Uncle Sam Pays—The United States government yesterday paid the city $1, the nominal rental fee for the beacon at the Salem airport.

Executor Wins Tacit Reversal Of His Removal

The appeal of J. G. Wurster from an order of the probate court removing him as executor of the estate of William Schwader, was in effect upheld, and the case remanded to the lower court by Circuit Judge Lewelling Monday. Attorneys for Wurster asked that the case go to trial Monday afternoon. They said the removal had been based on failure to file semi-annual accounts, whereas these had been filed regularly except recently when most of the property in the estate had been disposed of and there was no need for further periodical accountings. The attorney for the heirs had moved for remanding of the case to the probate court but the judge did so not on the motion, but on the ground that the petition for removal of the executor was insufficient and that the matter had not been handled in the lower court under a correct statutory interpretation.

COUNCIL EXPLAINS REFUNDING ISSUES

Action at Silverton Will Avert Higher Cost to Taxpayers, Claim

SILVERTON, Aug. 19.—That resentment is being expressed by those who have paid up their street assessments against the city because of its new refunding issue which cancels back interest up to May 1, 1935, on unpaid assessments, is wholly due to misunderstanding, according to city officials.

The bond issue, which was passed at a recent meeting of the council, simply enables those who have taken advantage of its refunding privileges to keep their homes and saves the city from being forced to take over a lot of property. Should the city have to take over this property, the city would not only lose future taxes but would have to pay back taxes. This would raise the taxes of the property owners, officials explain, as no city has a fund to carry property, and the cost of this can come only through taxes.

Avoid Greater Burden
People who have paid their assessments feel, according to reports about town, that the bonding issue puts the burden of others' assessments on them. This is partly true, officials admit, but had the bonding issue not carried, those who had paid would not only have the burden of back interest, but of taxes as well. The city council chose, members feel, the lesser of two evils.

The city already has more property on its hands, Mayor Garver explains, than it can dispose of. Would any of these people who feel the city should take more property, he asks, be willing to buy this property should the city take it?

The new bond issue, which releases back interest up to May 1 of the present year but puts on 8 per cent interest again, was passed according to an act of legislation and is entirely within the Oregon law.

COLLECTION FORMS ARE RULED ILLEGAL

Use of printed forms, for the collection of accounts and bearing the signature "The Merchants Law and Detective Service," is a violation of law, Attorney General Van Winkle ruled Monday. Books of these form letters are being sold to merchants at $5 each.

The opinion was requested by Hugh Earle, state insurance commissioner, who said the name, "Merchants Law and Detective Service" was fictitious.

In another opinion Van Winkle held that it was not necessary for Portland school district No. 1 or Oregon state college, which maintain departments for plumbing work, to obtain a master plumbers' license.

Van Winkle said it was sufficient for the plumbers employed by the school district and college to have certificates of competency as journeymen plumbers.

The Northwest Buyers convention at Seattle last week, which included a style show with 12 models, a luncheon and a banquet at the Olympic hotel for visiting buyers, and 59 interesting booths, was attended by the following people from Salem: Mrs. Marshall of the Style Shop, Mrs. Barrett and Mrs. Ewing of the Miller Mercantile company, Esther Hagedorn of the Smart Form Corset shop, Mrs. Butler of the Fashionette, Mrs. Gilmore of Milady's Shop, Mrs. Pitts of the Loraine shop and Mr. and Mrs. Worth of the Worth Department store.

Fred Thiesler returned Thursday to the old home valley. For the past two years he has been in eastern Oregon, under commission from the state industrial accident bureau. The fortunes pertaining to political office are ever fickle. He has been replaced by another man.

Bob Biles is working at Western States grocery.

Edward J. Margret, of San Francisco, involved with Dr. Townsend in an airplane accident at Pittsburg, Calif., Sunday is a former employer of Frank Chapman of the Imperial Furniture company.

No Names Mentioned
A man in the street tells me that when the newspapers are folded up neatly and the ash trays empty on Sunday you may safely bet there is a little nagger in the home. No remarks.

John Moritz of the postoffice rural delivery force, with the wife and daughter, left Saturday for a 19-day visit in northern Idaho. The return trip is planned to cover several points in Alberta and British Columbia.

Mrs. E. L. Brunk and the children are visiting in eastern Oregon.

Earle Potter is spending the week in Seattle.

Go. Miller, Portland, head of the Miller Mercantile company, was a visitor in Salem Saturday. Accompanied by Mrs. Miller and a daughter, he was on his way to Eugene to visit at the home of another daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Lieuallen have been spending their vacation with friends in Washington.

May Rebuild
A rumor—probably true: The building on Liberty street, now occupied by the Shipley store, is to be entirely torn down and rebuilt before Montgomery Ward & Co. move in.

Lester Newman and family returned Sunday from their summer outing on the upper Santiam.

W. J. Entress, engineer at the local power plant of the Portland General Electric company, has a bought a ranch of 150 acres, eight miles south of Salem. A shrewd eye to the future. The family will for the present continue to live in town.

JERSEY CLUB HAS ENJOYABLE PICNIC

150 Attend; Several Talks Heard on Questions of Interest to Group

Beside the cool waters of the mill stream at the L. D. Roberts place two miles east of Turner, the Oregon Jersey club held its annual picnic Sunday.

The picnic called for no speeches but there were so many authorities present on the subject of dairying that President L. H. McKee was forced to call on several of them for informal talks.

Leo Spitzbart of the Oregon fair board aroused the enthusiasm of the crowd by announcing that the county herd would be restored at the fair this fall. Premiums will be given again, he said. For the past two years the board has not sponsored the herd, but the growing demand among the dairymen to restore the herd has prompted the board to act.

J. D. Mickle of the foods and dairy division emphasized the need of more voluntary cooperation on the part of the producers. E. G. Hughes, manager of the Associated Dairies explained the work on the cow testing association.

Tells of Jersey Isle
Robert Burkhardt of Albany painted a word picture of the beauties of Jersey Island, England. He told of the parish shows, the famous judges, and the final show given each year on the island in the English channel.

The girls' quartet, Helen and Helena Witzel, Jessie Myers and Ruth Rawlings, furnished the song for the day, and Alice Roberts gave a reading, "Moo Cow Moo."

The members of the club were pleased to hear that Mrs. F. C. Kuensing, Marion county secretary, will conduct the Jersey booth at the state fair this year.

The attendance was estimated to have been more than 150. Much credit for the success of the picnic was given to J. R. Davis, president of the Marion county club. It was believed that the large attendance so late in the season was due to his able management.

NEWCOMER BUYS
SILVERTON, Aug. 19 — The Z. Nerness property on Steelhammer road was sold Monday to Mrs. Josie C. Johnson, recently of Polson, Montana. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson recently arrived at Silverton and will move to their newly acquired home at once.

when he went to school back in Missouri there was a boy in the school whose name was Will Rogers. It may have been THE WILL ROGERS. Will once stated that he attended two colleges, both in Missouri. One of these was at Boonville. The other may have been the school at Neosho attended by Mr. Seagrave.

Scouts Climb Mt. Hood in Spite of Storm, as Only Party Gaining Top Sunday

Fourteen of the older fellows of Boy Scout troops 12 and 8, which are sponsored by Jason Lee Methodist church, returned late Sunday evening from a weekend outing to Mt. Hood.

The group left Salem Saturday afternoon and drove to Timber Line camp. The weather here was cloudy and cold and climbing conditions were reported unfavorable. No one had made the ascent from the south side since the previous weekend when the climbing conditions were ideal. The boys cooked supper over open fires and spread their beds out in the open, in a dreching rain, for the night. By morning the rain had subsided, but the sky was overcast with heavy clouds and a biting wind was blowing. The ascent of the mountain appeared impossible, as numerous parties who had started early in the morning told of freezing sleet on the snow fields and a cold wind blowing down the slopes.

As the scouts did not wish to return home without having seen the mountain or even snow, they started their climb to clear some, what and the group pushed on. As they neared Crater Rock the strong sulphur fumes made several of the boys sick. A short rest was taken at the shelter camp and as the top was plainly visible, it was decided to go the whole way.

Ascent Is Steep
From Crater Rock the distance to the top is only little more than half a mile but in that distance one climbs over 1600 feet, most of the way hanging on to a rope. The crossing of two crevasses, one about six feet wide at the top made this part of the trip interesting as well as somewhat dangerous. At the top everyone signed his name in the registration book and viewed the scenery. Mt. Jefferson, Mt. Adams, and Mt. St. Helens were visible. Some of the wheat fields of eastern Oregon were also visible. The lookout house on top was covered with nearly five inches of ice. After a rest the party started down, sliding on the snow fields, making the descent in two hours and ten minutes. The climb up was made in seven hours.

This group was the only one of nearly fifty people who had started out at various times during the
