History Traced—While some form of insurance against the risks of life and business has existed since 3000, B. C., it is only in comparatively recent years that insurance has reached its present highly specialized form, according to Tom Morrow, claim supervisor of the Northern Life Insurance company of Seattle. Morrow spoke to the Salem Kiwanis club yesterday noon. Fraud in insurance companies, which rocked many of the larger companies a few decades ago, was nothing new historically, Morrow said, for insurance was abolished in the days of Julius Caesar since its promoters converted assets to their own use.

PUMPING STATION TO GET NEW ROOF

Van Patten Seeks to Avoid Damage to Equipment; Other Changes Eyed

Manager Cuyler Van Patten will not run the risk of rain damaging water department equipment in the main pumping station he indicated yesterday in setting a crew of men at the task of reroofing the structure. The private water company, which allowed the roof to deteriorate to the point where daylight showed through numerous cracks, had stretched tarpaulins over important equipment such as the high voltage switch boards. A few drops of water reaching these switches and cables could have caused a veritable explosion that might have resulted in serious consequences, Van Patten said recently.

Among other changes, Van Patten also is looking for a buyer for the 120 horsepower steam engine used many years ago to drive one of the big pumps, and its two boilers. None of these pieces of equipment has been used for several years. Van Patten hopes to sell them for at least enough to pay the moving charges and make storage room for equipment and space for the meter testing department.

The city council Monday night gave the water commission special permission to build a corrugated iron garage at the rear of the water office to house the department's four trucks and one sedan, which now are kept at night in rented garage space. The new garage would save $25 a month rental charges.

Details on the new schedule will be received before October 1, when the plan will be initiated. The 40-hour week will necessitate the employment of extra help, it is believed.

Walter Smith Named—Walter M. Smith has been named by Alderman Fred A. Williams to serve on the city budget committee in the place of his previous appointee, Ben Pade. Williams told the council Monday night Pade would be too busy with his softball team this week to do the budget work.

Seen by the Sage

By D. H. TALMADGE

Prof. E. W. Hobson departed Thursday for Cincinnati, O., for a visit with Emery who is studying piano at the Cincinnati conservatory, where last year he was awarded a scholarship for the excellence of his work and was accorded the same honor this year. Also he has been chosen as one of the solo artists for the D. H. Talmadge coming concert of the Cincinnati symphony orchestra, a real distinction. Prof. Hobson motored east with a party of friends who have been visiting here.

Salem motorists are scattered pretty much all over the Pacific northwest and points east. A stroll through the business section between 2 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon leads one to suspect that folks from all parts of the Pacific northwest have Salem on their lists as a place to visit. And cars from the far east and southeast and middle west are frequently seen.

The newly-constructed skyline road from Detroit to Breitenbush hot springs, Breitenbush lake and Olallie lake is somewhat rough as yet, but is fairly good for motoring, and the scenic features are said to be grand. Mr. and Mrs. J. McNeil, Mrs. Jennie Shelton and Russell Winchomb made the trip Sunday.

Mary Brennan is at the seashore, Resting. When she returns she will open a beauty shop in the Oregon building.

Solomon is Mother
A blue cat named Solomon belonging to a North Salem family has surprised the neighborhood this week by giving birth to five pink kittens. Atta boy, Solomon! A number of rumors are in circulation as to who will occupy the new storeroom in the Johnson building. Step out and pick one to suit yourself. We guess it will be a new archery game.

COUNTY WORKER IS CAR CRASH VICTIM

Robert L. Hart, Member of Surveying Crew, Dies When Car Hurtles

INDEPENDENCE, Aug. 20. (Special)—Funeral arrangements had not been completed tonight for Robert L. Hart, 68, of Salem, who died here early Monday night as a result of injuries received when his automobile overturned on the West Side Pacific highway two miles south of Monmouth. The body is at the Keeney Funeral home.

Mr. Hart for the last five years had been employed as chairman of the Marion county surveyor's office, Surveyor B. B. Herrick said last night. He lived at 992 Shipping street.

"We feel his loss pretty badly in our office," Herrick said. "The fatal accident resulted when Hart lost control of his car while passing a creamery truck driven by William McEldowney of Monmouth, state police reported. They said the Hart car continued 400 feet past the point where it first struck the shoulder of the roadway, then rolled over at least twice. Hart apparently was thrown through the top of the car. Taken at once with Mrs. Hart to a doctor's office at Independence, he died soon after arriving there. Mrs. Hart, who suffered cuts and bruises, was reported as improved yesterday and not in serious condition."

Is From Kentucky
In boyhood Hart came west from Kentucky with his parents to settle in Linn county. For many years the family lived at Lebanon. He came to Salem about 25 years ago, for a time ran a fruit farm in Polk county, about ten years ago, and then returned to Salem.

Deena Hart, a daughter, came to Salem yesterday from Bend where she has been employed as a special relief case worker.

Surviving in addition to the daughter are the widow, Mabel C. Hart; sisters, Mrs. Lillie Fisher and Julia Parsons of Salem; brothers, John of Mehama, Addison and David of Portland.

Same Woman Aids Tourist Going, Return

That Mrs. Claudia Benson of the Salem branch, Oregon State Motor association, has eclipsed the Dionne quintuplets as a wonder of nature, was the thought expressed by one bewildered motorist at the California Pacific International Exposition recently. Calling at the Salem office for maps and road information to San Diego, prior to Mrs. Benson's hasty departure to the fair city, she outlined a trip via the valley route for him. To secure information about a different route back north, the gentleman sought advice from the Shell Travel Information building, where Mrs. Benson is now headquartered. Imagine his surprise when he was confronted by the same smiling young woman who routed him there. "For gosh sakes, are you twins?" was the remark, and, upon leaving he added, "I'm going to New York on my vacation next year. I'll look you up when I get there."
