm seed for a large field. Strips in the center were seeded to common alfalfa and the balance of the field to Grimm, about five years ago. For two years there was no difference between the fields. In 1933, however, the common froze out completely, necessitating plowing that portion of the field. The Grimm portions are still excellent and are turning out tons or more of hay each season, and in addition are furnishing a month or more of excellent pasture for the 50 dairy cows on the farm. Rhoten stated: "I can occasionally get just as much hay from vetch as I can from alfalfa but the vetch is uncertain and occasionally will winter-kill." Friday afternoon, interested growers in the East Salem district assembled at the Jim Nichols farm five miles east of Salem on the penitentiary road. Here alfalfa was seen which would be a credit to any irrigation farm in Yamhill, Idaho or eastern Oregon, according to Jackson. Nichols is using his alfalfa for green feed. He cuts and hauls in a load of it to the milk cows every day and states that his cows give more milk through alfalfa than with any other feeding system.

From the Nichols farm the group went to the John Hain farm and the E. E. Hoff farm, both in the East Salem district. At the former place, Cossack alfalfa was preferred to Grimm or common, while at the latter, alfalfa was being used as a pasture crop for sheep.

plant, cultivate and harvest gardens wherever tracts are available. An estimated 25,000 will harvest such gardens throughout the state. The case-load report as of May 1 showed 37,600 families in the state on relief. This represents some 124,000 persons.

Big Oak Limb Topples But Harm Slight

The heavy north limb of the great oak tree at the Mrs. Emma Murphy Brown home, 664 South Commercial street, crashed to the ground across the front steps of the residence at 4:30 o'clock Monday morning, doing negligible damage to the corner of the roof but awakening neighbors in its mighty fall.

The break from the trunk was due largely to weight of this branch, though an examination after the fall showed up some rot. Mrs. Brown, though sorrowful at losing this part of the tree which formed a natural arch over the porch, yesterday expressed thankfulness that the crash came at a time of day when there was no likelihood of injury to any person.

The great oak, known to the Browns throughout the years as The Tree, years ago spread its branches over a camping ground for the Indians, Mrs. Brown recalls from a story told her long ago by Uncle John Minto. She herself recalls that nearly 45 years ago when she would ride her pony into town from the Liberty district she tied her pony to a ring in the trunk of the big tree.

Further reminiscing yesterday, she recalled that her son, Keith, as a lad disdainful the front door and climbed up the now-prone north limb of The Tree and into the second story to enter the house.

There is still much tree, with its great spreading branches left, so Mrs. Brown will have an expert go over the tree and trim it up, leaving this for the enjoyment of those who love trees.

Rural Missions Pictures to Be Exhibited Here

Missionary J. J. Ray will show 100 colored stereoscopic slides at the Christian and Missionary Alliance tabernacle Friday night at 8 o'clock, these to depict the non-sectarian rural mission work of the American Sunday school union in Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

Among the views will be seen a successful Sunday school, meeting in an old pruned drier, a cedar stump home where a family lived for 17 years, and other evidences of work in out of the way places. Missionary Ray will present a gospel message in connection with the showing of the slides.

HAND LABOR GIVEN CALL, ROAD TASKS

Hand labor must be stressed in the use of government funds in Oregon's 1935-1936 road building program according to information received here this week from Thomas H. McDonald, chief of the federal bureau of roads. Materials must not bulk large in the total outlays and machinery operations must be held to a minimum.

McDonald said the federal funds allocated to the state primarily shall be used for the purpose of providing relief for the unemployed. The secondary consideration is to select feasible, economical and needed public works projects.

"The latter must be subordinated to the major objective of providing work relief", McDonald's letter read. Of the total amount of federal money allocated to Oregon $3,038,642 is for street and road construction and $2,334,204 for railroad grade eliminations. McDonald urged that projects be selected necessitating the use of labor largely for first stage construction of projects on the federal aid system and for grading and surfacing with local materials of secondary highways.

He said this would provide for the first stage construction of projects on the federal aid system followed by the completion of the projects with regular federal aid and state match moneys.

RALPH PURVINE IS GRAD IN MEDICINE

Ralph E. Purvine, of this city, was one of the 142 members of the senior class of the Jefferson Medical college to receive the Doctor of Medicine degree June 7 at the 110th annual commencement of the college. Dr. Homer P. Rainey, president of Bucknell university, delivered the valedictory address. Prior to graduation Dr. Purvine received an appointment as resident physician at the Rhode Island hospital, Providence, R. I. He went to the Jefferson Medical college from Willamette university where he received his bachelor of arts degree. The Jefferson Medical college was founded in 1825 by a group of leading Philadelphia physicians. Since that date many of Oregon's leaders in the medical profession have been graduates of Jefferson. At the present time 35 Jefferson graduates are practicing or teaching medicine in Oregon.

Purvine's parents and his sister went east to attend the graduation exercises.

Nurse Loses Out As Court Rules Will Is Invalid

A $45,000 bequest to Jessie G. Northup, nurse of the late Plympton Kelly, was thrown out yesterday by the state supreme court which upheld the decision of Judge George Traxlow of the Multnomah county circuit court. Plaintiffs who sued to break the will alleged that Kelly signed the bequest as the result of coercion and fraud on the part of Mrs. Northup.

Under the will Kelly's brothers received bequests of $10,000 and $8000 while a nephew of Kelly's deceased wife received $28,000. The decision of the supreme court throws out the entire will and gives no funds to Mrs. Northup. Mr. Kelly died in Portland in 1933, at the age of 70, leaving a $90,000 estate.

GAMBLER SOUGHT IN SLAYING CASE

CHICAGO, June 11 - (AP) - Police tonight sought Anthony Madona, 26, a small time gambler, for questioning in the brazen "witness slaying" of Mrs. Celia Vench, 29, red-haired night club singer, in her hotel bed. The killer, accompanied by a companion, compelled Harry Keeney, night clerk at the Berwyn Beach hotel, to accompany him to the woman's room and look on as he fired five shots into the woman's body. When she pleaded "Tony don't shoot any more," the killer fired again.

Police described Madona as a disappointed suitor of Mrs. Vench. They also sought the other man who escaped with the killer. The slain woman was identified at the coroner's inquest by her father, Robert Smart, who told authorities Madona had been bothering her for months. At the coroner's hearing which was adjourned until June 20 to await the result of the police search, Keeney said he attempted to make a disturbance at the young woman's door when the gunman made him lead him there, saying the hotel guest was his wife.

Knight May Lose Status as Solon

There was speculation at the statehouse yesterday over another legislative job holder - William W. Knight of Douglas county. Knight has recently been named deputy district attorney for Douglas county and certain lawyers at the capital indicated this would cause Knight to lose his seat in the lower house. Knight is a democrat and resides at Roseburg.

VINES FIGURES IN FATAL CAR CRASH

CLINTON, Ia., June 11 - (AP) - Ellsworth Vines, Jr., of Pasadena, Cal., professional tennis player, escaped serious injury near here today in an automobile crash which cost the life of a young farm boy.

The Vines automobile, traveling east en route to New York city, collided with a light touring car two and a half miles west of Clinton.

Mrs. Vines, driving the car while her husband slept in the front seat, was cut about the head and taken to a hospital for examination.

Robert Crampton, 14, riding with his father, William Crampton, 45, a farmer living near DeWitt, was fatally injured in the crash. He died in a hospital here three hours after the accident. The father was reported in a serious condition.

MOONSHINING STILL PRACTICED, SHOWN

VANCOUVER, Wash., June 11 - (AP) - Federal agents today confiscated one of the most elaborate stills ever uncovered in this part of the state and arrested Charles D. Manning, 58, Vancouver, for possession and operation of an illegal distillery.

The plant was in an outbuilding on a farm about five miles north of here. It was the most complete and elaborate still officers here have uncovered although not quite as large as one taken near the Pacific highway two years ago.

Three copper stills of 300 gallons capacity each were operated by oil heat. Sixty gallons of the finished product was found in the plant, while the vats were full of mash, officers reported.

Supplies of sugar and grain were on hand. Part of the liquor was held as evidence and the remainder dumped. The stills were ordered destroyed.

ALBERT TO RETIRE AS RURAL CARRIER

John S. Albert, for 34 years rural carrier out of the Salem postoffice, will be retired June 30.

Starting work as a rural carrier away back in 1901 on April 1, he has served on the same route throughout his period of service. During his early days as a rural carrier it was his duty to drive his old "Dobbin" and carriage over his miles of route; now he is equipped with a modern automobile.

Postmaster Henry R. Crawford said yesterday that the postal service will lose a valuable employe in the retirement of Mr. Albert. People on his route have always had splendid service and it is to his credit that he has served on the same route throughout his years of work with the postoffice.

James Albert, better known as "Jim", will continue to live at his home on Mill street. His garden and flower gardens will keep him more than occupied.

Edward Amort, who has carried mail at Shaw, will be transferred to Salem and will take over the route formerly carried by Jim Albert. The change will be instituted July 1.

BARNES PROMOTED TO BERLIN BUREAU

Promotion of Ralph Barnes to the post of correspondent for the New York Herald-Tribune in Berlin was learned here yesterday in a cablegram received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Barnes. For the past five years Mr. Barnes has represented the New York paper at Moscow, Russia.

Mr. Barnes will succeed John Elliott, well-known correspondent for the Herald-Tribune, who is leaving Berlin late in August or early in September. Mr. and Mrs. Barnes, now in Moscow, will remove to Berlin then.

They are looking forward eagerly to the new position because living conditions in Berlin will permit them to have their two small girls here. The children have never lived in Russia because of the difficulty in obtaining proper food.

Ralph, who was raised in Salem, received word of his new appointment directly from Ogden Reid, publisher of the Herald-Tribune.

Strike Problems Eyed by Martin

Governor Charles H. Martin reported yesterday that he was keeping close watch on the strike situation throughout the state and was prepared to dispatch state police to critical points whenever local officers could not keep order. He commented that he believed Sheriff Martin Pratt of Multnomah county would be able to maintain order at Bridal Veil; in event he cannot, the governor said he would move state policemen there.
