FIND WARRANTS COVER SHORTAGE

time the governmental units which issued them reported that they had been called for payment and not turned in.

"I believe these warrants were misplaced where we were making a change in personnel here last summer," said Sheriff Burk late yesterday. "Naturally I am pleased to have the matter cleared up. Our department has known for nearly a year that there was a discrepancy between the amount of taxes received for and the turnover to the treasurer's office. However it did not show in cash records since our bank records and the cash turned in balanced. I do not know how these warrants were misplaced. I think one of the deputies, not here now, carelessly placed them in the cubbyhole in the vault at closing time one business day. When we opened up the next morning and deposited our cash in the bank, the warrants were overlooked."

The discrepancy in the sheriff's books first was brought to the attention of the county court this spring when J. E. Rowland and L. S. Covert were conducting the annual audit of all county offices for the county court. They reported a discrepancy of $3044 in the sheriff's books between the cash and warrants received for and amount of moneys turned over to the treasurer.

The county court promptly informed District Attorney Trindle of the shortage and at his suggestion the state auditing department was called in to check the records of the tax collection office. The 1935 legislature passed an act authorizing counties to employ the services of the state auditing department when they were desired. The checkup here was the first inaugurated by the state at the request of a county.

Chesterfields "go to town"

They Satisfy

—that's just the 1935 way of saying what Chesterfields have been saying for years...

Chesterfields do about everything a cigarette ought to do.

Chesterfields have TASTE—yes plenty of it. But not too strong.

And Chesterfields are MILD—but they're not insipid or flat.
