As $10,000 a Year Dr. Hunter's salary will be $10,000 a year net, Marks explained, and the Oregon board will continue payments to the Carnegie foundation on a teacher's retirement policy which Dr. Hunter enjoyed at the University of Denver, and which has been maintained by the school authorities there. 'The state board of higher education feels very fortunate in seeuring Dr. Hunter as chancellor of the Oregon system of higher education," Marks said.

"For more than a year it has been seeking a chancellor and after investigating the qualifications of those who it thought might be available, offered the position to Dr. Hunter. The board feels that because of his ability, experience and personality he is exceptionally well qualified to head the Oregon system and meet our especial needs in this state."
