

TO STUDY WILD LIFE IN STATE

Oregon is Chosen for One of Eight Regional Centers

Conservation of what is said to be Oregon's third greatest resource—wild life—is to be furthered through establishment at Oregon State college of one of eight regional wild life research and educational centers through a cooperative arrangement between the U. S. biological survey, the state game commission and the college.

This is to be much more than a state project, it is pointed out, but Oregon is selected as the only federal-state center of this kind on the Pacific coast because of the unusual abundance and diversity of wild life resources in this state and because of the educational opportunities available at OSC.

In connection with the research work, which will be supported largely by the cooperating federal and state agencies in headquarters and with facilities supplied by the college, the state board of higher education has just approved a degree curricula in fish, game and fur animal management under the school of agriculture.

Such educational arrangements were desired by the federal government as a necessary part of the conservation center, where students can be trained for state and federal service, or for positions as game managers of estates or clubs, land using industries or private ventures in fur or game farming.

In no other state are conditions so ideal for research with such a wide range of wild life on such a large scale, it is pointed out. The largest herd of wild antelope and the second largest herds of elk are in this state, and now the largest wild bird refuge in the United States is established at Malheur lake.

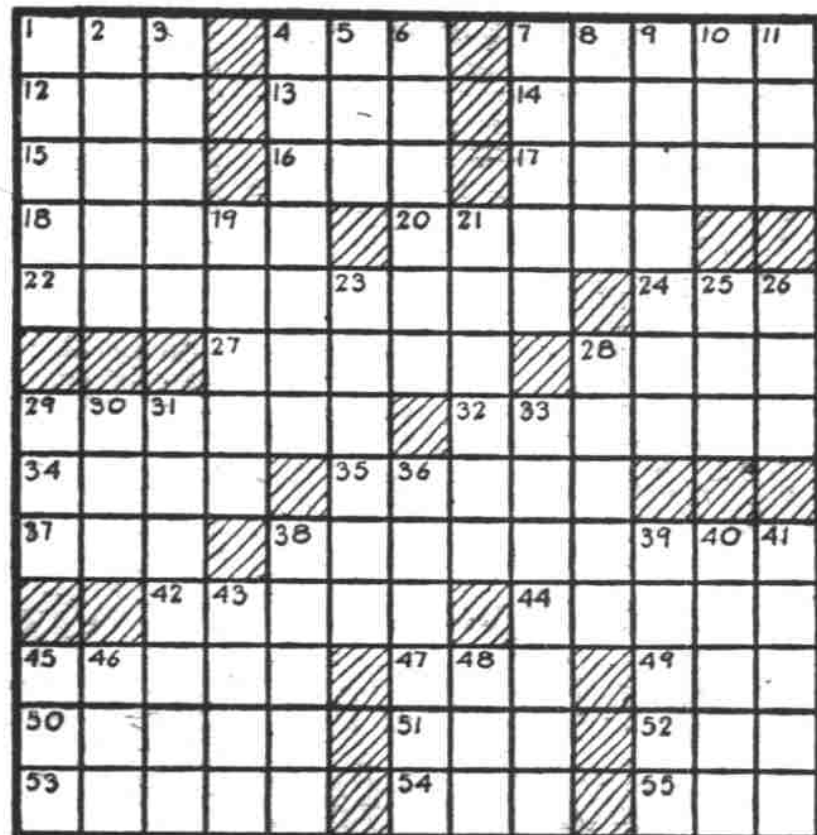

At the same time, it is shown, training facilities are broader at Oregon State college than elsewhere for this purpose because of availability of existing work in the school of science and in the veterinary medicine and other departments in the school of agriculture.

Those acquainted with possibilities in this field look forward to the time when wild life will not only be a state and national asset on public lands, but will also afford a profitable side enterprise for farmers. The whole program is to be developed with due regard to the present livestock and general agricultural industries.

JUDD IMPROVED

LIBERTY, Aug. 7. — Friends of Perry G. Judd will be glad to hear that his condition is somewhat improved. He has been very seriously ill since his operation over a week ago at the Deaconess hospital.

HOLT AND RAMSDELL CLANSMEN REUNITED

76 at Picnic Here; Recall Clan Forbears' Trip by Ox Team, 1864

Seventy-six members of the Holt-Ramsdell clan met in annual reunion at the state fairground park in Salem Sunday. The day was spent in visiting and renewing acquaintances. Mrs. Fanny Holt Butler of Portland is president of the clan and S. B. Holt of Salem is secretary.

Included in a train of emigrants who crossed the plains by ox-team in 1846 were twin girls, Lione and Lorilla Caldwell, who afterward married two pioneers, Thomas Holt and Thomas Ramsdell.

Six Survive
Twelve children were reared in each of these families. Those surviving are Mrs. Fanny Holt Butler of Portland, Mr. Mary Holt Nicolson of Salem, Charles Holt of Chewelah, Wash., Fred Holt of Dayton, J. A. Ramsdell of Yamhill, and Mrs. Anna Ramsdell Anderson of Portland.

Present at the reunion were: Mrs. T. J. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fullerton and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Holt, Archie Holt and daughter Pat, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Knight, Mr. and Mrs. L. V. King and daughter Joyce, Richard Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Winn and daughters Dorothy and Lillian, Mrs. Anna Anderson, and Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Butler, all of Portland.

Nicolson Attend
Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Nicolson, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Nicolson and daughter Dorothy and son Dale, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Croxdale, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Young, Hannah Bowley, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Holt and son Melvin, all of Salem; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ramsdell and sons Manley and Delmer of Woodburn; Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Jewell and daughter Maude, and Charles Nicolson, of Mill City; Fred Holt and son, Fred, Jr., of Dayton; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ramsdell of Yamhill.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Holt, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Sommer and son Noel, and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Sommer, of Selco; Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Porter and son David, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Schoenberg and son Kenneth and daughter May Margaret of Albany; Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Ramsdell of Newport; Claude Ramsdell and daughters, Mae, Avis, Velda, and Arlene and sons Merrell and Calvin, Leveta Groesser, and Mrs. O. C. Ramsdell of Dallas; Lawrence Henderson of Rufus, and Wallace Mekkers of Minerville.

The clan will meet at the same place next year on the first Sunday in August.

Donks Play Favorites and Hoggs Win, Scribe Opines; Cherrians to Ride Tonight

With several hundred fans forming a semicircle around the infield, almost like the famous day when Casey went to bat, and trained donkeys providing the show, Hogg Brothers softball team last night outdrew an improvised Kay Mill nine, including the mounts around the bases five times, while the frantic Millers could only tease the donks across the home plate for three consecutive.

The traveling troupe, each long-eared, bob-tailed one of them, christened by a celebrity whose name he bears, bucked, stalled, and strutted to the merriment of the fans. Hitter after hitter clipped the ball for easy safeties only to be dumped unceremoniously onto the dusty infield by the capering donkeys and thus was automatically out. Jack Dempsey, a sturdy little sorrel, with a kick in his powerful heels as potent as champion Jack's left punch in the Firpo fight, engineered a dozen of the spills single-handed. Bambino, Mae West, Clara Bow, and Tumbledown also kept their heels in evidence and their would-be riders in the air.

Steeds Enjoy "Hay"
During the late innings the game was held up when Princess Perversity, Sambo, and Coberta, a trio of youngsters, shamelessly wandered away from their tethering posts to enjoy a bit of supper from center fielder, Greta Garbo, and third baseman, Ginger Rogers. Snoodle Durante, Pepper Martin, Eddie Cantor, and Dizzy Dean rounded out the "horsey" infield. During crucial moments of the game Pepper Martin refused to abandon tender shoots of grass around the keystone sack to field ground balls. Dizzy Dean, a self-centered little ball player, objected to leave third base during a Kay rally so engaging was he company of Miss Rogers who populated that section of the diamond.

Donks Partial, Hoggs
The clubs opened with two runs apiece in the initial inning, but thereafter the donks showed a decided partiality for the Hogg men. The Brothers jogged around the bridge paths again in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings. Kays countered their odd tally in the fifth when Perill, astride of Tumbledown, was dragged into the ground where runs are scored. Salstrom paired with Mae West crossed the Millers up with a homer in the fourth crossing the plate at a gallop.

The well groomed little steeds play host to the Cherrians and a squad of all-stars in a game tonight at 6:30 o'clock on the Olinger ball field.

17-YEAR-OLD STIRS OHIO GOLF CROWDS

WESTWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, Cleveland, Aug. 7. —(AP)—Miss Eva Shorb of Massillon, Ohio, petite 17-year-old high school girl, furnished the fireworks today in the second round of the women's western golf tournament.

The pretty Buckeye blonde set this water soaked course afire with a par 79, equalling the competitive record to defeat Ellamae Williams, 17-year-old Chicago girl, 5 and 4.

Results of today's matches included:

Miss Marion McDougall, San Francisco, defeated Miss Marion McDougall, Portland, 4 and 3.

In the quarter-finals tomorrow, Miss Peggy Wattles, Buffalo, N. Y., plays Miss Marion Miller, Lexington, Ky.; Miss Elizabeth Abbott, Los Angeles, plays Miss Margaret Russell, Detroit; Miss Eva Shorb, Massillon, Ohio, plays Miss Marion Leachman, San Francisco, and Mrs. P. T. Atwood, Chicago, plays Miss Barbara Thompson, Los Altos, Calif.
