SIPS' STRATEGY WINS

His Team Stays Away, Substitutes Are Good WALT THOMPSON SHOT

Strategy-to wit, the absent treatment—on the part of "Sips" and too much John McGrawism on the part of Mayor Varney Kuhn, manager of Kuhn's Kave-men, enabled the columnist's team to defeat His Honor's bunch 2 to 1 in a donkey ball game on Olinger field.

Crafty Sips figured if none of his selected sluggers showed up, the donkey ball to management would recruit a group of young players who probably would win. So he told them all to stay away—and they did, with the exception of Fred Williams and Tom Holman, who formed the battery. Joe Adolph lived up to family tradition and played first base, but he was originally on the other team.

On the other hand, Kuhn's previously announced lineup was almost intact—that is, before the game started. Some of them didn't feel that way after being tossed by the burros.

It was a tight ball game, with Frank Winslow's groaning donkey crossing the plate in the second inning for the Kave-men, only to lose the tally because Andy Berk's mount dashed off over the field and never reached first base, thus making the third out. The Kave-men turned in a double play in the first inning and nipped Ken Brandon at the plate.

Boedighelmer scored for the Sluggers in the second, and Entrikon got all the way around in the third for the Kave-men, tying the score.

In this tense situation the game entered the fourth inning. Walt Thompson was twirling next ball for the Kave-men, but Tom Holman hit a hot grounder through the box that McGraw Kuhn thought he should have fielded. Kuhn headed for the mound, six-shooter blazing. Thompson, with surprising agility for one of his left, headed for right field. Kuhn after him. Finally His Honor shot the luckless pitcher down; the ambulance screaming to the spot and Walt was carted away to the hospital.

In the excitement, Holman circled the bases to break the tie. The remorseful Kave-men accompanied Thompson to the hospital so the game was over.

Bevens Joins Solon Squad; Elks Coming

An addition to the hurling staff of the Salem Senators that may put them back up in the higher regions was made yesterday when Manager Leo Edwards announced the signing of Bill Bevens, sensational Hubbard youngster.

Bevens, who helped Hubbard high school roll up a remarkable record this season, will start against the Bend Elks when the cellarite team comes here Sunday for a State league clash with the Senators. Bevens, who always kept his "down" in the low figures, pitched a no-hit game for Hubbard this season. He is a right hander.

Manager Edwards has been disatisfied with the performance of Beck and Wilson during the last three weeks and an addition to the staff is welcome.

Woodburn to Play Stayton League Final

STAYTON, Aug. 9.—The Mid-Willamette Valley Baseball association league title, clouded through squabbles and misunderstandings near the end of the season, seems in a way to become settled officially to the satisfaction of all concerned. A playoff game is scheduled for the Stayton diamond Sunday afternoon, August 11, commencing at 2:30 o'clock, between the Woodburn team and the Paris Woolen Mills boys of Stayton.

Turner, as high point team, cut short the playing season with a game of the regular schedule yet to be played with Stayton, and played an unofficial playoff with Woodburn. This playoff resulted in Woodburn taking both games.

In order to settle the squabble and officially end the league season, officials of the Mid-Willamette Valley league and managers of the Stayton and Woodburn ball teams have arranged a one-game playoff for the trophy. The Paris Woolen Mills boys are planning a gala end to the ball season, having arranged for a loud speaker system to broadcast the game play by play, with music interspersed, and the official presentation of the league trophy to the winning team. The trophy is here on display in a local show window.

Still Near Top
The Senators, topped by Albany last Sunday, are still only a game and a half behind the league leaders with six weeks left in the season. Edwards hopes that Bend may provide the start for another Salem winning streak that will put the Senators on top of the pile again.

The Elks, although pounding out 13 base hits, were dropped 9 to 8 by Eugene last Sunday. Brahmmer will probably be in the mound for the central Oregon team.

Feels Warm But Top Is Only 92

Although many Salem residents "felt the heat" yesterday, the maximum temperature did not approach the hot spell in mid-July. The highest that the thermometer at the airport weather bureau climbed yesterday was 92 while a minimum of 48 was registered. Clear skies are predicted for today with moderate northwest winds.
