

DEATH OCCURS IN SWIM TANK

Rex Howard, 7, Victim of First Serious Accident at Playground Here

(Continued from page 1) at the 3 o'clock change of guards, and was swimming nearby, dived after the body, which lay on the bottom, seven feet deep, about four feet out from the northwest corner of the tank.

Neither Arnold, who was in charge of the pool, immediately applied artificial respiration methods while the fire department inhalator and a physician were being called for.

The coroner found no one who saw the boy go down, he said.

"No one saw Rex go in the water or any struggling," stated Peter Geiser, lifeguard, who had just gone on watch in the tower at the northeast corner of the tank. "All I knew of it was when the kid touched him on the bottom or jumped in over him."

Miss Arnold was too deeply affected to say much and Harold Haug, Olinger field director, declined to comment, referring inquiries to the playground committee.

Believe He Clung To Trough Rail

It was the opinion of the guards and others about the pool that the boy, unable to swim, had worked his way to the deep end along the trough rail and had either slipped or been knocked in by other children diving off the rim. It was estimated 20 children had been swimming during the afternoon.

Reports the boy's back was broken were contradicted by Dr. Barrick. Dr. Vernon A. Douglas, county health officer, who with Dr. H. A. Gueffroy directed the resuscitation attempt, said the lad's bleeding at the nose, noted when he was pulled out, indicated either injury or that he had been under a long time. Pool guards asserted he could not have been submerged more than a minute and a half.

The coroner said it was unlikely further investigation would be made. As a member of the playground committee, he said:

"I certainly regret this but it seems to have been one of those occasional unavoidable accidents. I don't feel censure should be brought on the pool staff, which is larger than last year and well-trained."

Playground Board Members Investigate

Mrs. David Wright, E. A. Bradford and Frank E. Neer, members of the school board and playground committee, went to the pool to investigate upon being notified of the accident.

Mrs. Wright later announced the tank would be reopened today if it could be filled in time. The draining pumps were turned on as soon as the coroner completed his investigation.

Turns at trying artificial respiration on the boy were taken by William Bechtel and Paul Phillips, firemen; Dorothy Holmes, health department nurse; Miss Arnold, Geiser and Clark.

Rex Howard attended Grant grade school last winter. He is survived by his parents, a brother, Richard, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Reinech, all of Salem. Funeral arrangements are in charge of the Clough-Barrick company.

Honor to G. A. R. Is Suggested By Governor Martin

Citizens of Oregon are asked to join in tribute to veterans of '61 in a statement issued yesterday by Governor Martin. The farewell encampment to the Grand Army of the Republic is to start today in Portland and to continue to June 21.

GOVERNOR SALARY LIMIT IS ARGUED

(Continued from page 1) lation against a larger payment. He cited numerous cases where the framers of the constitution in Oregon had definitely prevented the legislature from taking certain actions by stating clearly that the law-making body should "not" take such action.

Moody cited numerous instances in the constitution where the legislature had been checked and the absence of any specific negation against a payment larger than $1500 was a reason sufficient to construe that sum as the original, not the permanent, basis for the governor's salary.

Moody cited the fact that the first session of the legislature after the state entered the union, provided additional compensation for the governor. He went at length into the history of the constitutional convention in Oregon, citing the files of The Statesman on that subject, to show that all attempts to make the $1500 salary section a maximum amount to be paid the governor, had failed.

The attorney for the state said at the outset that he did not think Mr. Jory could maintain his case in court because he could not prove special damages. Moody contending that the only proper way for the case to be brought was through a district attorney or the attorney general's office as an ex rel proceeding.

FILTERS NEEDED AT SWIM POOLS, CLAIM

(Continued from page 1) he had suggested to the board that money be appropriated for this purpose, to help avert future tragedies. To do so, the board would have to cut seriously into the proposed $10,350 appropriation for repairs to buildings and grounds, in the 1935-36 budget. This would necessitate sharp curtailment of all variable budget items, he said.

Olinger pool, supplied with water from North Mill creek, presents the gravest need for filtration but the water in Leslie pool, from city mains, also soon becomes clouded with use. Property filtered the water in both tanks would require less chlorination.

Installation of Lock System at Jail is Started

Preliminary work on installing a new lock system at the county jail is under way and completion of the project is expected within another month, county court officials said yesterday. The new locking system will permit all prisoners in the jail, in case of fire, to be freed within one minute. A new entrance door is to be installed. At the present time each cell is individually locked and a severe fire would make evacuation of the jail difficult.

The court reported that progress on its road machinery shops north of Salem is quite satisfactory. A shortage of skilled craftsmen on SERA rolls has held up the work considerably.

GLOOM LIFTING FROM SAWMILL

Shingle Mills Resume and Negotiations Reported Closing at Others

Muir proposed a plan for full recognition of the union in collective bargaining, 50 cents an hour minimum wage, and a maximum week of 40 hours. One faction of the sawmill and timber union has refused to recognize the plan. The original demands of the lumber strikers called for 75 cents an hour and a 30-hour week.

Most of the mills now operating are paying the 50-cent minimum. Members of the 4-L group, comprising a considerable portion of northwest mills, recently approved a blanket wage raise approximating 10 per cent, bringing the 4-L minimum to 50 cents.

Whether the call for men publishing by nine operators in Portland meant that employers will attempt to break the strike prior to completion of union negotiations has not been known. Employers have been heartened, however, with the recently-voiced decision of Governor Charles Martin to throw "all the resources of the state" into an effort to halt "jeering mobs and intimidations of workers" and by Circuit Judge James W. Crawford's denial yesterday of the union's appeal for an injunction prohibiting officers from interfering with picketing.

The nine Portland firms formally invited men to work in an advertisement which read: "Former employees will be given preference and they may apply in person, by telephone or letter." Picketing of several mills in northern Oregon was resumed today under permission of Sheriff Martin T. Pratt of Multnomah county despite Judge Crawford's denial of the injunction and his ruling that the sheriff had acted with discretion in arresting 237 pickets last week. The union promised the sheriff every effort to maintain order and also asked the sheriff to do all in his power to determine who took part in the Bridal Veil beat-up last week and to arrest guilty parties.

LOGANBERRY CODE STRONGLY BACKED

During preliminary negotiations looking to a loganberry code, canners withdrew from the code picture when they could not see with the growers on certain phases.

No talk of price was heard at the general discussion yesterday, though following the gathering, some growers said they hoped the control board would not consider going below a three-cent minimum. From 1 1/2 cents to 2 1/2 cents per pound was paid loganberry growers last year.

Organization of the control board will be completed at the meeting Friday, to which the code attorney, William Linfoot, was yesterday instructed to send a letter to each canner advising of time and place of the meeting.

Hop Marketing Group Launched As Corporation

Articles of incorporation of the Pacific Hop Growers, which, under the present set-up will represent better than 20,000 bales of hops, were filed yesterday, with A. M. Jorman and Homer Gouley, Salem, and Ray Glatt, Woodburn, as incorporators.

"The organization was organized for the orderly marketing of hops direct from grower to brewer, and in selecting grower members for the organization extreme care was taken to include only the better growers," says a statement issued by the incorporators through their attorney.

Belt Theft Case Coming Up Today In Local Court

Preliminary hearing will be held in justice court here this morning at 10 o'clock for three men, George L. Miller, Harold Hedland and George Deyoode, for larceny of a power belt valued at about $45. The trio, arrested in Portland Monday night, arrived here yesterday in custody of county officers.

The belt is the property of W. C. Hill of Rickreall, who is said to have identified it in a second hand store in Portland where it was allegedly sold for $7. The three men are in the county jail in lieu of $250 bail each.

BANKERS ASK MORE STUDY, LEGISLATION

At a session of the American Bankers' association presided over by C. C. Colt, Portland, these officers were elected: Member executive committee for three years, Frederick Greenwood; state vice-president, D. W. Eyre, Salem; member nomination committee, Greenwood, alternate, Colt; state vice-president, Dean Vincent of Portland, savings division; J. A. Gordon, Klamath Falls, national bank division; G. W. Utzinger, Astoria, state bank division; Lorne L. Miller, Portland, trust division.

Hotel Gearhart extended an invitation for the bankers to hold their 1935 convention there.

Among the papers presented during the morning session was a study of postal savings and effect of them upon banks, which study, led O. A. Houglum of Eugene, who gave the paper, to declare: "It is my opinion the postal bank system has served its purpose and should no longer be continued as a tax free and subsidized competitor of legitimately organized banks."

Houglum showed postal savings reaching only $200,000 the first 19 years of the system, but that at the close of 1931, the sum had increased three-fold; and by end of 1934 had grown to $1,200,000, netting a profit of four millions of dollars in 1934. Other papers were presented yesterday by G. W. Utzinger, Astoria; Ben H. Hansen, Portland; Ben R. Chendler, Marshfield; Hugh McCall, Haines; H. N. Stronck of San Francisco, whose paper was read by W. Taplin, and A. A. Schramm.

Schramm, state superintendent of banks, declared banks have eliminated unnecessary frills as result of the past few years and emphasized the development of all possible sources of income from services rendered. Banks, he said, should not hesitate to make a legitimate charge for services given. The average salary paid today in small banks of the state is back to the 1916-1917 level, he declared.

LAD BELIEVED KEPT IN SUBMERGED PIT

Hoover said that the Spirit Lake and Tacoma kidnap pits were similar to the one in which six-year-old June Robles was held captive by kidnapers near Tucson, Ariz., in April, 1934. Hoover followed his statement that Mahan dug the Spirit Lake pit in June of that year by his speculation that "Mahan may have read about the Robles pit."

Spokane authorities recalled today that it has repeatedly been rumored that the government believes the Weyerhaeuser case was planned for three years. W. E. Burnett, former chief deputy sheriff at Spokane, said that George lived with his parents at Lewiston, Idaho, 140 miles south of the Spirit Lake pit until two years ago when the family moved to Tacoma.

FOUR DECREES OF DIVORCE GRANTED

Without the appearance of any of the defendants, Judge L. G. Lewelling yesterday granted four divorce decrees in circuit court here.

Faullie Martin, who married John E. Martin in 1931 in Albany, obtained her freedom and the custody of their one child.

The court granted a divorce to Olive F. Tuepker from Flossie Tuepker, property settlement having been made out of court.

The custody of their minor child, aged $70 a month for its support was awarded by the court to Essie York from William York.

Three Licenses To Wed Sought At Courthouse

Rail Relocation Plan Is Studied As Relief Task

EUGENE, Ore., June 18.—(AP)—A grade crossing and rail relocation project is being worked out by the city planning committee for submission to the Lane county planning committee.

It is proposed that the Southern Pacific railway tracks of the eastern part of Eugene be moved to the Willamette river bank, eliminating all crossings in that section of the city, and that ultimately a trunk highway be built parallel to the tracks.

The plan would be carried out under the work relief bill.

COMPENSATION LAW PRAISED BY GRIGGS

Compulsory workmen's compensation insurance would be a benefit to all employers in reducing rates, Victor J. Griggs, attorney for the state industrial accident commission, told the Salem Kiwanis club Tuesday noon. While there are now 6990 firms in Oregon contributing to the accident commission fund, many businesses make no contribution although they are subject to liability.

Griggs said the industrial accident law in Oregon, while not perfect, is one of the best in the nation and that the administration of the act had been such that a very efficient insurance business was being conducted by the state.

Gross income to the commission this year is running far ahead of 1934 and indicates reviving business conditions, Griggs averred. He predicted the income for the year would run to $3,000,000 compared to $2,500,000 last year. The club adopted resolutions of condolence for the late Howard Hulse, former member and president of the club.

SLIGHT INCREASES IN RATES FAVORED

Slight increases in the existing intrastate grain rates and cancellation of an order which has been in operation since April 1, 1931, will be authorized by F. C. McColloch, state utility commissioner, late this week. The order is now being prepared, and will become effective July 1. General reductions in interstate levels will follow and the Oregon charges will conform to the interstate commerce commission schedule.

The new rates will be the maximum the railroads may levy but they will have authority to establish lower rates to meet competition.

"As a whole," McColloch said, "the new rates will be in the public interest and will eliminate much confusion, misunderstanding and litigation which has resulted from different levels of intrastate and interstate applications."

Rates on coarse grains, such as oats, barley, rye and corn, and grain products, such as flour and millfeed, will be on a common level. There will be no additional charge for stopping in transit for the purpose of manufacturing, cleaning, blending and storage.

Electric Rates Data Due Soon

Information regarding the rates for electric power to be supplied by the Bonneville project will be received here soon from the war department, Governor Martin was advised yesterday. Major General E.
